BIG FEATURES IN WAR SITUATION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 19.—Three big features which now stand out prominently in the war situation were discussed here today at an allied council of war. They are:

1.—England's determination to increase the effectiveness of the blockade against Germany.
2.—The diplomatic situation in Greece and the general plan of campaign in the Balkans.
3.—The surrender of Montenegro and its political effect.

One of the leading figures at the council was Premier Aristide Briand of France, who arrived in London last night from Paris.

Alarming reports concerning Greece have been received here during the past 24 hours from Swiss sources. According to one of these a revolution is threatened in Greece.

The strength of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, who favors the entrance of Greece into the war on the side of the allies, is said to be growing daily.

The capitulation of Montenegro has aroused intense resentment in England, France, Italy and Russia.

VILLA ORDERED WHOLESALE MURDER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
El Paso, Tex., Jan. 19.—Mexican refugees who have fled to Juarez from the districts terrorized by the followers of Francisco Villa, declared today that the Americans killed at Santa Isabel were massacred by direct order from Villa. General Pablo Sianez, a Villa chieftain notorious for his ferocity, was in command of the murder band, according to the refugees. Sianez has refused to obey any military leader other than Villa.

General Sianez, like his chief, has threatened on numerous occasions since the recognition of Carranza to exact vengeance. He left Juarez with seventy men shortly before the border port was occupied by Carranza forces. On the night of his departure he was with difficulty restrained from shooting up a gambling house crowded with Americans.

"Well, I'll get the gringos before I am through" was the threat made by Sianez as he was led from the gambling house by other Villa officers. Sianez, though only 4 years old, is known as a "killer." Only a few nights before he left the border he murdered General Pablo Luna, a brother officer, in a quarrel over a woman. It is said that he has killed at least fifty other men with his own hand in private quarrels.

Bugle calls and shooting in Juarez caused another near-panic in El Paso early today. Several bullets crossed the Rio Grande and struck near the United States immigration station at the international bridge. A hurry call was sent for the police, but when the officers arrived the firing had ceased.

A telephone inquiry in Juarez brought the reply from Carranza officials that there had been no trouble, but a few hours later a report reached here that five men had been killed and a number wounded.

Another refugee train from Parral is expected to reach here this afternoon. Among the passengers are said to be sixteen women.

FLOOD DAMAGE IN SOUTH CALIFORNIA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—The flood situation was still menacing in southern California and large sections of Arizona today. With six persons drowned and enormous property loss inflicted, more rain was promised in the flooded region.

The most serious situation existed near Anaheim where the Santa Anna River is out of its banks. It was between Fullerton and Anaheim that three persons fleeing the flood in a buggy were swept from the state highway and drowned.

In Arizona, the Gila river was spreading over a wide area south of Phoenix. The Salt River in Arizona also was rising rapidly and threatening to do considerable damage. Wire and rail communication, as a result of continued rains, has not been normal for ten days.

Twelve overdue overland trains on the Santa Fe railroad and three Salt Lake route limited trains that have been marooned by heavy rains in the mountains, will reach Los Angeles today. Some of the trains were due here three days ago.

BRITAIN'S BLOCKADE MAY ADD PROBLEM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 19.—Great Britain's plan to tighten her blockade against Germany may create a new problem to perplex American diplomacy but the added restrictions imposed probably will not have the effect of reducing to any great extent the trade of the United States with neutrals, according to the view expressed today by Acting Secretary of Commerce Edwin F. Sweet.

"England's action brings us face to face with another situation, the possible dangers of which to American trade cannot be definitely foretold at this early stage, but it is inconceivable that the nation's commerce shall suffer greater hardships through the stoppage of shipments not intended for the enemy," the secretary said.

"The expected declaration would first be felt most severely by Norway and Sweden. Shipments to these countries will most likely be subjected to more rigid inspection, and trade with these nations may be slightly impeded. England suspects that a great deal of the goods destined to these two nations finally gets through to Germany."

"It is utterly impossible to disprove this, in the absence of records, but it is unfair for Great Britain to assume that the greatly increased purchases made of Americans by Norway and Sweden are being re-shipped to the Central Powers."

"The Scandinavian countries formerly traded in markets now cut off and were compelled to come to us for goods. It is true that Sweden bought $55,000,000 more from the United States in 1915 than she did in 1914 and that Norway's purchases jumped from approximately $13,000,000 to about $40,000,000. Denmark's trade increased about $50,000,000 and Holland's by approximately $40,000,000. But it must be remembered that the nations had to come to us for supplies they formerly got from Germany, which now needs all its goods for its own markets."

BAHL SUES LODGE FOR SICK BENEFITS

What promises to be an interesting suit is that brought by Philip Bahl against Kingston Lodge, No. 321, Independent Order Brith Abraham, to recover sick benefits, which came up for trial in city court this morning before City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., and was adjourned until February 4. Newton H. Fessenden represents Mr. Bahl while Henry Klein appeared in behalf of the lodge.

From the complaint filed by Mr. Bahl with the clerk of the court it appears that he was initiated July 26, 1903, as a beneficiary member of the lodge and that he was in good standing. He became sick through no fault of his own and was unable to attend to his work or business from July 23, 1915, to August of the same year and claims that he is entitled to sick benefits of $5 a week and has brought suit to recover $15.

The lodge's answer to the complaint sets forth in brief that the lodge did not know if Mr. Bahl was sick or for how long, or whether he was unable to attend to his business or not, and furthermore that the by-laws provide that illness must be attested to by two members of the lodge before any benefits can be received and that Mr. Bahl was sick only twelve days. The answer also states that at the time of Mr. Bahl's illness, if he was ill, that he lived in Brooklyn and it was his duty to report to the Brooklyn lodge and failed to do so.

Judgment Taken.
In the action brought by the L. B. Van Vaghen against Mary Madden to recover for goods sold and delivered a judgment was taken on the verified complaint in the amount of $9 with interests and costs. Henry Klein appeared for the plaintiff and there was no appearance on the part of defendant.

Action to Recover.
The action brought by the Powell Shoe Company against Carl Kaplan of No. 70 North Front street, to recover for goods sold and delivered amounting to $98.90 was also noted today for trial in city court. Henry Klein appeared in behalf of plaintiff.

Fire in Passaic.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Passaic, N. J., Jan. 19.—Fire early today swept through the business district of Passaic, causing damage estimated at $250,000 and leaving forty families homeless. The blaze, which started in Woolworth's five and ten cent store, destroyed that building as well as the Passaic Hotel, the Passaic theater, Berdon's furniture store, and a number of other establishments. Only one person was injured. The firemen had a difficult time checking the blaze because of the intense cold.

Big Dutchess County Estate.
Catherine M. Van Wyck, member of the Van Wyck family, one of the oldest in Dutchess county, whose mansion lies on the hill just outside the village of Newburgh, left an estate valued at $2,500 real and over $10,000 personal property, according to affidavits filed yesterday with the Dutchess county surrogate. The actual value of the estate is not given.

THE OLD SWIMMING HOLE AT ROICEVILLE.

UNIFORM RANK QUILTS FALL GUYS

The Uniform Rank of the Fall Guys' Association, comprising the members of the local police force, have given up their charter and it will be a long, long while before they again become members of the organization. The Uniform Rank was organized some time ago by W. L. Chambers, who represented himself as an agent for the Police Monthly Magazine and secured a number of subscriptions among the local force at a dollar a head. It was later learned that Chambers was no longer connected with the magazine and that he had formed other branches of the Uniform Rank in cities along the river. The publishing house has notified the local police that it has made good the subscriptions secured from the force by Chambers and each member who subscribed is now receiving the magazine. The fact that Chambers had been a duly authorized agent for the publishing house and still retained his credentials when he called at police headquarters was the reason why the police did not doubt his statements and had no hesitation in subscribing for the magazine.

Kingston City Drum Corps.

The Kingston City Drum Corps held their annual meeting last night at Michels's Hall in Rondout. Following the business session Casper Bailey, the drum major, spoke on the prospects for the coming year. He stated that he had heard from several people already in regard to securing the services of the corps for the convention of the Hudson Valley Firemen's Association in Poughkeepsie the coming summer. President Myers of the local 215, A. F. of M., gave an interesting talk on "Unionism." Andrew Schilling gave several pleasing selections on the piano, after which refreshments were served by Casper Michel.

Caught Measles in Saugerties.

The first three cases of measles to be reported to the board of health in six months were the cases reported to Health Officer Johnston on Monday afternoon. All three cases are children of a family on East Chester street. It is said that one of the members of the family attended a funeral in Saugerties and it is thought that the germs of the disease was brought back in the clothing, as there are a number of cases of measles prevalent in Saugerties at the present time.

Well-Stocked Cellar Is Immune.

Clement Armand's private stock of liquors at his farm in Armonville, Orange county, was pronounced free from seizure by the state excise department by a county court jury at Newburgh on Monday. The state swore a witness who testified to the purchase of a bottle of vermouth for 50 cents, but Armand, who is a Paterson silk manufacturer, testified that the wines were his private property and that he had never sold any.

New Music Studio Opened.

John Spalt, for many years the mainstay of McLean's orchestra of this city, has opened a music studio at his home, 514 Delaware avenue. Mr. Spalt is well known in musical circles around Kingston and vicinity, having had charge of the ringing of the chimes in the English Lutheran Church since they were installed. He has the reputation of being one of the best piano players ever produced by the local conservatory of music, and he is well known through his connection with the famous McLean orchestra of Kingston. Mr. Spalt will teach mostly piano lessons, of which he has a large class already, and since his determination to open a studio became known he has been deluged with applications to join his classes. Although he will no doubt be kept busy the best part of the time, he will not sever his connection with McLean's orchestra, and he will also continue to be a member of the Crescent basketball club of this city, he being the captain of the team. Mr. Spalt has gained a host of friends by his genial manner and he has their well wishes for the best of success in his new enterprise.

Clam Chowder Social at Rosendale.

The ladies of All Saints' Episcopal Church will hold a clam chowder social in the parish house on Thursday evening, beginning at 5:30 o'clock. Sandwiches, cake, coffee and ice cream, as well as chowder, will be on sale. This social affords a very desirable place for sleighing parties from Kingston and elsewhere to obtain refreshments on Thursday evening.

Feed Man Got a Drink.

Simon P. Walsh, a feed dealer of Montgomery, figured in an excruciating Tuesday at Newburgh, rough Freehill of Montgomery, being charged with the Sunday sale of liquor. According to Fred Pellerin, a Citizens' League detective, Walsh took him into the side door of Freehill's hotel on a Sunday and they purchased drinks. Several clergymen witnessed the side door entrance.

City Fathers to Skate.

Weather permitting, Newburgh's city fathers will make their debut as entertainers on the evening of January 27, when City Manager Alber will hold an ice carnival on Downing Lake. Red fire, fancy and general skating will feature.

DYNAMITE PLOT EPIDEMIC BROKEN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Officials of the department of justice in charge of the investigation and prosecution of the bomb plot conspirators believe that the backbone of the epidemic of munition plant dynamiting and general incendiarism due to activities of foreign agents, has been broken.

Chief Bielaski of the federal bureau of investigation, said today that the foreign agents apparently are discouraged by their lack of success in carrying out the most pretentious of their plots. Assistant Attorney General Warren, in general charge of prosecutions, declared that he believes that operators of the big munition plants by this time have weeded out the most dangerous characters among the men who were hastily employed to handle rush war orders and have broken in those who inexperience enhanced danger of accidents.

The department has not relaxed its vigilance, however, these officials stated. Several more indictments are expected as the result of cases on which the department has been working for some weeks but no new outrage has been reported.

Hearing in Dougherty Case.

A hearing was held Tuesday at Albany in the U. S. district court on the case of the Catskill Cement Co. and Patrick H. Dougherty. The case is an old one and has been threshed out for a number of years. Patrick H. Dougherty, plaintiff, alleges that dust from the plant of the Catskill Cement Co. settled on his ice fields, thereby causing a bad crop of ice. The case is being tried before Referee A. Page Smith.

Supreme Court Justice Tompkins of Westchester county, who is sitting at present, today granted Osborne's motion that he be allowed to examine the minutes.

The court granted the motion because the district attorney of Westchester County had promised Osborne that he could see the minutes.

U. & D. MILEAGE CASE REVERSED

Appellate Division of the Supreme Court Holds That Public Service Commission Has Authority to Grant the Increase.

The Ulster & Delaware Railroad filed a petition with the public service commission of the second district some time ago asking permission to increase the mileage book rates on the railroad from two to three cents a mile. Hearings were had and the commission handed down a decision denying the application on the ground that the commission was without jurisdiction to grant the permission asked; the mileage book rates being a rate fixed by statute.

A writ of certiorari was taken by the railroad and the matter was argued before the appellate division at Saratoga on September last. Later, due to changes in the court, the presiding justice being assigned to the appellate division of the first department, a reargument was directed and the appellate division has just handed down a decision reversing the decision of the public service commission and sending the matter back to the commission.

The decision of the public service commission was by a divided commission, three voting against the application of the railroad and two in favor of it. The decision of the appellate division is by a divided court, three judges voting in favor of the reversal of the decision of the public service commission and two in favor of sustaining the action of the commission.

The prevailing opinion of the appellate division is written by Judge Cochrane with Judges Howard and Lyon concurring and Judges Kellogg and Woodrow dissenting.

The decision of the appellate division being by a divided court it is probable an appeal will be taken to the higher court.

MEXICANS CAPTURE U. S. CAVALRYMEN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Douglas, Ariz., Jan. 19.—A telephone message today from Hachita brought the information that a band of Mexican bandits had captured seven enlisted men of the Seventh United States Cavalry near Doyle Wells, N. M. Doyle Wells is 14 miles from Hachita.

The telephone message stated that several cowboys had already started in pursuit of the bandits.

Fifty cavalrymen were at once sent in pursuit of the bandits.

The telephone message came from a cowboy named Doolittle, who said that he had witnessed the fight between the soldiers and Mexicans.

KING OF GREECE IN FEAR OF MURDER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Milan, Italy, Jan. 19.—Fearing assassination, King Constantine of Greece has doubled the strength of his bodyguard and seldom appears in public, according to private advices from Athens.

Adherents of the king declare that emissaries of the entente powers are active throughout Greece and are spending gold lavishly to stir up revolutionary outbreaks.

It is further charged that England and France plan to take advantage of the turbulence arising from anti-government uprisings to seize the capital and establish a military dictatorship so that they could use Greek military resources for their own ends.

RYNDAM REPORTS PASSENGERS SAFE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 19.—The Holland-American liner Ryndam has anchored off Margate in a damaged condition. She reported by wireless that all her passengers were safe and well.

A previous report stated that three stokers had been killed and four injured but the nature of the accident which caused the casualties was not disclosed.

MEXICAN LABORERS THREATEN STRIKE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, Jan. 19.—Labor leaders have notified the Carranza officials here that a general strike will be called tomorrow unless the employers pay their workers fifteen per cent of their wages in gold.

Owing to this threat General Pablo Gonzalez today had the city placarded with notices to workingmen cautioning them against engaging in unwarranted strikes. Several I. W. W. agitators have recently been actively at work here, spreading dissatisfaction and interfering with reconstruction efforts of the Carranza officials.

Caught Measles in Saugerties.

The first three cases of measles to be reported to the board of health in six months were the cases reported to Health Officer Johnston on Monday afternoon. All three cases are children of a family on East Chester street. It is said that one of the members of the family attended a funeral in Saugerties and it is thought that the germs of the disease was brought back in the clothing, as there are a number of cases of measles prevalent in Saugerties at the present time.

Well-Stocked Cellar is Immune.

Clement Armand's private stock of liquors at his farm in Armonville, Orange county, was pronounced free from seizure by the state excise department by a county court jury at Newburgh on Monday. The state swore a witness who testified to the purchase of a bottle of vermouth for $2.00, but Armand, who is a Father-son silk manufacturer, testified that the wines were his private property and that he had never sold any.

New Music Studio Opened.

John Spalt, for many years the mainstay of McLean's orchestra of this city, has opened a music studio at his home, 514 Delaware avenue.

Mr. Spalt is well known in musical circles around Kingston and vicinity, having had charge of the ringing of the chimes in the English Lutheran Church since they were installed. He has the reputation of being one of the best piano players ever produced by the local conservatory of music, and he is well known through his connection with the famous McLean orchestra of Kingston.

Mr. Spalt will teach mostly piano lessons, of which he has a large class already, and since his determination to open a studio became known he has been deluged with applications to join his classes.

Although he will no doubt be kept busy the best part of the time, he will not sever his connection with McLean's orchestra, and he will also continue to be a member of the Crescent basketball club of this city. He is being the captain of the team.

Mr. Spalt has gained a host of friends by his genial manner and he has their well wishes for the best of success in his new enterprise.

Clam Chowder Social at Rosendale.

The ladies of All Saints' Episcopal Church will hold a clam chowder social in the parish house on Thursday evening, beginning at 5:30 o'clock. Sandwiches, cake, coffee and ice cream, as well as chowder, will be on sale. This social affords a very desirable place for strolling parties from Kingston and elsewhere to obtain refreshments on Thursday evening.

Feed Man Got a Drink.

Simon P. Walsh, a feed dealer of Monticore, figured in an exciting trial Tuesday at Newburgh, being charged with the Sunday sale of liquor. According to Fred Pellerin, a Citizens' League detective, Walsh took him into the side door of Freehill's hotel on a Sunday and they purchased drinks. Several clerical witnesses the side door entrance.

City Fathers to Skate.

Weather permitting, Newburgh's city fathers will make their debut as entertainers on the evening of January 27, when City Manager Albert will hold an ice carnival on Downing Lake. Red fire, fancy and general skating will feature.

DYNAMITE PLOT EPIDEMIC BROKEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Officials of the department of justice in charge of the investigation and prosecution of the bomb plot conspirators believe that the backbone of the epidemic of munition plant dynamiting and general incendiarism due to activities of foreign agents, has been broken.

Chief Bielaski of the federal bureau of investigation, said today that the foreign agents apparently are discouraged by their lack of success in carrying out the most pretentious of their plots. Assistant Attorney General Warren, in general charge of prosecutions, declared that he believes that operators of the big munition plants by this time have weeded out the most dangerous characters among the men who were hastily employed to handle rush war orders and hence enhanced danger of accidents.

The department has not relaxed its vigilance, however, these officials stated. Several more indictments are expected as the result of cases on which the department has been working for some weeks but no new outrage has been reported.

Hearing in Dougherty Case.

A hearing was held Tuesday at Albany in the U. S. district court on the case of the Catskill Cement Co. and Patrick H. Dougherty. The case is an old one and has been threshed out for a number of years. Patrick H. Dougherty, plaintiff, alleges that dust from the plant of the Catskill Cement Co. settled on his ice fields, thereby causing a bad crop of ice. The case is being tried before Referee A. Page Smith.

ICE GRIPS ODELL OFF TARRYTOWN

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Jan. 19.—The steamer Benjamin D. Odell of the Newburgh Line is stuck in the ice off John Archbold's dock. The boat started up the Hudson last night but could not break through the ice above Tarrytown and drifted back and the captain was forced to anchor. If the present cold snap continues it may be necessary to get an ice breaking tug to release her.

OSBORNE TO GET GRAND JURY MINUTES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 19.—Thomas Mott Osborne was granted permission today to inspect the minutes of the grand jury that indicted him while he was warden of Sing Sing prison. Supreme Court Justice Tompkins of Westchester county, who is sitting at present, today granted Osborne's motion that he be allowed to examine the minutes.

The court granted the motion because the district attorney of Westchester county had promised Osborne that he could see the minutes.

U. & D. MILEAGE CASE REVERSED

Appellate Division of the Supreme Court Holds That Public Service Commission Has Authority to Grant the Increase.

The Ulster & Delaware Railroad filed a petition with the public service commission of the second district some time ago asking permission to increase the mileage book rates on the railroad from two to three cents a mile. Hearings were had and the commission handed down a decision denying the application on the ground that the commission was without jurisdiction to grant the permission asked; the mileage book rates being a rate fixed by statute.

A writ of certiorari was taken by the railroad and the matter was argued before the appellate division at Saratoga on September last. Later, due to changes in the court, the presiding justice being assigned to the appellate division of the first department, a reargument was directed and the appellate division has just handed down a decision reversing the decision of the public service commission and sending the matter back to the commission.

The decision of the public service commission was by a divided commission, three voting against the application of the railroad and two in favor of it. The decision of the appellate division is by a divided court, three judges voting in favor of the reversal of the decision of the public service commission and two in favor of sustaining the action of the commission.

The prevailing opinion of the appellate division is written by Judge Cochrane with Judges Howard and Lyon concurring and Judges Kellogg and Woodruff dissenting.

The decision of the appellate division being by a divided court it is probable an appeal will be taken to the higher court.

H. H. Flemming with Louis E. Carr, attorney of the D. & U., of counsel appeared in behalf of the Ulster & Delaware railroad. Judge Hale of Albany appeared for the public service commission, and William D. Brinzier for various parties and organizations opposed to the application.

Douglas, Ariz., Jan. 19.—A telephone message today from Hachita brought the information that a band of Mexican bandits had captured seven enlisted men of the Seventh United States Cavalry near Doyle Wells, N. M. Doyle Wells is 14 miles from Hachita.

The telephone message stated that several cowboys had already been captured by the bandits.

Fifty cavalrymen were at once sent in pursuit of the bandits.

The telephone message came from a cowboy named Doolittle, who said that he had witnessed the fight between the soldiers and Mexicans.

KING OF GREECE IN FEAR OF MURDER

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Milan, Italy, Jan. 19.—Fearing assassination, King Constantine of Greece has doubled the strength of his bodyguard and seldom appears in public, according to private advices from Athens.

Adherents of the king declare that emissaries of the entente powers are active throughout Greece and are spreading gold lavishly to stir up revolutionary outbreaks.

It is further charged that England and France plan to take advantage of the turbulence arising from anti-government uprisings to seize the capital and establish a military dictatorship so that they could use Greek military resources for their own ends.

RYNDAM REPORTS PASSENGERS SAFE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 19.—The Holland-American liner Ryndam has anchored off Margate in a damaged condition. She reported by wireless that all her passengers were safe and well.

A previous report stated that three stokers had been killed and four injured but the nature of the accident which caused the casualties was not disclosed.

MEXICAN LABORERS THREATEN STRIKE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Mexico City, Jan. 19.—Labor leaders have notified the Carranza officials here that a general strike will be called tomorrow unless the employers pay their workers fifteen percent of their wages in gold.

Owing to this threat General Pablo Gonzalez today had the city placarded with notices to workingmen cautioning them against engaging in unwarranted strikes. Several I. W. O. agitators have recently been actively at work here, spreading dissatisfaction and interfering with reconstruction efforts of the Carranza officials.

FLOOD DAMAGE IN SOUTH CALIFORNIA

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—The flood situation was still menacing in southern California and large sections of Arizona today. With six persons drowned and enormous property loss inflicted, more rain was promised in the flooded region.

The most serious situation existed near Anaheim where the Santa Anna river is out of its banks. It was between Fullerton and Anaheim that three persons fleeing the flood in a hurry were swept from the state highway and drowned.

In Arizona the Gila river was spreading over a wide area south of Phoenix. The Salt River in Arizona also was rising rapidly and threatening to do considerable damage. Wire and rail communication, as a result of continued rains, has not been normal for ten days.

Twelve overdue overland trains on the Santa Fe railroad and three Salt Lake route limited trains that have been marooned by heavy rains in the mountains, will reach Los Angeles today. Some of the trains were due here three days ago.

Fire in Pottsville.

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 19.—The heart of the Tamaqua business section was swept by fire today. Seven buildings were destroyed including the Tamaqua National Bank, Woolford Apartments and Gardner Hotel. Two firemen were injured. The loss was $229,000.

Reminder of One of the Beauty Spots Lost by the Building of the Ashokan Dam Described and Copied for The Freeman.

The "Old Swimming Hole" doesn't look the same now as it did when an artist sat on the banks of the Esopus creek at Boiceville and with canvas spread before him put in dabs and dashes of various colored paints until he had idealized what nature itself had made a beautiful scene and evolved the picture which is herewith reproduced.

The original painting, in colors, is in the possession of Millard H. Davis of Wall Street, to whom it was presented by the artist, who was a guest at the Davis boarding house one summer. Mr. Davis kindly loaned the painting to The Freeman, and it was photographed and the cut made in The Freeman office. On account of the combination of colors, there was some doubt whether a good photograph could be made, as some colored pictures cannot be transferred to the plate of the camera with satisfactory results, but in the case of the Davis picture, the combination of colors was well adapted for a photograph.

"The Old Swimming Hole."

"The Old Swimming Hole" was famous in the town of Olive long before the city of New York contemplated the construction of an immense reservoir there. In years long past practically the entire population of the upper end of the town gathered there on festive occasions. The overhanging rocks and the suspension wire foot bridge which crossed the creek to the factory were advantageous points from which the divers plunged into the cool waters of the deep pool. With the thermometer showing the mercury hovering around the zero mark, the waters would be nice and cool now, if "The Old Swimming Hole" had been preserved. In the later days of the Ashokan condemnation proceedings, "The Old Swimming Hole" was popular with the commissioners and experts, who used to disport themselves in its refreshing depths after a day's work was completed in Kingston and they had entrained for Boiceville to spend the nights far from the hot and dusty streets of crowded Kingston.

Boiceville's Glorious Past.

Boiceville came into existence as a settlement about 1850 through the erection there of a large tannery, which was built by the late General Sampson of Kingston, and Lemuel Boice.

The settlement consisted of eight single houses, a boarding house, a two family house, a five family house, which was better known as "the long house," a store and a village pump. Another little hamlet, which properly formed part of Boiceville was situated on the main road and consisted of the residence of Lemuel Boice, a wagonmaker shop, a blacksmith shop and three of four small habitations, including a toll-house with toll-gate.

About a mile away was a hotel kept by Cornelius C. Winne. That hotel was a very important place at that time and for many years afterward, horses being changed there for the old stage line that traversed the route followed by the Ulster & Delaware railroad, and which still forms the main highway route between Kingston and Stamford, Delaware county. Afterwards the old Winne hotel became one of the foremost houses in the western Catskills.

The principal industry at Boiceville until the city of New York acquired all the property and having filled the western basin with water submerged the site of the village, was the lumber and pulp mill operated by the late John C. Hoornbeek of Nanaucho and owned by the descendants of Matthew Churchill. The mill acquired by the city of New York was erected by Mr. Hoornbeek in 1878 on the site of the old tannery and for many years employed from 20 to 30 men.

Boiceville at Present.

The old Boiceville is covered with water, but there is a new Boiceville, which consists of a small group of dwellings near the new Boiceville post office, which is situated on the easterly side of the state highway, overlooking the lake which covers the old hamlet. The Ulster & Delaware Railroad has erected at Cold Brook, a short distance west of the settlement, a very substantial and well appointed station, which is as fine as any station along the entire line of the road. The new Cold Brook station is one mile west of the old Boiceville station.

Among the new element which is working to make Boiceville as desirable and as famous a place as the old Boiceville was Mr. Stephens, Mr.

AS WE GROW OLDER

our minds are quite as active as in former years but our strength does not respond when we need it most; perhaps the kidneys are weak, the liver torpid, rheumatic pains or stiffened joints beset us, and we cannot easily throw off the colds that winter brings.

What we need is the rich cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion to renew the blood and carry strength to every organ of the body, while its glycerine soothes the respiratory tract, and its hypophosphites strengthen the excitable nerves.

Scott's Emulsion is a scientific oil-food, of unusual benefit to those past fifty years—particularly during the colder seasons, it imparts warmth and creates strength. One bottle will prove its worth. No alcohol or harmful drugs. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-36

Morrison and Mr. Lambert, each of whom has erected an attractive group of substantial buildings. New orchards have been planted to supplant those which were destroyed, and the land which remains is being well utilized.

The Boiceville Spirit.

Boiceville for three years has been the scene of a reunion of residents of the town of Olive, which is known as the Boiceville Reunion. Last year it was held on Labor Day, and it was attended by many former residents of the entire Ashokan region who had removed to other places after their properties had been acquired by the city of New York, and by many residents of the town. The promoters of the reunion were Arthur B. Churchill and Millard H. Davis, Jr., and the promoters had the satisfaction of seeing the association grow from a membership of seventy-five the first year to four hundred on Labor Day of 1915. The present officers of the association are: K. Lambert, president; Delancy N. Matthews, vice president; Mrs. A. G. Burgher, secretary; Joseph S. Hill, treasurer.

The re-union each year is held in a pine grove owned by Mr. Lambert and dedicated by him to the use of the association. It is situated fifteen hundred feet from The Old Swimming Hole, on the divide between the reservoir and the Traver Hollow stream, on the Chestnut Bishkill. Mr. Lambert at his own expense has trimmed up the grove, removed all the loose stones, erected a speaker's platform and constructed a good automobile road from the state highway to the grove.

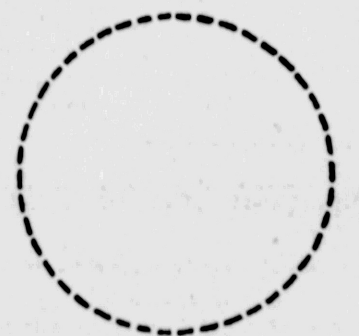

Mr. Lambert has placed in the grove the only complete souvenir of West Shokan, which is a well-house that formerly was over the spring of Alva Bogart.

An extensive view of the west basin of the reservoir is had from the Lambert grove. Art and nature have combined to make it one of the most beautiful spots in the Catskills; nature supplying the many high mountains and art supplementing nature with a beautiful clear lake and two of the most substantial and artistically constructed bridges known in the state.

"The Old Swimming Hole" is at the extreme western end of the west basin, where the east and west boulevards join. The picture is published now because of its appropriateness. When the thermometer shows zero temperature, a glance at the picture will convince the most skeptical that cold weather does not always prevail and that grip-producing weather will in time disappear. If it were not so, would there ever have been "The Old Swimming Hole?"

UNCONTACTFUL ADAMS

The Pathetic Unpopularity of Our Second President.

HE WAS VAIN AND GLAD OF IT

Then, Too, He Had an Obstinate Personality That Endowed Him With a Positive Genius For Putting Himself in the Worst Possible Light.

The choleric John Adams had been president for more than two years, but as long as Washington lived the country refused to look upon any one else as its real head.

The way of the transgressor may be hard indeed, but it is a path of roses compared with the thorny road the successor to a popular idol must tread, and when one reads the frankly expressed opinion of Adams' party friends and party enemies one's sympathies go out to the man upon whom Washington's presidential mantle fell.

Adams' superfluous highness was the cause of the opposition he suggested for him in the days when discussion raged as to what the high officials of the government were to be called. He had great learning, great patriotism and an unquenchable spirit, but overlying and enveloping them all was a positive genius for doing and saying uncontactful things, for appearing at the worst possible advantage.

A member of his cabinet once said of him that whether he was "sportful, playful, witty, kind, cold, drunk, sober, angry, easy, stiff, jealous, careless, cautious, confident, close or open" he was almost always so in the wrong place and with the wrong person.

The kindly Franklin characterized him as "always honest, sometimes great, but often mad." One less genial remarked that even in his soberest moments Adams was "the greatest snarler in nature." And John Randolph of Roanoke, whose tongue added the poison of ridicule to the bitterness of gall, called him "that political Malvolito."

Adams thought Washington's talents overrated and on becoming president in his turn was ambitious to make a record brilliant enough to overshadow him. It was certainly no easy task even without the handicap of Adams' obstinate personality.

He knew that he was vain. "Thank God I am so!" he exclaimed. "Vanity is the cardinal virtue which makes the latter cup of life go down." But it had its lingering after taste, and justly proud of his record—having, as one of his biographers puts it, "stepped from his little country law office and proved himself a match for the diplomats of Europe"—Adams resented the narrow margin by which he had been elected, calling himself with some bitterness "the president of three votes only."

A vice president can be removed by nothing short of crime or physical incapacity, and Jefferson remained, an ever present and irritating thorn in Adams' side. Adams had found it hard to learn and accept the passive role demanded by the office, and he evidently took some satisfaction in impressing the same un congenial lesson upon his successor.

Jefferson asserted that he was never consulted upon any question of government after Adams had been two days in power. And he did not make the charge in the humorous mood of a later incumbent, who used to declare that his chief had asked his advice only once and that was about the wording of a Thanksgiving proclamation.

"I believe he always liked me," Adams admitted in a retrospect of his long career, "but he detested Hamilton and my whole administration. Then, he wished to be president of the United States, and I stood in his way. So he did everything that he could to pull me down. But if I should quarrel with him for that I might quarrel with every one I had anything to do with in life. . . . Did you ever hear the times?"

"I love my friend as well as you. But why should he obstruct my view? I forgive my enemies and hope they may find mercy in heaven."—"Our Nation in the Building," by Helen Nicolay, in Century Magazine.

Wesley's Father and Wesley. One cleric well known to fame who took snuff and loved his pipe was Samuel Wesley, rector of Epworth, Lincolnshire, from 1697 to 1735. He not only smoked his pipe, but sang his praises:

In these raw mornings, when I'm freezing pipe,
What can compare with a tobacco pipe?
Framed, cocked and touched, 'twould better heat a man
Than the bath fagots or Scotch warming pan.

Samuel's greater son, John Wesley, did not share the parental love of a pipe. He spoke of the use of tobacco as "an uncleanly and unwholesome self-indulgence" and described snuffing as a "silly, nasty, dirty custom."—Westminster Gazette.

What the Well Revealed.

One of the first deep wells drilled in the west was put down near Huxley, Nev., by the Central Pacific railway in 1881, in a search for good water. The boring reached a depth of 2,750 feet, but the water obtained was of very unsatisfactory quality. At 1,700 feet the drill encountered a bed of "petrified clams," and the record states that at 1,500 feet well preserved "redwood timber" was found.—Argonaut.

Not only strike when the iron is hot, but make it hot by striking.—Oliver Cromwell.

Almost Forgotten Name.

Have you ever heard of the state of Kenawha? No, it is not an Indian principality but the name applied in the original ordinance of separation, to what is now West Virginia, the latter name having been decided on finally by the convention which framed the constitution.

STORING VEGETABLES.

Instructions For Indoor and Outdoor Storage in Winter.

The basement is often the best place on the farm for storing vegetables, says R. S. Gardner of the University of Missouri. It must be properly built and the temperature, moisture and ventilation conditions kept right. If it is too warm the vegetables will dry and shrivel, and if the ventilation is poor drops of water will form and the vegetables will be more likely to decay. If there is a furnace in the cellar the storage room should be far enough away so that it can be kept cool, and during very cold weather the door may be opened to prevent freezing.

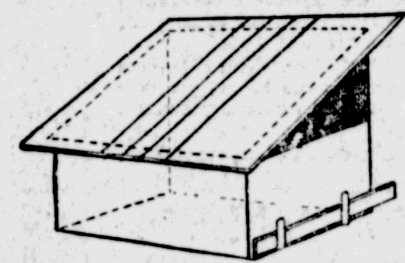

Outdoor storage is better if the basement is too small or if it has not been built so that the temperature and other conditions can be properly controlled. The vegetables may be gathered and piled as closely together as possible and covered with a little straw at first and more heavily as the weather grows colder until severe weather comes, when six inches of soil should be added. An opening should be left at the top for ventilation. Cabbage should be arranged in long piles, the bottom layer three heads wide and the second layer two heads wide. Leave the heads untrimmed and pile with the stems and roots on.

Root crops may be stored outside much as cabbages are. Both should be covered with several inches of straw and the straw covered with dirt. In severe weather a layer of manure should be added. But it must be removed in milder weather to prevent heating and the condensation of moisture into water drops. Such outdoor storage is inconvenient because it is so difficult to select a day on which the pile can be opened without freezing some or all of the vegetables stored. This can be remedied in part by making long piles which can be opened without exposing much more of the contents to the cold than is to be removed to shelter at once.

If a little celery has been grown it may be left in the row if the exposed tops are covered with straw and then with earth when the weather becomes severe. It is better to pull the stalks and then replant them as close together as possible in a long bed three feet wide on a high, well drained ground. The edges of the bed are banked with earth to the top of the stalks, and an A shaped roof rests on the banks. This roof is tight except for a narrow strip at the ridge, which is left open for ventilation. The banks and roof are covered with straw or strawy manure to which six inches of soil should be added when severe weather comes.

A Sanitary Coop.

This drawing shows the plan of chicken coop we designed and have been using for the last ten years. The coops are made in the winter time when the men are not busy with other work. They are made of twelve and six inch soft pine boards. They are twenty-three inches long, eighteen inches wide, eighteen inches high in front and a foot high at the back. The roof extends over the side walls about three inches on all sides, writes Mrs. S. M. Pophart in the Farmers' Mail and Breeze.

The floors are hinged out, as shown, and the coops are painted inside and out. Wire screen is put in the ends, as shown, to provide ventilation. The little side door permits chicks to come and go. The material in each coop costs about $1. We use the coops from year to year, as they are cleaned out every fall and put away in the dry during the winter. I have never yet lost a chicken in these coops, either by drowning, smothering or through having some animal get in.

MARKET GARDENING.

A Cambria county (Pa.) grower of late cabbage stores annually a large quantity of Danish ball head in the stables of a barn which are not used at all for live stock. By giving careful attention to ventilation the cabbage keeps in very good condition, and the barn is always comfortable for packing and loading the cabbage.

Swiss chard roots, taken from my garden a few weeks ago and planted in the cellar, are making a fine growth. A good crop of leaves can be picked at any time, says a well known grower.

A farmer living near Williamsport, Pa., sold all his golden bantam sweet corn last year—grown in succession—at a uniform price of 25 cents a dozen. Every ear represented the highest quality.

Is the celery keeping all right in the trenches? Ventilation may be needed on warm days.

Grade the root crops before sending them to market. They will command higher prices and help to win regular customers.

Three or four plantings of rhubarb should be made in the cellar during the winter months in order to obtain a succession of this product.

If soil is not available for the planting of rhubarb in the cellar coal ashes—other bituminous or anthracite—will be found very satisfactory.—R. L. Walts in National Stockman and Farmer.

Spreading the Gospel.

On the continent of Africa alone the New Testament, or parts of it, have been translated into 148 languages and dialects. The two latest additions are Dabida—a language of British East Africa—and Limba—the language of a tribe in the hinterland of Sierra Leone.

Ventilation of Engine Rooms.

For ventilating engine rooms, large electric fans are employed. So, too, the coal bunkers have to be ventilated, owing to the gas which the coal gives off. This gas when mixed with air forms an explosive, so, in order to prevent the possibility of injury to men or ship, a supply and an exhaust pipe are fitted in such a manner to cause a current of air.

English Coroners.

The office of the English coroner is one of the oldest recognized by the common law, having been mentioned as "coronator" in the rule of King Athelstane, in the tenth century; but his duties no longer include inquests into the death of "royal fish," such as the whale and the sturgeon, that function having been repealed by the coroners' act of 1887.

Preferred the Work.

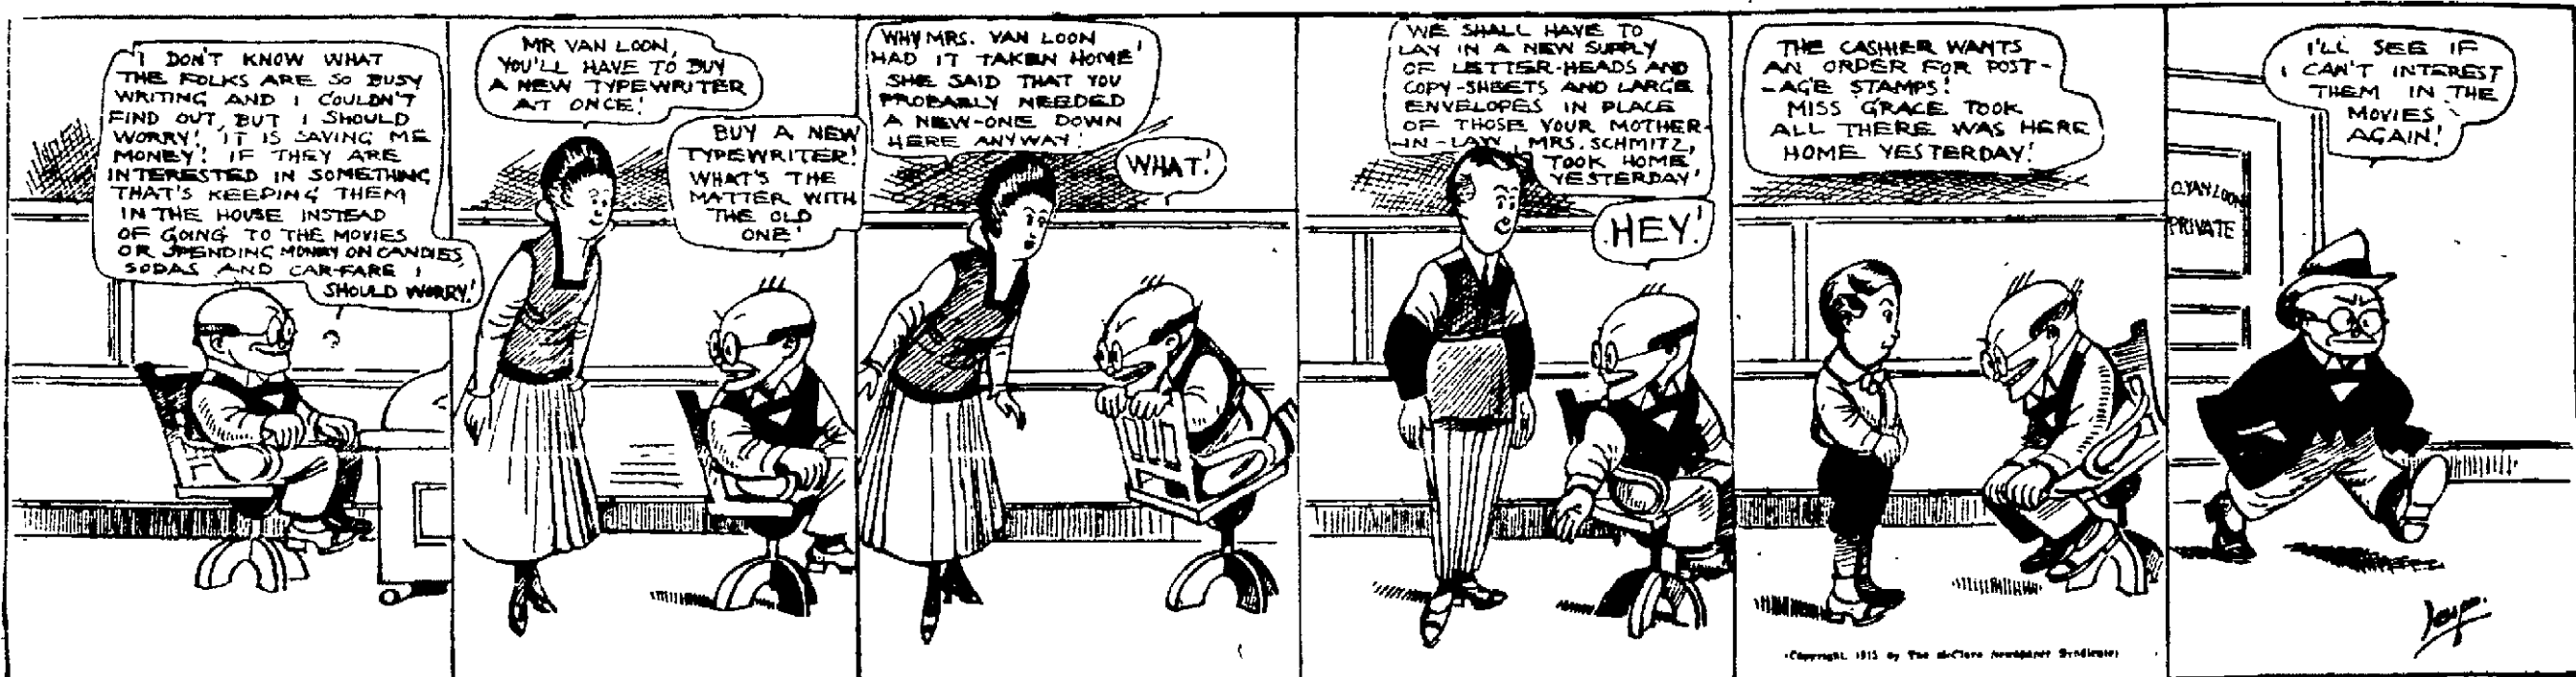

"Why didn't you quit work and go fishing?" "I tried that once," replied Mr. Restagin. "If getting up at five o'clock in the morning and traveling out to a fishing place and falling into a boat and maybe out of it, and sitting in suspense by the hour in order to land a two-ounce fish are what you call rest and recreation, give me the work."

Wormwood.

There is a great deal of wormwood grown in this country. The perennial weed, which has an angular stem, two to three feet high, and silky, hoary leaves and yellow flowers, is now used in the manufacture of absinthe. It was formerly used as a vermifuge and to protect clothing and furniture from moths and insects. It is very bitter.

Creaseless Packing.

When preparing to pack a trunk have four or five pieces of cardboard the size of your trunk, so that they will slip in easily. Wrap dresses or blouses in tissue paper and attach them to these boards with tape. You can then pack and unpack many times and your dresses will not be disturbed, but will come out when needed as fresh as when first packed.

Reminder of One of the Beauty Spots Lost by the Building of the Ashokan Dam Described and Copied for The Freeman.

The "Old Swimming Hole" doesn't look the same now as it did when an artist sat on the banks of the Esopus creek at Boiceville and with canvas spread before him put in dabs and dashes of various colored paints until he had idealized what nature itself had made a beautiful scene and evolved the picture which is herewith reproduced.

The original painting, in colors, is in the possession of Millard H. Davis of Wall Street, to whom it was presented by the artist, who was a guest at the Davis boarding house one summer. Mr. Davis kindly loaned the painting to The Freeman, and it was photographed and the cut made in The Freeman office. On account of the combination of colors, there was some doubt whether a good photograph could be made, as some colored pictures cannot be transferred to the plate of the camera with satisfactory results, but in the case of the Davis picture, the combination of colors was well adapted for a photograph.

"The Old Swimming Hole" was famous in the town of Olive long before the city of New York contemplated the construction of an immense reservoir there. In years long past practically the entire population of the upper end of the town gathered there on festive occasions. The overhanging rocks and the suspension wire foot bridge which crossed the creek to the factory were advantageous points from which the divers plunged into the cool waters of the deep pool. With the thermometer showing the mercury hovering around the zero mark, the waters would be nice and cool now. If "The Old Swimming Hole" had been preserved. In the later days of the Ashokan condemnation proceedings, "The Old Swimming Hole" was popular with the commissioners and experts, who used to disport themselves in its refreshing depths after a day's work was completed in Kingston and they had entrained for Boiceville to spend the nights far from the hot and dusty streets of crowded Kingston.

Boiceville's Glorious Past. Boiceville came into existence as a settlement about 1850 through the erection there of a large tannery, which was built by the late General Sampson of Kingston, and Lemuel Boice.

The settlement consisted of eight single houses, a boarding house, a two family house, a five family house, which was better known as "the long house," a store and a village pump. Another little hamlet, which properly formed part of Boiceville and consisted of the residence of Lemuel Boice, a wagonmaker shop, a blacksmith shop and three of four small habitations, including a toll-house with toll-gate.

About a mile away was a hotel kept by Cornelius C. Winne. That hotel was a very important place at that time and for many years afterward, horses being changed there for the old stage line that traversed the route followed by the Ulster & Delaware railroad, and which still forms the main highway route between Kingston and Stamford, Delaware county. Afterwards the old Winne hotel became one of the foremost houses in the western Catskills.

The principal industry at Boiceville until the city of New York acquired all the property and having filled the western basin with water submerged the site of the village, was the lumber and pulp mill operated by the late John C. Hoornbeek of Nanaucho and owned by the descendants of Matthew Churchill. The mill acquired by the city of New York was erected by Mr. Hoornbeek in 1878 on the site of the old tannery and for many years employed from 20 to 30 men.

Boiceville at Present.

The old Boiceville is covered with water, but there is a small Boiceville, which consists of a small group of dwellings near the new Boiceville post office, which is situated on the easterly side of the state highway, overlooking the lake which covers the old hamlet. The Ulster & Delaware Railroad, as located at Cold Brook, a short distance west of the settlement, a very substantial and well appointed station, which is as fine as any station along the entire line of the road. The new Cold Brook station is one mile west of the old Boiceville station.

Among the new element which is working to make Boiceville as desirable and as famous a place as the old Boiceville was Mr. Stephens, Mr.

AS WE GROW OLDER

our minds are quite as active as in former years but our strength does not respond when we need it most; perhaps the kidneys are weak, the liver torpid, rheumatic pains or stiffened joints beset us, and we cannot easily throw off the colds that winter brings.

What we need is the rich cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion to renew the blood and carry strength to every organ of the body, while its glycerine soothes the respiratory tract, and its hypophosphites strengthen the excitable nerves.

Scott's Emulsion is a scientific oil-food, of unusual benefit to those past fifty years—particularly during the colder seasons, it imparts warmth and creates strength. One bottle will prove its worth. No alcohol or harmful drugs.

Scott & Downe, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-36

Morrison and Mr. Lambert, each of whom has erected an attractive group of substantial buildings. New orchards have been planted to supplant those which were destroyed, and the land which remains is being well utilized.

The Boiceville Spirit.

Boiceville for three years has been the scene of a reunion of residents of the town of Olive, which is known as the Boiceville Reunion. Last year it was held on Labor Day, and it was attended by many former residents of the entire Ashokan region who had removed to other places after their properties had been acquired by the city of New York, and by many residents of the town. The promoters of the reunion were Arthur B. Churchill and Millard H. Davis, Jr., and the promoters had the satisfaction of seeing the association grow from a membership of seventy-five the first year to four hundred on Labor Day of 1915. The present officers of the association are: K. Lambert, president; Delaney N. Mathews, vice president; Mrs. A. C. Burgher, secretary; Joseph S. Hill, treasurer.

The reunion each year is held in a pine grove owned by Mr. Lambert and dedicated by him to the use of the association. It is situated fifteen hundred feet from The Old Swimming Hole, on the divide between the reservoir and the Traver Hollow stream, on the Chestnut Bishkill. Mr. Lambert at his own expense has trimmed up the grove, removed all the loose stones, erected a speaker's platform and constructed a good automobile road from the state highway to the grove.

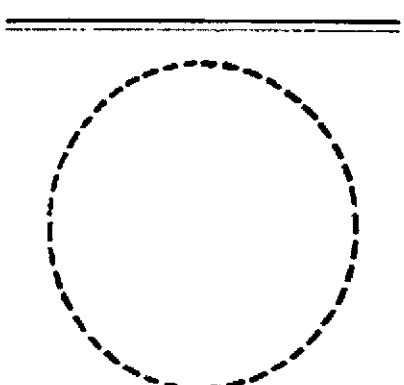

Mr. Lambert has placed in the grove the only complete souvenir of West Shokan, which is a well-house that formerly was over the spring of Alva Bogart.

An extensive view of the west basin of the reservoir is had from the Lambert grove. Art and nature have combined to make it one of the most beautiful spots in the Catskills; nature supplying the many high mountains and art supplementing nature with a beautiful clear lake and two of the most substantial and artistically constructed bridges known in the state.

"The Old Swimming Hole" is at the extreme western end of the west basin, where the east and west boulevards join. The picture is published now because of its appropriateness. When the thermometer shows zero temperature, a glance at the picture will convince the most skeptical that cold weather does not always prevail and that grip-producing weather will in time disappear. If it were not so, would there ever have been "The Old Swimming Hole?"

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 19, 1916.

Since our own Commissioners of Elections have not adopted the custom of making annual reports, our readers should be all the more interested in the report just made by the Board of Elections of New York City. This body says that it has made a practical test of voting machines with the result that it has found them undesirable. It states that these devices are not yet free from mechanical defects, that they have a doubtful legal aspect, and that they cannot take care of as large a number of voters in a given time as is possible under the ballot system, which means that they "would increase the cost of elections instead of diminishing it, as has been contended." This is unquestionably an impartial verdict, and should not be forgotten by the people of other cities when slick agents come around. The New York Board also makes the interesting announcement that practically all schools throughout the city will be used as voting places at the primary election next spring. Obviously, this will result in a considerable saving of money. As children do not go to school on election days, the devotion of the buildings to another purpose will involve no one. About the only opposition to this plan—saying nothing of the owners of buildings which they desire to rent—has come from persons, officers and mere voters, who desire to smoke tobacco around the booths, a practice which is forbidden in school buildings. This deprivation, however, will not seriously impress the majority of taxpayers.

Responses to inquiries sent out by Senator Bennett indicate that the people of this state are practically unanimous in opposition to holding another Constitutional Convention in the near future. The one we had last year cost a million and a half dollars, and, as we all know, nothing came of it. Senator Bennett has introduced in the Legislature thirty-three separate amendments to the Constitution. If they are adopted this year and also by the Legislature to be elected next November, they will be voted on in the year following. It is clear now—although nobody foresaw the half million majority against the proposed new Constitution last November—that it is hopeless to attempt to secure the adoption of a new Constitution as a whole. The piecemeal method of amendment, while in many respects undesirable, is alone practical. Yet it strikes us as unfortunate that so many as thirty-three propositions should be submitted at once, since the tendency would be to confuse voters so that they would not undertake to fill out their ballots. It is our opinion that this was a large factor in defeating the Constitution voted on last November. There was so much of it that many voters who thought things were going on well enough as they were decided to be on the safe side by rejecting the whole thing. This conviction is reinforced by the fact that the only proposition which did carry went through by a trifling majority, although no argument was advanced against it at any time. It is a wise State which does not make the same blunder twice.

The effort to substitute clamor for argument in opposition to the application of the New York Central Railroad for permission to raise its fares appears not to have influenced the Executive Committee of the Hudson Valley Chamber of Commerce. That body has taken exactly the position heretofore advocated by the Freeman, according to a report of its recent meeting sent by its secretary, William Frederic Hoehn, whom we all know. After relating that the Committee has received a large number of letters urging it to oppose the application on general principles, the report goes on to say: "The Committee feels that not more sentiment alone should sway public opinion, but that a real determining of the facts should decide such matters. An investigation of the facts is now being made by one of the commercial organizations in the district, and this report will be awaited with interest by the members of the Committee before committing itself to any policy or against the rate increase." Secretary Hoehn incidentally compliments The Freeman for discussing the matter in a reasonable spirit. Every traveler is naturally desirous of paying the railroad companies just as little as possible, just as he is anxious to get his food and clothing at the bottom price, but there are very few men when you pin them down to it, who will declare that they are in favor of anybody being compelled to do business at a loss for their personal benefit. After investigation has shown what is right about railroad fares it will be time for sentiment to show itself, although even then it will be unnecessary.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Jones is in the hospital very much run down." "Nervous prostration or automobile?"—Baltimore American.

"Hullo, Tom! What's this I hear about your having some labor-saving device?" "It's true, all right. I'm going to marry an heiress."—Boston Transcript.

"What is the use of this article?" asked a shopper. "I really don't know," replied the clerk; "I think it is intended to be sold for a Christmas present."—Puck.

"Who was it?" inquired the student, "that said, 'After me, the deluge'?" "Don't ask me," rejoined the superficial person. "I never did pay much attention to weather prophets."—Washington Star.

"I see a number of magazines scattered about Pikeley's rooms. He must take a great many." "I don't doubt it in the least. He took four from me last night and I hadn't read one of them."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Seems to me that the lawyers have it easy in life." "Why so?" "The rest of us have to surmount our own obstacles. But if a lawyer strikes one, he applies to some judge and has it set aside."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Optimist.
Gilman Hall, magazine editor of New York, said of the war:

"It doesn't pay to be optimistic in considering this horrid war. Yes, it's a pretty rotten world that will stand for a war like this. Optimists, anyway, come to a bad end. A preacher in a poorhouse said as he buried an optimist the other day:

"Ah, what an optimist the world loses in deceased! Once he failed in business, but thanked heaven he had his health. Another time he failed in health, but thanked heaven he had his business. Then, just before he entered here, he failed in health and business simultaneously, and said:

"Oh, well, what good is the one without the other?"—New York Post.

Trying Out.
Chief Justice Doherty, relates the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph, used to relate an experience which befell him during a visit to a country house in Ireland. His friend, the host, sent a car to the railway to bring him to the place. He had not gone far when the horse became restless and finally upset the car into a ditch. The judge asked the driver how long the animal had been in harness.

"Half an hour, sir." "I mean, how long since he was first put in harness?" "Shure, I've told you—half an hour, sir," answered the driver. "an' the master said if he carried ye safe he'd buy him."

What He Enjoyed.
Harris Dickson, on a hunting trip in Sutherland county, Mississippi, met an old darkey who had never seen a circus in his life. When the big show came in the following season to Dickson's town of Vicksburg he sent for the old man and treated him to the whole thing—arrival of the train, putting up the tents, grand free street parade, monologues, mail performance, concert, side show, peanuts, red lemonade and all. The old darkey followed his white patron through with popping eyes, but saying never a word. Late in the afternoon they got back to the Dickson home.

"John," said Dickson, "you enjoyed it?" "Boss," said John fervently. "Ah shore did!" "What did you like the most?" "Mistah Dickson," answered John, "Ah shore liked him all." "Well, what impressed you the most?" "Well, sah, boss," he said, "Ah reckon it was dat dere animal you calls de camel." "The camel, eh? Well, what was so remarkable about the camel?" "He suttin'ly got such a noble smell!"—Saturday Evening Post.

English Writers' Ignorance.
Duke Chalmers, the essayist, was talking about war writers. "A great gist of English literary hacks," he said, "were thrown out of regular work when the war began, and so they all turned themselves into 'our military correspondent,' and laded out optimists soothing syrup to the public in the daily press at a guinea a column.

"One writer reminds me of the young lady who once carried on a silly naval argument with Admiral Mahan at a dinner. A third person said to her in some astonishment: "Why, how well you talk up to the admiral on these abstruse naval topics!" "Oh," said the young lady, "I've only been concealing my ignorance." "Not at all," said Admiral Mahan, gallantly. "Quite the contrary."—New York Times.

Spacious Offices in Small Areas

Like the well-furnished home, the modern office should so utilize its available space that it never creates the impression of being overcrowded. Congestion always suggests disorder.

Interruptions to important business deals, aggravating delays and clerical mistakes are frequently caused by poorly planned offices, using unstandardized and different makes of filing cabinets that neither match up or harmonize on the outside, nor afford a uniform efficient service on the inside.

As will be noted in both these illustrations, these offices are not larger than those in the average business block; yet they create the impression of ample room for transacting business without interference.

We represent the leading manufacturers of the country on standard lines of

Desks Chairs Tables
Also Globe-Wernicke Filing Cabinets

Made in selected grades of choice quartered oak, and mahogany, also in Steel, enamelled to match interior trims of oak and mahogany.

We will duplicate from stock, all the office equipments illustrated in the ad inserted in this week's Saturday Evening Post by The Globe-Wernicke Co., or modify it, according to your individual ideas and requirements.

The teacher of typewriting is an expert typist.

The Moran Business School has been a success from the start and is rapidly attaining prominence which may readily be seen by the fine class of young men and women who are now in attendance.

The responsible positions now held by recent graduates attest the fact of thorough preparation and a knowledge of how to go ahead without being told. They are fully equipped and able to make their way in the business world.

Special classes will be formed for the shorthand commercial and English courses Monday, Jan. 24 and 31 for graduates of parochial or public schools and others who wish to enter the mid-winter term. Registration begins immediately for both day and evening sessions.

Number of students enrolled since July 1, 1915, 80.

Isidor Jacobson, a graduate of the commercial department of Moran Business School has obtained a position as bookkeeper and assistant manager with his father, Max Jacobson, clothier, Hasbrouck avenue.

Albert Katz, having completed the commercial course at the Moran Business School, has a position in the office of his father, Aaron Katz, wholesale iron, Hasbrouck avenue.

If your coal bin could talk!

Would it tell a tale of savings? Would it tell a tale of the heat you get or the coal you waste? Would it say that you have a coal eater instead of a sure heater? If every coal bin had a voice it would shout to its owner: "Invest immediately in the great coal-economizing outfit of

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

The fuel economy of IDEAL Boilers is the result of accurately placed fire surfaces, inner flues, and corrugated fire pots which admit the air in proper amounts for the complete combustion of the rich gases from the fuel. Too much or too little air wastes or kills the fire. The construction of IDEAL Boilers gets all the heat out of the fuel you burn--makes the smallest amount of coal produce the maximum volume of heat.

The Labor Savings of IDEAL Boilers depend upon their generous fire pots, which hold sufficient fuel to last, without shoveling coal and refilling, for periods of time from 8 to 24 hours--depending on severity of weather.

Complete and pleasant winter comfort is had without the ever-present thought of lugging coal and ashes and the constant fussing with the fire. These are all forgotten in the smooth, even, and easy operation of IDEAL Boilers, even through blizzards

A No. 4-19-W IDEAL Boiler and 270 sq. ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $135, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent fitter. This did not include cost of labor, pipes, valves, freight, etc., which vary according to climatic and other conditions.

An unfailing, stationary Vacuum Cleaner--in sizes now at $150 up!

You should know about our ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner, for dustless, complete cleaning of rooms, furnishings, etc. Sits in basement or sideroom and cleans through iron suction pipe running to each floor. Easily put in OLD buildings. Fully GUARANTEED. Lasts as long as the building--like radiator heating. Send for catalog.

Painless Extractions

During the year 1915 the Cady Dental Offices in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown performed over ten thousand extractions. These operations were painless. Local Anaesthetics were used in the majority of cases but nitrous-oxide gas in a few. This wonderful record should make a deep impression on those who have teeth which require extraction and desire to have the operation done painlessly.

UNCONTACTFUL ADAMS

The Pathetic Unpopularity of Our Second President.

HE WAS VAIN AND GLAD OF IT

Then, Too, He Had an Obstinate Personality That Endowed Him With a Positive Genius For Putting Himself in the Worst Possible Light.

The choleric John Adams had been president for more than two years, but as long as Washington lived the country refused to look upon any one else as its real head.

The way of the transgressor may be hard indeed, but it is a path of roses compared with the thorny road the successor to a popular idol must tread, and when one reads the frankly expressed opinion of Adams' party friends and party enemies one's sympathies go out to the man upon whom Washington's residential mantle fell.

His superlative "highness" was the object of the opposition had suggested him in the days when discussion raged as to what the high officials of the government were to be called. Life's great learning, great patriotism and an unquenchable spirit, but overlying and enveloping them all was a positive genius for doing and saying untactful things, for appearing at the worst possible advantage.

A member of his cabinet once said of him that whether he was "sportful, playful, witty, kind, cold, drunk, sober, merry, easy, stiff, jealous, careless, cautious, confident, close or open" he was "almost always so in the wrong place and with the wrong person."

The kindly Franklin characterized him as "always honest, sometimes great, but often mad." One less genial remarked that even in his soberest moments Adams was "the greatest marplot in nature." And John Hanolph of Rhode Island, whose tongue added the poison of ridicule to the bitterness of gall, called him "that political Malvolio."

Adams thought Washington's talents overrated and on becoming president in his turn was ambitious to make a record brilliant enough to overshadow him. It was certainly no easy task, even without the handicap of Adams' obstinate personality.

He knew that he was vain. "Thank God I am so," he exclaimed. "Vanity is the cardinal drop which makes the other cup of life so down." But it had its lingering after taste, and justly proud of his record—bavins, as one of his biographers puts it, "stepped from his little country law office and played himself a match for the diplomats of Europe"—Adams resented the narrow margin by which he had been elected, calling himself with some bitterness "the president of three votes only."

A vice president can be removed by a simple vote of crime or physical incapacity, and Jefferson remained, an opponent and a friend, on Adams' side. Adams had found it hard to learn and accept the passive role demanded by the office, and he evidently took some satisfaction in the pressing the same un congenial lesson upon his successor.

Jefferson asserted that he was never consulted upon any question of government after Adams had been two days in power. And he did not make the charge in the humorous mood of a water incumbent, who used to declare that his chief had asked his advice "only once and that was about the wording of a Thanksgiving proclamation."

"I believe he always liked me," Adams admitted in a retrospect of his long career, "but he detested Hamilton and my whole administration. Then, he wished to be president of the United States, and I stood in his way. So he did everything that he could to pull me down. But if I should quarrel with him for that I might quarrel with every one I had anything to do with in life. . . . Did you ever hear the 'Loves'?"

"I love my friend as well as you, but why should he obstruct my view? I forgive my enemies and hope they may find mercy in heaven."—"Our Nation in the Building," by Helen Nichols, in Century Magazine.

Wesley's Father and Wesley. One clergyman well known to fame who took snuff and loved his pipe was Samuel Wesley, rector of Epworth, Lincolnshire, from 1697 to 1735. He not only smoked his pipe, but sang in praise:

In these long mornings, when I'm freezing time, What can compare with a tobacco pipe? Pruned, cocked and touched, 't would better heat a man

Than the Bath fagots or Scotch warm-ing pan.

Samuel's greater son, John Wesley, did not share the parental love of a pipe. He spoke of the use of tobacco as "an indecent and unwholesome self indulgence" and described snuffing as a "silly, nasty, dirty custom."—Westminster Gazette.

What the Well Revealed. One of the first deep wells drilled in the west was put down nearfluxley, Nev., by the Central Pacific railway in 1881, in a search for good water. The boring reached a depth of 2,750 feet, but the water obtained was of very unsatisfactory quality. At 1,700 feet the drill encountered a bed of "petrified clams," and the record states that at 1,400 feet well preserved "redwood timber" was found.—Argonaut.

Not only strike when the iron is hot, but make it hot by striking.—Oliver Cromwell.

Almost Forgotten Name.

Have you ever heard of the state of Renzawa? No, it is not an Indian principality but the name applied in the original ordinance of separation, to what is now West Virginia. The latter name having been decided on finally by the convention which framed the constitution.

STORING VEGETABLES.

Instructions For Indoor and Outdoor Storage in Winter.

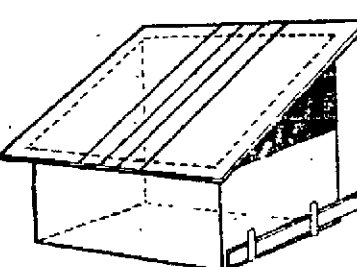

The basement is often the best place on the farm for storing vegetables, says R. S. Gardner of the University of Missouri. It must be properly built and the temperature, moisture and ventilation conditions kept right. If it is too warm the vegetables will dry and shrivel, and if the ventilation is poor drops of water will form and the vegetables will be more likely to decay. If there is a furnace in the cellar the storage room should be far enough away so that it can be kept cool, and during very cold weather the door may be opened to prevent freezing.

Outdoor storage is better if the basement is too small or if it has not been built so that the temperature and other conditions can be properly controlled. The vegetables may be gathered and piled as closely together as possible and covered with a little straw at first and more heavily as the weather grows colder until severe weather comes, when six inches of soil should be added. An opening should be left at the top for ventilation. Cabbage should be arranged in long piles, the bottom layer three heads wide and the second layer two heads wide. Leave the heads untrimmed and pile with the stems and roots on.

Root crops may be stored outside much as cabbages are. Both should be covered with several inches of straw and the straw covered with dirt. In severe weather a layer of manure should be added. But it must be removed in milder weather to prevent heating and the condensation of moisture into water drops. Such outdoor storage is inconvenient because it is so difficult to select a day on which the pile can be opened without freezing some or all of the vegetables stored. This can be remedied in part by making long piles which can be opened without exposing much more of the contents to the cold than is to be removed to shelter at once.

If a little celery has been grown it may be left in the row if the exposed tops are covered with straw and then with earth when the weather becomes severe. It is better to pull the stalks and then replant them as close together as possible in a long bed three feet wide on a high, well drained ground. The edges of the bed are banked with earth to the top of the stalks, and an A shaped roof rests on the banks. This roof is tight except for a narrow strip at the ridge, which is left open for ventilation. The banks and roof are covered with straw or strawy manure to which six inches of soil should be added when severe weather comes.

A Sanitary Coop. This drawing shows the plan of chicken coop we designed and have been using for the last ten years. The coops are made in the winter time when the men are not busy with other work. They are made of twelve and six inch soft pine boards. There are twenty-three inches long, eighteen inches wide, eighteen inches high in front and a foot high at the back. The roof extends over the side walls about three inches on all sides, writes Mrs. S. M. Pophart in the Farmers' Mail and Breeze.

The floors are hinged out, as shown, and the coops are painted inside and out. Wire screen is put in the ends, as shown, to provide ventilation. The little side door permits chicks to come and go. The material in each coop costs about $1. We use the coops from year to year, as they are cleaned out every fall and put away in the dry during the winter. I have never yet lost a chicken in these coops, either by drowning, smothering or through having some animal get in.

MARKET GARDENING.

A Cambria county (Pa.) grower of late cabbage stores annually a large quantity of Danish ball head in the stables of a barn which are not used at all for live stock. By giving careful attention to ventilation the cabbage keeps in very good condition, and the barn is always comfortable for packing and loading the cabbage.

Swiss chard roots, taken from my garden a few weeks ago and planted in the cellar, are making a fine growth. A good crop of leaves can be picked at any time, says a well known grower.

A farmer living near Williamsport, Pa., sold all his golden bantam sweet corn last year—grown in succession—at a uniform price of 25 cents a dozen. Every ear represented the highest quality.

Is the celery keeping all right in the trenches? Ventilation may be needed on warm days. Grade the root crops before sending them to market. They will command higher prices and help to win regular customers.

Three or four plantings of rhubarb should be made in the cellar during the winter months in order to obtain a succession of this product.

If soil is not available for the planting of rhubarb in the cellar coal ashes—other huminous or antiseptic—will be found very satisfactory.—R. L. Waits in National Stockman and Farmer.

Spreading the Gospel.

On the continent of Africa alone the New Testament, or parts of it, have been translated into 148 languages and dialects. The two latest additions are Dabida—a language of British East Africa—and Limba—the language of a tribe in the hinterland of Sierra Leone.

Ventilation of Engine Rooms.

For ventilating engine rooms, large electric fans are employed. So, too, the coal bunkers have to be ventilated, owing to the gas which the coal gives off. This gas when mixed with air forms an explosive; so, in order to prevent the possibility of injury to men at ship, a supply and an exhaust pipe are fitted in such a manner to cause a current of air.

English Coroners.

The office of the English coroner is one of the oldest recognized by the common law, having been mentioned as "coronator" in the rule of King Athelstane, in the tenth century; but his duties no longer include inquests into the death of "royal fish," such as the whale and the sturgeon, that function having been repealed by the coroners' act of 1887.

Preferred the Work.

"Why didn't you quit work and go fishing?" "I tried that once," replied Mr. Restagin. "It getting up at five o'clock in the morning and traveling out to a fishing place and falling into a boat and maybe out of it, and sitting in suspense by the hour in order to land a two-ounce fish are what you call rest and recreation, give me the work."

Wormwood.

There is a great deal of wormwood grown in this country. The perennial weed, which has an angular stem, two to three feet high, and silky, hoary leaves and yellow flowers, is now used in the manufacture of absinthe. It was formerly used as a vermifuge and to protect clothing and furniture from moths and insects. It is very bitter.

Creaseless Packing.

When preparing to pack a trunk have four or five pieces of cardboard the size of your trunk, so that they will slip in easily. Wrap dresses or blouses in tissue paper and attach them to these boards with tape. You can then pack and unpack many times and your dresses will not be disturbed, but will come out when needed as fresh as when first packed.

The amount of fur to trim some of the afternoon gowns is astonishing. This elaborate afternoon gown is of gold colored georgette crepe combined with panne velvet in the same tone. The manner in which the crepe is introduced in the tunic and sleeves is noteworthy. Black lynx fur forms a detachable collar, muff, cuffs and a border on the skirt.

Constructive Legislation.

First Lawyer—What makes you think we shall not be able to get this law passed by the legislature? Second Lawyer—It's too simple. Almost any one can understand it. It ought to be so complex and vague that nobody can understand it. Then it is bound to pass, because nobody would admit that he didn't understand it.—New York Sun.

Siam's Royal Palace.

One of the most remarkable buildings in the world is the palace of the king of Siam. It is inclosed in dazzlingly white walls over a mile in circumference. Within these walls are temples, public offices, seraglios, stable for the sacred elephant, accommodation for a thousand troops, cavalry, war elephants and an arsenal. There is also a very fine theater.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sheldon spent Sunday last at Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Krom's.

This place, as many other places, is in the clutch of an epidemic of grip, which when seated on one member of a family does not stop until every member of a family has contracted it. Among those who have been suffering from its effects are Mrs. Hanna Bush, Mrs. John Markle, Dorothy Markle, David Markle, Mrs. Samuel Jameson and two children and Miss Gertrude Markle.
Charles Winchell is still keeping his bed.
Alonso Krom is laid up with a bad shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Markle have started keeping house in John's James Markle's house with the household goods they had given to them by friends, as they had the misfortune of having had their furniture destroyed by fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon DuBois and daughter spent Sunday last at Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jensen of Kromville.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Jensen called on Mrs. Simon DuBois Monday last.

Those who are putting ice in their ice houses are James Brown, John Markle, James Deccio and Lester Davis of Tongore.

Jenson Wells is working for John Markle filling an ice house.

R. Hendricks is having the wood cut off Boss Reed's wood lot.

H. H. Markle has sold his hay to Elmer Palen of Kingston.

VIRTUE OF A GOOD LAUGH.
A Tonic That Stimulates the Body and All its Organs.

There is not the remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood vessels of the human body that does not feel some wavelet from the convulsion occasioned by good hearty laughter.

The life principle, or the central man, is shaken to the innermost depths, sending new tides of life and strength to the surface, thus materially tending to insure good health to the persons who indulge therein.

The blood moves more rapidly and conveys a different impression to all the organs of the body as it visits them on that particular mystic journey when the man is laughing from what it does at other times.

For this reason every good, hearty laugh in which a person indulges lengthens his life, conveying, as it does, new and distinct stimulus to the vital forces.

Doubtless the time will come when physicians, conceding more importance than they now do to the influence of the mind upon the vital forces of the body, will make up their prescriptions more with reference to the mind and less to drugs for them and will, in so doing, find the best and most effective method of producing the required effect upon the patient.

RUSSEL KELLY.

FATHER STILL HOPES TO FIND "KELLY OF FOREIGN LEGION."

New York, Jan. 19.—"I believe," said James E. Kelly, father of Russel Kelly, known as Kelly of the Foreign Legion, "that my son is living, and that he is a prisoner somewhere in Germany, and I am convinced of this because of the recent despatches, though one of these despatches report that he was killed in action."

"If I go to France to examine the ground where Russel fought the last fight of his we know about, it will be when the French have advanced from twenty to thirty miles beyond Hill 119 a Souchez. If Russel were living and were in France I'd go to him. If he is a prisoner somewhere in Germany I couldn't of course go to him. But some day I shall see the lay of that land where the 1st Regiment broke through the German lines last summer and fought while surrounded for twenty-four hours."

Kelly's name and that of his four comrades has been printed as in the casualty list at Overychey on June 17. The four other Americans were Edwin Hall of Chicago, John Earle Fike, of Wooster, O., and Kenneth Week, and Henry Farnsworth, of Boston.

Russel Kelly was twenty-two years old and he enlisted in the Foreign Legion of the French army in November, 1914. It was a zest of the game, the love of war that stimulated young Kelly like wine. He romped through war-like experiences as if they were so many football games.

Shopping In Europe.

Visitors from abroad are always surprised at the lateness of the hour at which London shops are opening. In all large towns on the continent shops are open and in working order at 8 o'clock or earlier. But in London one frequently sees a sleepy eyed porter taking down the shutters at 9, while a walk down Oxford street or Regent street at this hour necessitates constant vigilance to avoid the debris and litter of the day before which is being turned out of the half opened establishments.—London Spectator.

The Oil In Tobacco.

Although the Havana or Havana seed tobaccos are low in nicotine, they are high in oil. The settlement in a pipe stem or the brown stain obtained from blowing tobacco smoke through the meshes of a handkerchief is not nicotine, as commonly supposed, but is in reality tobacco oil, nicotine only being obtained in extract by an elaborate process of distillation and double distillation. The oil in cigar tobacco prevents the smoke being inhaled, as it would cause a strangulation and painful irritation.

A Delicious Cup of Tea.

If you want to keep your friends guessing get from your druggist an eighth of a pound of dried orange blossoms (they are very expensive) and steep two or three to a cupful along with your tea leaves. Omit sugar, lemon or cream, as either clogs the delicate flavor of the orange buds. Be sure you get them strictly fresh and from a receptacle tightly covered and keep them air tight yourself. This novel idea was introduced into smart studios by a clever Frenchwoman and proved very popular.

ALL WAR LANES LEAD TO BOULOGNE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—"From Dover, Folkestone, Brighton and Portsmouth, all war lanes across the English Channel lead to Boulogne, the great port for the western entente battle line, safe behind the long rows of trenches in the north and made the principal point for import from England of vast stores of munitions and a steady stream of troops," begins a primer just prepared by the National Geographic Society, which describes the harbor to which the war has brought its most brisk import business. "Boulogne is a vitally important point in the line opposing the Germans in the west; it is the funnel through which the British Empire is pouring its contribution to the energies expended on the first of the war theaters."

"The French port, always very English and now almost as cosmopolitan as Paris, lies upon the narrow stretch of the channel, 22 miles southwest of Calais, and only 28 miles by sea southeast of the busy English harbor of Folkestone. Paris, with which the city is connected by a brilliant express service over the tracks of the Northern Railway, lies 137 miles in the south-southeast. Portsmouth-Boulogne is the most direct line of communication between the great British arsenal and the firing line through Flanders, Artois, Picardy and Champagne. The river Liane divides the town, and the improvement at its mouth provides excellent harbors for the unusual stress of shipping that the war has brought about."

"Boulogne has always had more or less close relation with England, friendly and unfriendly. It was even suggested that it was the Portus Itius where Julius Caesar assembled his fleet. In modern times, Boulogne has been the Englishman's favorite way into France, and before the war, the passengers from Folkestone to Boulogne totaled about 300,000 annually. The trans-Atlantic liners of the Hamburg-American and the Holland-American companies, also made Boulogne a calling point. English business interests in France were largely represented at this port, and the English colony at the outbreak of the war numbered more than 1,500. It has long been said that Boulogne is the most English city on the continent, and before the war was many months old, the English language and English ways became the accepted currency of the place."

In 1804, Napoleon I selected Boulogne as the starting point for an invasion of England. He assembled an army of 150,000 men and a vast assortment of war stores here for this purpose. The invincible general was fated to fall before his genius that he had coins struck with which to pay his soldiers on the other side of the channel and inscribed them "minted in London." He also began a column of victory here to commemorate the conquest about to be realized of his most treacherous opponent, Marshal Soult. Ney, Durovaux and Victor were to lead the invaders. The harbors of Boulogne were completely hidden under the bulks of the many vessels, upon which the expedition was to be transported. A flotilla of 2,413 craft of all sizes had been gathered at the port.

"Preparations for the invasion were admirably made, and the troops waited only for the coming of the protecting French fleets from Antwerp, Brest, Cadix and the harbors of the Mediterranean to convey them to the island battlefields. The units of these fleets had been in the course of construction for several years for the express purpose of aiding in the decision against England; for the Little Cornet, willing to divide the world with Alexander of Russia, knew from the beginning that his interests and those of Britain could never be reconciled. The French fleets never assembled at Boulogne, and the victory at Nelson at Trafalgar in 1805 forever shattered Napoleon's hopes for the invasion. The column of victory, however, was finished in 1841, and it is crowned by a fine statue of the emperor."

"Boulogne was an important commercial harbor before the present war. It ranked fourth among the seaports of France, after Marseille, Le Havre and Bordeaux. It imported jute, wool, skins, thread, coal, timber, iron and steel for the factories of highly industrial northern France; and it exported woven goods, skins, motor cars, forage, cement and wines. It also assembled the fancy vegetables and fine table fruits for the London markets and export. The average annual value of its exports was $50,000,000, and that of its imports $30,000,000. It was the first fishing port of France, receiving and preparing great quantities of herring and mackerel. A large proportion of the best grades of Spanish mackerel sold in the world's markets bear the trade marks of Boulogne. The most important manufacture of this great war port during peace times, strange to say, is that of steel pens, which industry was introduced from England in 1846. It is the chief city in France for this manufacture, and, therefore, probably its greatest fame should be that of pointing the most brilliant pens in the world's most brilliant country."

ST. REMY.

St. Remy, Jan. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Deyo returned from New York last night. Mrs. Deyo has been spending two weeks in the city. Mrs. Harry Ellsworth entertained her Sunday school class of boys last Thursday night.

Those who were ill with grip last week are convalescent. The leader of the C. E. next Sunday night will be Mrs. Kathryn Sutton. Topic, "Amusement that is Worth While." Eccl. 3:1-10. Mrs. Emma Kuhoupt is staying in Kingston for some time. Mrs. David Ackerman is nursing at Sahler's Sanitarium. Charles York and family were at Esopus on Sunday.

The Woman of Today

It is only hearsay that we have to go on today, for we have no notion of who it was that pointed out the value of learning to "part with things as they go." But lest you, gentle reader, be one of those to whom the idea is new we frankly borrow the phrase and pass it along.

Now, we all know that many a fine sermon has been preached on the text of "Taking things as they come." How diligently have we been admonished in this respect and how often. Our friendly advisers love to say to us, "Oh, do not worry; just learn to take things as they come." Exactly so, and a sane method of procedure it is since we cannot affect their coming and cannot tell what fortunes or misfortunes the morrow may hold.

But if this be wise why then must we not also learn the lesson of "parting with things as they go," as gracefully and as easily as we strive to accept their coming? For things do go in this world, often just when we want them to stay.

An excellently trained man once lost an excellent position unjustly. It was not a light matter, but when it went he parted with it and let it go, as much as to say: "So much for that; that's done with. Now, what next?" And of course eventually he found the next thing, just as we all are bound to do.

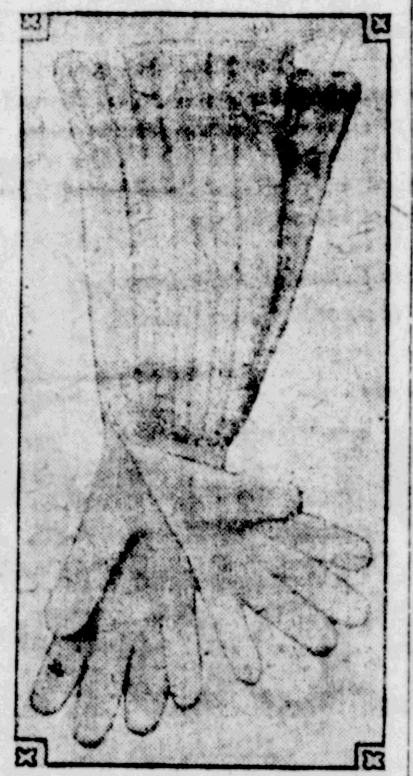

It doesn't make any difference what it is, when things go let's learn to part with them, not to hang on to them and prolong the agony of their going. "Men die and worms do eat them, but not for love," we often hear. But, alas, it is for love that women do, indeed, almost die—or, in fact, over love's going.

And over how many things do women allow grief to eat out their very hearts when the art of learning to part with things as they go would have saved the day. If it's gone, why, let it go, whether it's a lost love or an heirloom, a lost position or a week's pay.

Let's learn to say, "Well, that's gone, done for, over with"—and so with a wave of the hand, "Farewell. What's next?"

Baked Apple Dumplings.

Select tart apples, pare and core them and cut in quarters. Three large apples should make six dumplings. The dough is made as follows: Two and a half cups of flour, one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Sift these ingredients together. Rub two-thirds cupful of lard into the flour and mix with enough cold water to make a dough which can be easily handled. Divide the dough in six parts and roll each part out large enough to hold the apples. When the dough is rolled put the apples in the center and fold the dough over it, placing the ends together. Bake in a shallow buttered dish in a moderate oven and serve with cream and sugar.

Devil's Food Cake.

Yolk of egg, one-quarter bar of chocolate or four teaspoonfuls of cocoa, one-half cupful of sweet milk. Cook this until smooth; cool. Add four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of sweet milk, in which dissolve one teaspoonful of soda, one and one-half or two cupfuls of flour. Filling: One-fourth of a bar of chocolate or four teaspoonfuls of cocoa, dissolved in one cupful of boiling water; one cupful of light brown sugar, one tablespoonful of butter and one heaping tablespoonful of cornstarch. Cook this until it thickens. Let cool. Add vanilla and nut meats.

Outside of Probability.

15 WEAK POINTS OF THE U. S. NAVY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Upon motion of Senator Tillman, chairman of the naval affairs committee, the senate today made public the report of Admiral Fletcher, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, showing the fifteen chief weaknesses of the United States navy.

As given in Admiral Fletcher's report the weaknesses are:

- A—Shortage of officers.
- B—Shortage of men.
- C—Lack of fast armored ships and fast light cruisers.
- D—Limitation of mobility and sea going qualities of submarines.
- E—Lack of air craft.
- F—Lack of radio direction finder.
- G—Too frequent overhauling of battleships.
- H—Necessity of maintaining full complement in active ships of the fleet.
- I—Need of additional mining and sweeping vessels.
- J—Desirability of mobilizing ships in reserve annually with the active fleet.
- K—Need of naval target practice at long ranges.
- L—Necessity for increased facilities at fleet rendezvous.
- M—Provision for division commanders for mining division and auxiliary division.
- N—Provision for more speed in design of fighting craft intended to operate with the fleet.
- O—Need of anti-air craft guns.

CLINTONDALE.

Clinton, Jan. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Melford Hurd are entertaining a young son that arrived at their home on New Year's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tallman spent a few days last week at Lake Katrine.

The subject for the morning service in the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene on the coming Sunday will be, "The Spirit of Humility." That of the evening will be, "Life." On Friday night in the prayer service it will be shown that every believer should be sanctified because the Bible was given for this purpose. Special music. All are invited.

Hasbrouck Ellis and family spent Friday with friends at Walden.

Mrs. Judson Thompson spent a few days last week in Newburgh.

John Sutton of New York city visited his mother, Mrs. Wallace Thomas the past week.

Mrs. Wallace Thomas, who has been ill with pneumonia, is recovering.

Miss Lola Ackert has been entertaining her friend, Miss Ruth Palmer of Dutchess county the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins entertained some friends at their home on Thursday evening of last week. On Monday evening, Jan. 10, the Grange held an installation of officers. Those who had recently been elected were: Master, Walter Tallman; overseer, Oscar Mount; secretary, Wells Weaver; treasurer, Charles Gildersleeve; chaplain, M. W. Elmendorf; lecturer, Mrs. Graham E. Hurd; Ceres, Mrs. Oscar Mount; Pomona, Mrs. Walter Tallman; Flora, Mrs. Luther Terwilliger; steward, Frank Terhune; assistant steward, Mr. Alsdorf; gate keeper, Eber Palmer. At the close of the ceremony a social hour was spent and delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Hannah Van Nostrand has been ill.

KERHONKSON.

Kerhonkson, Jan. 19.—John Geary has bought the house and lot of Edward Smith, better known as the A. B. Frost place.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bush of Accord spent Sunday at C. B. Burger's.

Jesse Boice has moved in his new house. His brother has moved in the house he vacated, and will run the grist mill for Mr. Boice.

Cyrus Schoonmaker and Miss Mary Thompson are sick with the grip.

Five new members were taken in the A. J. Anderson Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., on Saturday evening. There are a few more yet to be taken in.

There will be a home talent entertainment in the K. of P. Hall, January 26, for the benefit of the Reformed Church. Everybody welcome. Title, "The District School."

The ladies of the M. E. Church, Willing Workers, will have what is called a measuring party on January 19, in the basement of the church. Five cents will be charged for every foot you're in height. Ice cream, sandwiches and coffee will be served.

Edward Van Demark is able to be around, after being confined with grip and neuralgia.

Anyone wanting upholstery done will do well to call on James Doyle, as he is a first-class hand at it, and has plenty on hand all the time.

Our post office is to be changed the first of February. There could not be a better place in town chosen than where it is. H. M. Anderson has always conducted it in the best of order. The majority of people are sorry to have it moved.

Examinations are being held in our village school this week.

We are going to have a bank in Kerhonkson. Edward Smiley is to be the president. The incorporators are John Van Kleeck, James Lundrigan, George Sheldon, H. M. Anderson, Jason Decker and others. The site for the building has not been located yet.

OLD HOME SINGERS.

The Old Home Singers, who are to fill a big Lyceum season this year, make a specialty in their programs of carrying their audiences back to childhood scenes and recollections.

Of the five young artists who comprise this company each is a soloist of pleasing quality, capable of singing the heart songs. They form a mixed quartet, capable of superb ensemble work, as is evidenced by their artistic rendering of the quartet from "Rigoletto." That they meet the requirements of the program perfectly is shown in the many reports already received from committees.

At the opening of the program the five young people have just returned from a musical where a song composed by one of the young men has proved to be the hit of the season.

Following the congratulations, a discussion starts regarding the music of today. By way of illustration they sing selections from grand opera, oratorio music, sentimental ballads, rag-time, topical songs, novelty songs—the different types which are now sung. These young artists then agree that the most beautiful and best loved of all are the heart songs, which are endeared to us through past association. They plan an evening of the old songs. The men appear in the costume of 1870 and in a very mirth provoking fashion are trying to accustom themselves to the clothes of their grandfathers. The girls have been rummaging in the attic and enter beautiful in the quaint dresses of that time, "with sixty yards of lace on the ruffles," as grandmother had said. The costuming and staging carry us in fancy, back to the days of long ago. The serious songs, the sentimental, the humorous, the songs we nearly have forgotten, the songs mother used to sing, all come back to give us a variety of program seldom heard today.

Among those which may be named as typical are: "Sweet Genevieve," "The Old Oak Bucket," "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," "Ben Bolt," "Pop Goes the Weasel," "Captain Jinks" and many songs sung with games, such as "Old Dan Tucker."

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, Jan. 19.—Mrs. John Zimmer, who has been sick with grip, is better.

The Rev. Mr. Hoag of Saugerties gave a very interesting sermon last Sunday. There will be services as usual next Sunday.

Raymond T. Osterhoudt was married to Miss Helen Van Gansbeek of Kingston last Friday afternoon at half past six by the Rev. W. F. Stowe. The young couple, who have many friends both here and in Kingston, have their best wishes for a long and happy life.

Work is being rushed at the Jersey house to get it ready for filling. Grip, which is so prevalent in so many places, has made its appearance here.

William Kieffer has sold one hundred cords of wood to Mr. Goldrick, and has been hauling it out.

Danish West Indies.

The Danish West Indies, comprising the three islands, St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John, have an aggregate area of 133 square miles. The 28,000 inhabitants, most of whom are of the negro race, are engaged in the cultivation of sugar cane, cotton, fruit and vegetables.

Greatest Discovery.

Say what you may, and believe any old theory you like, but the fact remains that the world's greatest discovery is human nature.—Toledo Blade.

BRITISH CRUISER TAKES A GERMAN SPY OFF A SHIP AT SEA.

Remarkable photograph taken on board the Lamport and Holt steamship Vauban on November 30 when the British Cruiser Vindictive stopped the liner while enroute from Bahia, Brazil, to New York, and made a prisoner of Konrad Muenchstein, alleged to be a German Naval Officer, who broke his parole after capture by the Japanese at Raio Chow, and late after arrival in San Francisco became implicated in the conspiracy against American munition plants.

Photograph shows the prisoner, Muenchstein, waving his hand to the passengers just before he went over the side into the cruiser's boat. Lieutenant Pope, R. N. R., of the boarding party of the cruiser, with marines, passengers officers and crew of the Vauban are also shown. The cruiser Vindictive is seen in central background.

SPINOS ASK LEAVE TO EVICT FATHER

The most unusual request ever made to Recorder Lang since he assumed office was that made this morning in recorder's court by Mrs. Raphael Spino and her daughter asking the court to allow them to turn the husband and father out of the family home at No. 65 Andrew street. The request was denied by the court who informed the daughter that he was surprised to find a daughter making such a request and advised them all to go home and try and live in peace.

The mother and father were unable to speak English but the daughter told her mother's side of the story, while it was necessary to have an interpreter to obtain the father's side. From the story as brought out it seems that Mr. Spino came from Italy about ten years ago leaving his wife and family in the old country. Later he sent them money to come across to this country.

About two months ago the family came to Kingston where the children decided to purchase a house and did so. They purchased the property at No. 65 Andrew street, where they have since resided. There are five children, all of whom are working and earning from $5 to $10 a week each.

They lived together peaceably as far as the police know until the other night when three of the children hurried into police headquarters stating that their father was going to shoot their mother. Policemen Phinney and Reardon returned with the children to their home where everything was found quiet and no one killed. The children set upon the father and attempted to beat him up but were separated by the officers. This led to the appearance of the family in recorder's court this morning, the recorder being determined to hear both sides of the story.

The daughter, who accompanied her mother to court this morning said that all the twenty-six years her parents had been married her mother had had to beg bread from door to door while living in Italy as her father refused to work and when he did earn any money he spent it playing cards in a saloon. She said her mother had told her that she had never known her husband as he had come from a long distance but that he had promised to make her a good home when he married her, but he had not kept his word.

She said her father had been arrested once in Italy and had been sent to jail.

Asked how he came to be arrested, Mr. Spino replied through the interpreter that he had got in a fight with a man whom he had told to keep away from his wife and not bother her and in the mix-up the man's leg had been broken and he had been sent to jail for a month.

While the daughter was telling the story both parents interrupted speaking excitedly in Italian with many expressive gestures until the court was forced to rap for order.

"If I was a man like him," said the daughter, pointing to her father, "I'd kill myself." The girl, who grew more excited as she talked, continued "You don't know him, he is crazy."

Finally Recorder Lang said that he had heard enough of how bad Spino was and now he would like to hear how good he was and he had Spino tell his side of the story. He claimed that since his children had got big enough to work and make money they had wanted to get rid of him.

Spino said that he was willing to buy his own clothes but he thought that as he supported his family until they had grown up that they should keep him now.

Here the mother interrupted the story told by her husband, both tried to talk at the same time.

Finally after order had been restored, Spino asked the court if he could not break down the door in case his family would not let him in the house.

He was told that he could not as the house was owned by his children.

After the case had been thoroughly thrashed out Recorder Lang advised them to go home and try to live quietly together. All three left the court room and spent over two hours in the city hall corridor talking the matter over with interested friends who endeavored to have them settle their family affairs amicably.

Just what will be the outcome is not known.

As the matter stands it is a family affair and outside of the jurisdiction of the recorder or the police unless the peace of the neighborhood is threatened.

Partner Has Withdrawn.

An erroneous article in last night's Freeman stated that the Modern Heating Company had filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk, with Frank Walter as one of the partners. A paper was filed by the clerk but it was to the effect that Mr. Walter had withdrawn from the firm, by mutual consent of the three partners, Edward L. Reynolds, Frank Sheridan and Frank Walter.

WAITE TO SPEAK AT C. E. MASS MEETING

An opportunity for all the young people of Kingston to hear Harold A. Waite, state field secretary of the Christian Endeavor Union of New York, will be given on Christian Endeavor Day, Tuesday, February 8, when the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor will hold a mass meeting in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

Mr. Waite who will deliver the address of the evening is well known in Kingston and is one of the best speakers now engaged in Christian Endeavor work. No cause can gain power and strength in a surer or better way than in getting new ideas, the kind which Mr. Waite presents. All who are interested in the growth of the church whether young or old are urged to bear the date in mind and attend this meeting.

The singing at the service will be in charge of Secretary George D. Beckwith of the Y. M. C. A. and another pleasing musical number will be a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith.

MULRONEY CASE ARGUED.

Blacksmith Whose Heart, It Was Asserted, Had Been Displaced.

The case of Charles H. Mulroney against Winston & Company was argued at the appellate division at Albany Tuesday. Mulroney was the chief blacksmith of Winston & Company, the contractors for the Ashokan dam, and had charge of their blacksmith shop in which were the heavy trip hammers, one of which exerted a pressure of sixteen thousand pounds to the square inch and the other seven thousand pounds.

In 1911 the pipe used to supply compressed air and which ran along the side of the shop twelve feet above the floor was disconnected and left upon the brackets which sustained it. Thirty-three months afterwards the pipe fell and hit Mulroney. He claimed that his heart had been displaced, his skull fractured, his hearing affected and that he had sustained permanent injuries and sued to recover twenty-five thousand dollars damages.

The case was first tried before Judge Cochrane and a jury at the court house in this city in December, 1914, when the jury disagreed. It was again tried before Judge Cochrane and a jury in March, 1915, when Mulroney recovered $2,200. Winston & Company appealed, claiming among other things that Mulroney was grossly negligent in not taking the necessary steps to secure the pipe either with cord or wire, which could have been done in thirty seconds, or in not reporting its condition to employes of Winston & Company with the request that it be secured. Also they claimed that he grossly exaggerated the character of his injuries, and that they were not permanent.

The case attracted considerable attention when tried because of the production of X-ray photographs of Mulroney's heart made by Dr. Kemble. At the close of the case, however, Judge Cochrane charged the jury there was no proof that Mulroney's heart had been displaced, his skull fractured or that he had sustained permanent injuries. There were numerous exceptions to the admission and exclusion of testimony. The case was argued by Andrew J. Cook for Mulroney and Judge Clearwater for Winston & Company.

GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL.

Kingston Y. M. C. A. Vocalists Living Up to Their Reputation.

The regular weekly rehearsal and business meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Glee Club was held last evening and was very well attended and although the music is very difficult the club under the able supervision of Mr. Voght, is succeeding in bringing out the best music possible. For those who have heard the Glee Club concerts in former years the club or its character of music needs no introduction. This year's concert will be the third annual concert and the club is planning to give its many friends a bigger and better concert than in either of the preceding years.

It was with regret that the resignation of the Glee Club's secretary, Randall Freer, was accepted. Mr. Freer was a very active member of the club since it organized three years ago, and for the past four months has served most faithfully as secretary. Mr. Freer is employed by the N. Y. Telephone Co. and has very recently been transferred to take up his work in Schenectady. The members of the club wish him much success in his new venture.

Award on Bluestone Co. Claim.

The commission composed of the Hon. William M. Chadbourne of New York city, Cornelius I. Lefever of Rosendale and J. Charles Snyder of this city has filed its report on the claim of the Ulster & Delaware Bluestone Company for parcel No. 868, in the county clerk's office. The parcel was situated at West Hurley, and there was a mill on the property. The commission has awarded $7,200 for the parcel. The claim of the company for business damages was dismissed by the commission. Judge John G. Van Eitten represented the Bluestone Company; William McM. Speer represented the city of New York.

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.—Benjamin Franklin.

IT is well to remember that if you save a cent on a purchase of 5 cents or more you are saving not only a cent, but 20 per cent, which seems more worth while. When using a dozen eggs, as happens in big families often, in others on occasions, try scraping out the eggshells with a spoon. This will give you the amount of one egg and is well worth saving, especially while eggs are so very high.

When eggs are cheap they should be put down for the winter. Packed in water glass, they are just as good for any form of baking and will keep a year if properly done. A quart of water glass added to twelve quarts of boiled and cooled water put into large stone crocks after the eggs are placed will keep them perfectly. The eggs should of course be perfectly fresh and great care taken not to crack them. Cover the jar and keep in a cool place.

One of the common wastes in most homes is the unscrapped mixing bowl. Spatulas may now be bought at the ten cent counter, and a few turns with a spatula will scrape out a dish, often saving the amount of an individual cake or gem or biscuit. If round bottomed mixing bowls are used for the dough mixtures, the scraping process will be much shortened, as the spatula, being flexible, will take up every bit of the dough.

When apples are used if the parings are saved and boiled with a little water, then the water added to equal quantities of sugar and boiled, a glass of jelly or two, which will be fresh and inviting, will be ready for your table.

A LAUNDRY NOTE.

How to Wash Starch For Thin Fabrics and Make Children's Gingham.

One and one-half tablespoonsful of cornstarch, a quart of water, one-half teaspoonful of borax and one-half tablespoonful of shaved paraffin.

The starch is rubbed in a little cold water, and then into it the quart of freshly boiled water is stirred. Let it cook for two minutes, stirring all the time. When it turns slightly blue add paraffin and borax and cook a minute, stirring hard, but taking care not to scorch it. Strain through double cheese-cloth, add enough bluing water to color the starch and then bottle it.

Colored materials have to be "set" before being laundered—that is, allowed to soak overnight in the proper solution before washing. After being set they are washed in warm water with a white soap, never with a brown alkali soap. Washing must be done quickly and the garments dried indoors.

Solutions to be used to "set" colored fabrics:

Pink, brown and black—two cupfuls of salt to one gallon of cold water.

Blue—one-half cupful of salt to a gallon of cold water.

Green, purple, lavender—a tablespoonful of sugar of lead to one gallon of water.

Mixed goods, blue, green, brown—a cupful of turpentine to a gallon of water.

How to Nip a Cold Before It Gets a Hold on You.

If you find you have caught cold in spite of precaution, nip it in the bud. The time to attack a cold in order to cure it is at the very start. At the first sniffle or the first cough begin to fight it. Drink plenty of fresh water, eat lightly and get plenty of sleep.

Before going to bed take a hot bath and drink a hot lemonade. Then cover up warmly and be sure there is no draft between the windows and the door, but have the windows open enough to get plenty of air in the room. This treatment will probably cause you to perspire freely, and you must be careful not to throw off the covers and expose your overheated body to more cold.

If this treatment is taken at the start and carefully adhered to it will probably drive the cold right out of your system. But if you do not treat it at the very beginning it will have to run its course gradually.

How to Relieve Certain Pains by Homemade Remedies.

Mustard is the nearest approach to a universal cure-all. Few pains will not give way before a mustard plaster, and a wide range of internal inflammations from colds and other causes may be stopped by its timely application. It is the first and best resort in threatened pneumonia.

Hot milk, heated to as high a temperature as it can be drunk, is a most refreshing stimulant in cases of cold or over fatigue. Its action is very quick and grateful. It gives real strength, as well as acting as a food.

How to Fashion a Gold Braided Collar That Is So Modish.

Gold braided collars are distinctly smart with simple little trotter frocks of dark neutral toned pussy willow or felle classique. The collar is usually of white silk and is edged all around with flat, doll gilt braid about half an inch wide. From the points of the collar, and most collars have points these days, depend tiny gold tassels.

Helpful Suggestion.

"My brain is on fire!" tragically exclaimed Johnson as he threw himself down upon the sofa and held his head. "Why don't you blow it out?" absent mendedly asked his roommate.—Lehigh Burr.

"Absent"

with "Crossing the Bar," Columbia 10-inch Double-Disc Record A1891, 75c.

If you should find yourself unusually quiet as the final notes of "Absent" die away, it will be no more than a tribute to the beauty of what we believe is unqualifiedly the most effective and artistic male quartette singing to be found in any catalog. The tone, the blending, the very breath pauses are eloquent in tenderness. The same unanimity of purpose and perfection of results is found in the singing of the Columbia Mixed Quartette in "Crossing the Bar," a companion piece to "Absent."

Is Life Worth Living?

It Depends Upon the Liver.

Wrong living is the cause of most physical ills and generally stomach and liver are first to suffer.

Coffee drinking is a very common cause of digestive disorder, but it usually takes the user some time to fully realize it. Fact is—some people drink coffee with seeming impunity, but when disturbances of the digestive organs result in headache, biliousness, irritability and other common symptoms of caffeine poisoning it's time for the coffee drinker to look to his morning beverage for the true cause.

For any coffee drinker who finds that his health is wrong, but don't know just why, it's a good idea to quit the coffee and use

—the pure food-drink

Made of wheat and a small amount of molasses, Postum has a rich, snappy flavour much like that of mild Java coffee yet contains no caffeine (the drug in coffee) nor other harmful element.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum is soluble in boiling water and can be made in the cup at table. Both kinds are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

A change from coffee to Postum is a good move toward right living.

HALLORAN TO REMOVE OLD ACADEMY

The trustees of Kingston Academy have received bids for the removal of the old building and the contract has been awarded Peter J. Halloran, who will commence the work of razing the building immediately. Under the contract the structure must be entirely removed by April 15 after which the trustees will make plans for a city park on the property.

GOES WITH LARKIN.

Former Shoe Salesman Returns to Old Line of Work.

George J. Rafferty has accepted a position as salesman in the shoe store of John J. Larkin, 18 Broadway. Mr. Rafferty is by no means a new man in this position, having served his apprenticeship with Jacob Harris, in whose employ he served for four years and left his employ to take a responsible position with the New York board of water supply. Mr. Rafferty was about to go to Port Jervis to manage a shoe store of S. Kornish, of that city, but owing to a more flattering inducement decided to accept his present position. He is a young man of pleasing manner, courteous and polite and will be pleased to welcome his host of friends at his new place of business.

AFTERMATH OF MINSTREL SHOW

Mayor Cornelius F. Burns and wife and Clarence H. Gardiner, a well known manufacturer, all of Troy, came to Kingston Tuesday evening to attend the Colonial Glee Club minstrel for the benefit of the Elks' charity fund. They were particularly interested in Philip B. Fitzpatrick, who was a member of the Troy Lodge of Elks before coming to Kingston. They were delighted with the performance.

The second performance of the minstrels was played to a full house which was equally as delighted as the first night's audience. A large number of people from different parts of the county came here to attend Tuesday's performance and everyone spoke in highest terms of praise of every number on the entire program.

Miss Helen Stern, who took one of the solo parts, is a niece of Dr. A. A. Stern and has been in this country but little more than a year, during which time she has entirely mastered the English language. She is a native of Germany and is the possessor of a high soprano voice of exquisite quality.

HIGH WOODS.

High Woods, Jan. 9.—The Misses Maude Kiersted and Ruth Snyder from Saugerties, formerly of High Woods attended church services here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William DuBois of Saugerties spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. R. T. Snyder who is ill.

Everett Shader is spending some time with his lady friend, Miss Mary Bruce, at Green Point.

Alexander Wolven is very ill with pneumonia at his home. Dr. Gifford and trained nurse are attending him. It is hoped for his speedy recovery.

Nelson W. Snyder and Harold Praby are attending Spencer's Business School Kingston.

Mrs. Frank Snyder and family of Pine Grove attended services here Sunday.

Again we heard the A. A. DuBois last Sunday and must say he certainly did give us a fine sermon. Hope he may soon be heard from our pulpit every Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Wolven of Yonkers have been called home on account of the sudden illness of Mr. Wolven's father.

It is said that mumps are raging in the place. Look out, those who haven't had them, for they are catching.

Henry DuBois from Saugerties spent Sunday in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Bramer from Mt. Marion have moved in the house of Carle and York.

Monarch.

I am the real ruler of the universe. I cover with dust the masterpieces of the earth. Ancient forms shrink before my ever awakening presence.

And memory cowers. Men bow before my scepter like slaves of the light. And women, their eyes fixed by my spell, follow where I lead.

The puny baby in the nursery and the gray bearded patriarch alike hearken to my magic voice. I paint the earth with divers colors, and the scientist, the doctor, all the rulers of man, awake to my bidding.

An Easy Way to Run Ribbons. When about to send a piece of lingerie to the laundry a piece of narrow tape should be tied to the end of the ribbon and the latter drawn out of the beading, leaving the tape in its place.

The knot is then fastened, and the lingerie can be sent to the wash, the ribbon being replaced on its return in exactly the same manner.—Philadelphia North American.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Things That Are Mere Comforts Now Used to Be Luxuries.

No economist has put enough emphasis on the fact that if the cost of living is higher now it is to a large extent because the average man is demanding more comforts and luxuries, and these must cost more. Before the days of plumbing and bathrooms the workman missed some onerous bills, but he is not ready to throw the plumbing out of the house.

Oil is cheaper for light than electricity, but people pay more for a modern light because they want the better service even at the higher prices. Workmen by the thousands have phonographs, a form of entertainment unknown until a very few years ago.

Even street cars are rather a new thing, and the poorest families spend many dollars every year for this service, which has become indispensable. Magazines are purchased now by many people who ten years ago had never subscribed for such a publication.

Thousands of articles are for sale in every department store, of which a large percentage are purchased at some time or other by the average wage earning family.

Modern living does cost more assuredly, but it also yields more.—Milwaukee Journal.

SPEED OF A STAR.

With a Thought That Points a Moral to Impatient Humanity.

There is a star—a reddish star known as Arcturus—that is traveling at the rate of 150 miles a second, and what is interesting about it is it is coming this way and will come for many years, but it is so far away that it doesn't seem to have any motion at all. It is in exactly the same spot, so far as our vision is concerned, where it was a century ago.

There is another star known as the "runaway" whose speed is twice that of Arcturus—that is, it could sweep across Ohio in a second of time.

We refer to this fact that the gentle reader may understand how insignificant are the little concerns of life that tear his patience into tatters and turn the world into woe. Long after he has gone Arcturus will be traveling 150 miles a second and to all appearances not budging an inch. How modest and patient should this touch of near infinity make us all! And yet, as Tenyson says:

We cannot be kind to each other here for an hour. We whisper and hint, and chuckle and grin at a brother's shame.

However, we brave it out; we men are a little breed.

THE IDEAL HUSBAND.

Ser. Observations on the Side and a Dogmatic Conclusion.

You are probably a woman. Few men would pause to read an article headed "The Ideal Husband." Man knows his fellow men too well.

Of course it is true that nearly every married woman has at some time in her life claimed to have found the one ideal husband, but not for long. He is not a stable article; he is only a fleeting glimpse.

Shortly after a young married woman declares hers to be the ideal husband he exhibits a tendency to crumble his crackers in his soup or to place a slice of bread in his empty dinner plate and submerge it in gravy. These things "are not done."

While a man is still engaged—held under option, as it were, but not definitely contracted for—he is for a short while considered ideal. However, he just begins to enjoy his perfection when it is discovered by his general manager elect that he rests his knife and fork half on the tablecloth and half on his plate, while they should be draped artistically across his plate midway between meat and potatoes.

To save time, probably he also cuts his meat into small pieces before starting to eat it.

He has good reasons for doing as he does, but they do not excuse him. His sort of conduct and perfection simply do not walk hand in hand.

No young couple should be engaged long enough for either one to discover the other's shortcomings. So long as a man and a girl are so mutually mesmerized that the eyes of one never leave the eyes of the other he is perfect, but the moment he allows her glances to stray below his Adam's apple, the moment he loses control, he loses also perfection. She realizes that his knowledge of esthetics was gleaned from an abridged edition; that his tie is not in vogue, that his collar is too loose and too low and therefore too comfortable.

Ah me! I have strayed from my subject—the ideal husband. Let me return to it and proceed.

There is no such thing.—Paul Wing in Century.

ANCIENT BAGDAD.

Bite About the Enchanted City of the "Arabian Nights."

Immortalized by Haroun-al-Raschid, in the story of the "Arabian Nights," Bagdad, which has a population of about 150,000, was built on the ruins of an ancient Babylonian city dating back to 2000 B. C. Records have been found on ancient bricks establishing its early date.

Ever since the days of Haroun-al-Raschid the Jews have been the leading figures in the commercial world of

BUYING A DIAMOND.

If Money is No Object You Can Get an Absolutely Perfect Stone.

The properly cut diamond has fifty-eight facets, including the table and collet, thirty-two facets above the girdle and twenty-four facets below. The surface of the table should be 40 per cent of the whole.

Perfect, colorless stones form only 5 per cent of all the diamonds produced. A diamond is considered perfect in formation when no flaw or imperfection can be detected under the ordinary "loop" or magnifying glass used by jewelers. The flaws usually found are carbon spots (where the carbon has not crystallized perfectly), feathers, bubbles, hairs, flaky formation, like that in a piece of ice when struck by a hammer. The absolutely perfect stone must be free from all of these defects and cut in the right proportions. The "clean" diamond is free from any flaws or inclusions and is most difficult to find. Many of these flaws are so small as to be imperceptible to the naked eye and really do not affect the brilliancy and beauty of the stone.

Do not expect to get an absolutely perfect stone for any reasonable figure, for they are so rare as to command excessive prices. If you want a good stone see to it that it is of good color and brilliancy and is well cut.

The real requirement of a diamond is that it make a proper effect, and the minute flaws which can be found only with a strong microscope are not worthy of consideration by the ordinary purchaser who wishes to have a good stone almost exclusively for decorative purposes.

If money is no object and you are willing to pay $500 or more per carat you may hope to secure an absolutely flawless stone, but for all usual purposes you are wasting half of the money expended.—New York American.

CLIMB HIGH.

Some Form of It There.

Optimistic Thought.

He who is proof against humbug is either cynic, skeptic or knave.

An Exhilarating Bath.

"Many doctors are now discarding the stronger alcohol in ordering baths," says the Farm and Fireside, "and are prescribing the more agreeable bay rum, which is made in Japan from the distillation of rum and the leaves of the bayberry tree. If you want a pleasant, exhilarating bath use this in dilution suiting to your condition. For bathing the sick it seems to have a longer and more stimulating and tonic effect than whisky or alcohol."

Domestic Joys.

"Whenever Mr. and Mrs. Twobble quarrel Mr. Twobble threatens to see his lawyer."

"Well, does he ever go to his lawyer?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I think it's because Mrs. Twobble dares him to."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Calling His Bluff.

"I'm awfully sorry that my engagements prevent my attending your charity concert, but I shall be with you in spirit."

"Splendid. And where would you like your spirit to sit? I have tickets here for 1 mark, 4 marks and 10 marks."—Fliegende Blaetter.

Moran Business School Notes.

The combined teaching experience of the faculty covers a period of more than seventy years.

The Principal of the school John J. Moran holds a college degree of master of accounts.

The Associate Principal Edwin I. Fish is an author on accounting. Miss Lizzy M. Doty is a certificate teacher of shorthand.

The teacher of typewriting is an expert typist.

The Moran Business School has been a success from the start and is rapidly attaining prominence which may readily be seen by the fine class of young men and women who are now in attendance.

The responsible positions now held by recent graduates attest the fact of thorough preparation and a knowledge of how to go ahead without being told. They are fully equipped and able to make their way in the business world.

Special classes will be formed for the shorthand commercial and English courses Monday, Jan. 24 and 31 for graduates of parochial or public schools and others who wish to enter the mid-winter term. Registration begins immediately for both day and evening sessions.

Number of students enrolled since July 1, 1915, 80.

Isidor Jacobson, a graduate of the commercial department of Moran Business School has obtained a position as bookkeeper and assistant manager with his father, Max Jacobson, clothier, Hasbrouck avenue.

Albert Katz, having completed the commercial course at the Moran Business School, has a position in the office of his father, Aaron Katz, wholesale iron, Hasbrouck avenue.

If your coal bin could talk!

Would it tell a tale of savings? Would it tell a tale of the heat you get or the coal you waste? Would it say that you have a coal eater instead of a sure heater? If every coal bin had a voice it would shout to its owner: "Invest immediately in the great coal-economizing outfit of

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

The fuel economy of IDEAL Boilers is the result of accurately placed fire surfaces, inner flues, and corrugated fire pots which admit the air in proper amounts for the complete combustion of the rich gases from the fuel. Too much or too little air wastes or kills the fire. The construction of IDEAL Boilers gets all the heat out of the fuel you burn—makes the smallest amount of coal produce the maximum volume of heat.

The Labor Savings of IDEAL Boilers depend upon their generous fire pots, which hold sufficient fuel to last, without shoveling coal and refilling, for periods of time from 8 to 24 hours—depending on severity of weather.

Complete and pleasant winter comfort is had without the ever-present thought of lugging coal and ashes and the constant fussing with the fire. These are all forgotten in the smooth, even, and easy operation of IDEAL Boilers, even through blizzards.

Good for lifetime of low-priced comfort

Economical and Even Heat is assured with this outfit which never needs repairs or overhauls. Settle your heating doubts at once and for your lifetime by insisting on an IDEAL Boiler and AMERICAN Radiators. Accept no substitute!

Whether your home is OLD or new, investigate at once—5 months winter still ahead! These wonderful coal-burners immediately make your building become of higher commercial value and is classed as "A-1" for selling or renting when it is heated with IDEAL-AMERICAN goods.

Painless Extractions

During the year 1915 the Cady Dental Offices in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown performed over ten thousand extractions. These operations were painless. Local Anesthetics were used in the majority of cases but nitrous-oxide gas in a few. This wonderful record should make a deep impression on those who have teeth which require extraction and desire to have the operation done painlessly.

$125,000 FOR NEW PALTZ SCHOOL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Jan. 19.—A bill appropriating $125,000 for the construction of additional buildings to the state normal school at New Paltz was introduced to day in the senate by Senator Walton. The state commissioner of education is empowered under the provisions of the measure, either to provide for a building containing a normal assembly room with a capacity of 400 pupils and such recitation rooms as will accommodate the scholars of the school, or an auditorium with a capacity of 1,200.

KRIPPLEBUSH.

Kripplebush, Jan. 19.—Supervisor George C. Roosa seems to be a very busy man these days.
Judge Christiana is assisting Asa W. Dudley in collecting the town taxes this winter. This is the fifth year the judge has held this position and it seems to be a pleasure for him to meet the different taxpayers of the town. The judge says he would like to hear all the grievances of the different taxpayers in the town, and it seems as though he will be apt to hear plenty this year.

Much credit is due J. J. Osterhoudt of this place who is always on the job as sexton of the M. E. Church. Mr. Osterhoudt is always looked upon to fill this position when no one else can be induced to fill it. It is largely through his efforts that the church is regularly opened for religious worship. Let's give Mr. Osterhoudt credit for his kindness in keeping the church open to those who are inclined to worship God.

The Misses May and Lizzie Christiana have been spending a few days with relatives in East Kingston.

Charles K. Delamater of this place is still hale and hearty after having passed the 75th mile stone of his life. Mr. Delamater is still a staunch Republican, following the footsteps of his distinguished father, Radcliffe Delamater. The Republicans of this place are hoping for Mr. Delamater to still remain "in the ring" for another quarter of a century. A great deal of valuable information can be secured from Mr. Delamater in regard to political transactions of a number of years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Demark and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Connor and families spent Sunday at Thomas Barringer's.

Mrs. Calvin Osterhoudt and her daughter, Pearl, of Poughkeepsie, have been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Davis.

ALMOST A LOVE STORY

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

One day when little Miss May Fletcher was only four years old a neighbor of the family brought over a boy of about the same age. The two children had been playing together half an hour or so when the mother of the boy called out:

"Susan Fletcher, see there, will you? Your girl is trying to flirt with my boy."

That was the beginning of Miss May's career. By the time she was ten or twelve years old and going to school she was breaking the hearts of the boy pupils. She was a handsome girl, and she had cute, coy ways about her.

When she was approaching her twentieth year her solemn faced father solemnly asked of her:

"May, do you know that this whole town of Tiptonville is talking about you?"

"No, father," was the reply. "What are they saying about me?"

"That you are a confirmed flirt and a coquette."

"Why, father, how you shock me!"

"Don't pretend such innocence," chided the father. "Let's go over your case a little. When Parson Brown came here, an unmarried man, two years ago, he seemed to take quite a shine to you."

"Yes, father."

"I have an idea that he asked you to be his wife."

"He did, father, but how was it? We were coming home from prayer meeting when he said that he loved me and wanted me to become his darling wife. Just as I got my mouth open to say yes a big hog, chased by a little dog, came running up on the sidewalk behind us. The hog struck Parson Brown in the legs, and he went sprawling. I tittered, I giggled, I snickered. How could I help it? Mr. Brown went off in a huff and in six months was married to Amanda Jones."

"But there was Charles Renfrew," continued the father, with a smile around his mouth.

"Yes, I remember him, but it was not my fault that he quit coming here. I was expecting to be Mrs. Renfrew some day, but he had not proposed yet. He came one night, and just as he started in to propose he gave an awful sneeze, and the false plate in his mouth, which I never suspected was there, flew out and under the table, and the cat scrambled for it. Father, I had to snicker or blow right out of the window! Poor Charles dove under the table for his plate, gave me one awful look and went through the front door."

There was a silence for two minutes, and then the father asked:

"But what about George Fox, who has been coming here quite often of late?"

"I don't know," was the reply. "I think he will ask me to marry him."

"And you'll titter and spoil it all."

"Not if I can help it, father. George squints with both eyes every two or three minutes. It is a dreadfully funny squint."

George Fox was a young bachelor of twenty-five, who lived with his widowed mother. He was a farmer. He had admired and loved Miss May and meant to make her his wife, squint or no squint.

Three or four days after Mr. Fletcher had had the talk with his daughter, as recorded above, young Mr. Fox caught sight of the girl picking raspberries in his field. The sight gave him an idea. He waited to see if she would appear again next day. She did, and at the far end of the field he let down the fence and turned in his old bull and ram and gave them a whack as they passed through the gap. They were gentle creatures, but at the whack the bull emitted a bellow, and the ram shook his head in defiance, and by a freak of fortune both trotted among the bushes.

The girl who had broken so many hearts saw them approaching and after one scream started for a tree. Up she went until she was seated on a limb that she deemed was a safe roost, and it was only then that she saw Mr. Fox and called out to him to come for her rescue. Mr. Fox came along at a lazy pace, as if there was no special reason for hurry, and when he approached within thirty feet he took a seat on the fence, with his back to her and asked:

"Well, what's wanted?"

"I want to get down, of course," replied the girl up the tree.

"I am not hindering you."

"But the bull and the ram?"

"Oh, they haven't killed anybody lately!"

"George, you won't leave me here, will you? I may fall at any minute, and it will be awful the way I shall die."

"See here, girl, I love you and want you to be my wife," said George with his back still to her.

"Are you squinting now, George?"

"Yes, by thunder! I am squinting at the old bull and ram!"

"Keep it up, George, dear, until you get the critters out of this field. This evening you can come over and we will decide whether to go to Boston or Niagara Falls on our tour. Hurry up, dear, for this limb is a cracking under me and will soon break."

And George, in spite of his funny squint became a hero and a husband, and they put in five days at the falls, and Tiptonville said it was a good match on both sides.

MRS. CORNELIA RICE SHANNON AND HER HUSBAND, LESLIE J. SHANNON.

"HOUNDED BACK TO PRISON"—PLEADS FOR CLEMENCY.
(Mrs. Cornelia Rice Shannon and her husband, Leslie J. Shannon.)

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Convict No. 2,420, a second-termer in Joliet prison, has made to Warden Zimmer the most fascinating plea for clemency ever placed on the penal records of this state.

Before Convict No. 2,420 entered Joliet the first time he was known to the world as Robert A. Ward, a young Chicago ne'er-do-well. During the interlude of his release and his second incarceration he was Leslie G. Shannon, noted writer, expert criminologist and fiancé of Mrs. Cornelia Rice, niece of the late vice-president James Schoolcraft Sherman.

He has written an appeal to Warden Zimmer asking him to use his influence with the Board of Prisoners, which meets in March, in gaining his freedom. In this he tells his life story. He does not spare himself while he relates how he first ran athwart the law and was sent to prison.

But with freedom came rehabilitation. He worked under tremendous odds, and finally found himself as a writer when he won $100 in a prize essay contest. This simple prize flung open the door of opportunity to him.

He went to New York where he won fame as a writer publishing essays and short stories in hundreds of magazines.

In New York, too, he asserts that he worked with Mrs. William R. Vanderbilt in a crusade against the drug evil. He declared his investigations are the foundation of the present drug laws of the State of New York.

In the flood tide of his success he went to Utica to become staff writer of an important periodical. Here he increased his achievements in the world of letters. He moved in the best society; he met and loved Mrs. Rice, the vice-president's niece.

Two hours before the marriage, which was to be a great social event, Mrs. Rice's father called him to his office and confronted him with his prison record and his Bertillon measurements. The wedding was indefinitely postponed.

Crushed he plunged into a wild season of debauchery. Several months later he met Mrs. Rice secretly in Rochester and married her. Then the prison spectre appeared again. Once more he was arrested for an unlawful act committed between the time his marriage was postponed and the actual event. He was tried, convicted and the marriage was annulled. And then—the prison bars again.

Fertilizers Give Protection.

Potash fertilizers seem to give protection from frost. A French market gardener has found that plants in a field strongly fertilized with kainit suffered little from a series of heavy frosts, those on a lightly fertilized area were more injured, and those on unfertilized land were much damaged.

Telepathy in the Theater.

Sir Herbert Tree tells how some years ago, when playing Hamlet, he found himself in that scene on the ramparts when he awaits the approach of the ghost, gasping for breath and drenched with the dew of apprehension. "What a fool I am!" he cried to himself. "My back is to the audience, the scene is in darkness. Why should I waste so much mental force? Why not stand at rest, awaiting my cue with a cool pulse?" But a trial quickly showed him his error. He had difficulty to get back into the character, and, moreover, he discovered that the scene did not grip the audience with the same intensity at all. He had broken the spell.—Westminster Gazette.

Anthony Trollope's First Earnings.

A literary man recalls Anthony Trollope's little ghost over the first fruits of his pen. "I send you a copy of 'The Warden,'" he wrote to Lord Houghton in 1865, "which Mr. Longman assures me is the last of the first edition. There were, I think, only 750 printed, and they have been over ten years in hand. But I regard the book with affection, as I made £9 2s. 6d. by the first year's sales, having previously written and published for years without any such golden result. Since then I have improved even upon that." Trollope, of course, "improved upon that" in no uncertain fashion.—Westminster Gazette.

Bullock Skin Boats.

There are few more primitive methods of transportation than those in use today by natives of northern India who make their homes in the vicinity of the swift flowing Sutlej. The boats of these aborigines are nothing more or less than bullock skins inflated by two natives of the natives themselves. Two natives may be seen hard at work inflating the skins with air. Having inflated them to their satisfaction, they will leap overboard and paddle themselves across the river, great skill and strength being necessary to sustain their equilibrium during the passage. But even should the boats overturn they are easily righted, and the natives are without exception expert swimmers.

Life and Character Reading

JANUARY 19.

This horoscope shows a strong will, a determination to get ahead at any cost and exceeding nervousness.

There will seem to be at times periods of depression and discouragement.

This person needs to heed nature's warning and remember that by observing the law of balance all things are possible.

That is, there should be neither excessive elation or depression and a well balanced mind will be greatly aided by the two planets which govern this birthdate.

These planets are Saturn and Mars. Saturn, the ruler of destiny, makes havoc where discord controls but brings harmony and success where the person tries to harmonize surroundings.

Determination, energy and a quick temper are the dominating characteristics of this birthdate.

The most fortunate period will be from May 1 to May 27. Marriage will be happiest with a Virgo person or one born the last two weeks in September.

Good business partnerships will be formed by placing an ad in The Freeman Want Ads.

ALLIED AVIATORS BOMBARD METZ

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, Jan. 19.—Metz, the great German fortress in Lorraine, has again been bombed by allied air craft.

News of the latest raid was contained in an official statement issued today by the German war office.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 19.—Nearly all the speculative interest in the stock market this morning was centered in a few specialties with United States Industrial Alcohol the most prominent feature. That stock opened 1½ higher at 147 and after reacting to 146½ rose to a new high record of 148½. American Coal Products was also in urgent demand, advancing 3½ to 175½, a new high mark. New York Air Brake moved up 2 points to 152. Distillers Securities rose ½ to 48½. Baldwin Locomotive opened ¼ higher at 111, declined to 109½ and then rallied to 110. Marine preferred receded a point to 82½ and Crucible Steel 1½ to 65½. New York Central was the strongest of the railway list, rising ½ to 111½, a fresh high mark for this movement. Bethlehem Steel jumped 13 points to 192. Steel Common was inactive and unchanged.

Trading during the late forenoon was confined to a small group of specialties and some of these issues were extremely active, a few advancing to new high marks. Cuban American Sugar rose to 183½, a gain of 5½ points and National Lead rose from 71 to 72½. Industrial Alcohol after selling up to 148½ receded to 145. Studelaker was in good demand, rising a point to 155½. The leading railway and industrial issues appeared to be neglected. Money lending at 1½ per cent.

Irregularity was shown during the late afternoon and a number of issues reacted sharply. Texas Company, after advancing 6½ points to 229, reacted to 221 and Industrial Alcohol, after making a further gain of 2 points to 152, dropped to 150. There was heavy selling of steel common, which declined to 85½, but later rallied to 85½. Price movements in the general lists were about evenly divided between advances and declines.

The closing was irregular and unsettled. There were wide fluctuations in many issues. Texas Company after selling at 229 fell to 212, but later rallied to 219. Industrial Alcohol dropped four points with a quick recovery but again declining. Losses of 1 to 3 points occurred in many other issues. Most importance was attached to heavy selling of steel common which receded half to 84½ rallying in the final dealings. American Smelting was weak, selling down to 104½. Government bonds unchanged; others strong.

Quotations furnished by John D. Kline, Warren Building, Fair street, Kingston, N. Y., Tel. 1423. Correspondent of C. H. Van Buren & Company, members of Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York.

WHEN YOU GET ANGRY.

Influence of the Emotion Upon the Adrenal Glands.

Just above the kidneys there are two small glands, each about as big as a pea, known as suprarenal capsules or adrenal glands. They belong to that small group of glands in our bodies which have no ducts and whose secretions, whatever they are, pass directly into the blood. These two little glands play an enormous part in the physiology of hate.

The secretion of these little glands is called adrenalin, and its secretion cannot be controlled by the will. When it is poured into the blood the amount of sugar in the blood will rise in the course of a few minutes between 10 and 30 per cent.

A strong emotion, such as hate, causes an increased secretion of adrenalin in the glands and simultaneously an increase of sugar in the blood, and this sudden accession of sugar supplies the muscles with a much needed food. So that one of the effects of the secretion of adrenalin would be a direct benefit to a man in a rage wishing to exercise stern muscular effort involving fight, conflict or struggle. It has been proved that the removal of the adrenal glands has a weakening effect on muscular power, and an injection of adrenalin has an invigorating effect, and not only does adrenalin bring out sugar from the liver stock to feed the muscles, but it also restores fatigued muscles, at least temporarily.

Men in a state of hatred, therefore, are in the same condition as men who are putting out their utmost physical effort. They are in a condition, should they come across the object of their hate, to exert the maximum harm upon it.—New York American.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. Schepmoes' Sunday school class, "The Pearl Gatherers," were royally entertained by one of their members, Mrs. L. Brumagham, at her home, No. 130 Tremper avenue on Saturday evening, January 15. After the business was transacted the evening was spent listening to selections on the Victrola. Various games were played, the most interesting being the spider web game. Prizes were won by Mrs. Dietz and Mrs. A. Brumagham. A buffet luncheon was served and enjoyed by all. Those present were Mrs. D. Hicks, Mrs. C. Lord, Mrs. E. K. Simpson, Mrs. A. Taylor, Mrs. C. P. Aurlinger, Mrs. W. Dietz, Mrs. A. Brumagham and Mrs. Whitaker of Utica. Mrs. Schepmoes, the teacher of the class, was unable to be present.

The amount of fur to trim some of the afternoon gowns is astonishing. This elaborate afternoon gown is of gold colored georgette crepe combined with mink and ermine. The mink is a white and the crepe is introduced in the trim and sleeves is noteworthy. Black fox fur forms a detachable collar, muff, cuffs and a border on the skirt.

Constructive Legislation.

First Lawyer—What makes you think we shall not be able to get this law passed by the legislature? Second Lawyer—It's too simple. Almost any one can understand it. It ought to be so complex and vague that nobody can understand it. Then it is bound to pass, because nobody would admit that he didn't understand it. New York Sun

Siam's Royal Palace.

One of the most remarkable buildings in the world is the palace of the king of Siam. It is enclosed in damask white walls over a mile in circumference. Within these walls are temples, public offices, stables for the sacred elephants, accommodation for a thousand troops, cavalry, war elephants and an arsenal. There is also a very fine theater.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, Jan. 19.—Ferry communication between Saugerties and Tivoli is by a boat on runners operated by Robert Espey of the long dock.

A number of people from Saugerties will attend an entertainment at Quarryville this evening. Van Buskirk's carry-all "Saugerties" will be the conveyance.

Dr. T. F. O'Dea, D. V. S., was in Dutchess county Tuesday.

Dr. and Mrs. F. D. Wygant, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. James Kearney, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Dickhout, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Henry York, Harold Van Voorhis and William L. Finkler attended the musical entertainment given by the Elks at Kingston Opera House Tuesday evening.

Mrs. William Johnson of the South Side is critically ill with pneumonia.

WALKER VALLEY.

Walker Valley, Jan. 19.—While coasting Friday eve., Ralph Scott at the steering wheel, lost control and ran into a wire fence and cut his chin through to his teeth. He was driven to Pine Bush, where it was found necessary to take four stitches by Dr. Van Amburgh.

On January 6 the Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Francis Marshall, a large number of ladies being present. After the devotional and business hour, refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Depew at this writing are suffering with the grip. Mrs. LeRoy Salet, who had pneumonia at her Brooklyn home, is spending some time with her mother, Mrs. Mary Scott, to recuperate.

G. U. Evans is confined to the house with indigestion.

A general report of the year's work of the M. E. Church was given Sunday afternoon, which found the society doing very nicely. Also the officers of the Sunday school were elected for the ensuing year: Jessie Seamen, superintendent; Mrs. Geo. Marshall, assistant and treasurer, and Mrs. J. W. Eckert, secretary.

The Walker Valley Armenians will hold a Colonial supper at the home of Mrs. Jacobson on Wednesday evening, January 26. This company has recently been organized and is trying hard to raise money to build a fire house.

VIRTUE OF A GOOD LAUGH.

A Tonic That Stimulates the Body and All Its Organs.

There is not the remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood vessel of the human body that does not feel some wavelet from the convulsion occasioned by good hearty laughter.

The life principle, or the central man, is shaken to the innermost depths, sending new tides of life and strength to the surface, thus, materially tending to insure good health to the persons who indulge therein.

The blood moves more rapidly and conveys a different impression to all the organs of the body as it visits them on that particular mystic journey when the man is laughing from what it does at other times.

For this reason every good, hearty laugh in which a person indulges lengthens his life, conveys, as it does, new and distinct stimulus to the vital forces.

Doubtless the time will come when physicians, conceding more importance than they now do to the influence of the mind upon the vital forces of the body, will make up their prescriptions more with reference to the mind and less to drugs for them and will, in so doing, find the best and most effective method of procuring the required effect upon the patient.

RUSSEL KELLY.

FATHER STILL HOPES TO FIND "KELLY OF FOREIGN LEGION."

New York, Jan. 19.—"I believe," said James E. Kelly, father of Russel Kelly, known as Kelly of the Foreign Legion, "that my son is living, and that he is a prisoner somewhere in Germany, and I am convinced of this because of the recent despatches, though one of these despatches report that he was killed in action."

"If I go to France to examine the ground where Russel fought the last fight of his we know about it, it will be when the French have advanced from twenty to thirty miles beyond Hill 119 a Souchez. If Russel were living and were in France I'd go to him. If he is a prisoner somewhere in Germany I could not of course go to him. But some day I shall see the lay of that land where the 1st Regiment broke through the German lines last summer and fought while surrounded for twenty-four hours."

Kelly's name and that of his four comrades has been printed as in the casualties at Guevency on June 17. The four other Americans were Edwin Hall of Chicago, John Earle Fike, of Wooster, O., and Kenneth Week and Henry Farnsworth, of Boston.

Russel Kelly was twenty-two years old and he enlisted in the Foreign Legion of the French army in November, 1914. It was a test of the game, the love of war that stimulated young Kelly like wine. He romped through war-like experiences as if they were so many football games.

Shopping in Europe.

Visitors from abroad are always surprised at the lateness of the hour at which London shops are opening. In all large towns on the continent shops are open and in working order at 8 o'clock or earlier. But in London one frequently sees a sleepy-eyed porter taking down the shutters at 9, while a walk down Oxford Street or Regent Street at this hour necessitates constant vigilance to avoid the debris and litter of the day before which is being tramped out of the half-paved establishment.—London Spectator.

The Oil in Tobacco.

Although the Havana or Havana seed tobaccos are low in nicotine, they are high in oil. The settlement in a pipe stem or the brown stain obtained from blowing tobacco smoke through the meshes of a handkerchief is not nicotine, as commonly supposed, but is in reality tobacco oil, nicotine only being obtained in extract by an elaborate process of distillation and double distillation. The oil in cigar tobacco prevents the smoke being inhaled, as it would cause a strangulation and painful irritation.

A Delicious Cup of Tea.

If you want to keep your friends guessing get from your druggist an eighth of a pound of dried orange blossoms (they are very expensive) and steep two or three to a cupful along with your tea leaves. Omit sugar, lemon or cream, as either clogs the delicate flavor of the orange buds. Be sure you get them strictly fresh and from a receptacle tightly covered and keep them air tight yourself. This novel idea was introduced into smart studies by a clever Frenchwoman and proved very popular.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Jan. 19.—Up in the wilds of Greenfield, Mass., lives a youth named William du Mont, otherwise known as "Zukie," who is the original victim of the "woof" handicap in golf.

Once upon a time, runs the story, "Zukie," who spends large portions of the year chasing hither and thither in pursuit of the elusive buyers of tool steel, dies and similar bits of hardware, returned to his home town. After being patted upon his spinal column by his bosses in energetic appreciation of his nice sales record, "Zukie" decided to take an afternoon unto himself, loaded his golfing clubs upon his shoulder, and wandered out in the general direction of the Greenfield links.

When "Zukie" arrived at the course he found that all the good golfers were considerably absent; they were watching a circus parade or indulging in some similar Greenfield deviltry. "Zukie" scanned the landscape and could see naught but a despicable "dub" putting away. "Zukie" yearned to battle with a real golfer, but even a "dub" furnishes more competition than a game of solitary golf.

"Greetings, fair one," ejaculated "Zukie," approaching the "dub." "Wouldst have a game with me?"

The "dub" looked at "Zukie" in a puzzled way, and said: "I don't quite make you." "I mean," said "Zukie," "that I'd like to play a game with you. I'll give you a handicap of one stroke a hole—two strokes a hole if you like. And we'll play for one golf ball, just to make it a bit interesting. What say you?"

"Dub" Gets "Woof" Landicap.

"I'm willing," replied the "dub," "but I'm not satisfied with the handicap. Never mind giving me any strokes. July allow me two 'woofs' as a handicap and I'll play you for two or three balls, just as you like."

It was "Zukie's" turn to look puzzled.

"Two 'woofs'! What's them, hey?" he asked lapsing into the ungrammatical.

"Nothing at all except a couple of 'woofs,'" returned the "dub." "Just let me say 'woof' twice during our game—that's all the handicap I want and we'll play for three balls. How about it?"

"Zukie" readily agreed. This was a cinch for him. He played at least 40 strokes ahead of the "dub" in 18 holes and this looked like a sure way of gathering unto himself three, nice, new golf balls at the expense of someone else.

"Zukie" captured the first hole—with ease. He mounted the tee for the drive for the second hole. He teed the ball nicely, got into position and was half way through with his swing when a yell—"Woof!"—fractured the afternoon quiet.

"Woof" Unnerves Star Golfer.

The sudden yell threw "Zukie" off his balance, he topped the ball and instead of getting his average drive of 225 yards he dribbled the ball about eight feet.

"Hey, whatcha yellin' at me like that for, anyway," roared the enraged "Zukie" at his foe.

"I gotta right to do it," was the calm answer.

"Right? You gotta right to yell! Say, don't you know anything about golf etiquette. Doncha know you dasn't yell or talk or even move when your opponent is driving?"

"Yep, I know that," responded his foe. "But don't you remember about my handicap? I'm allowed two 'woofs.' That was one of them."

And then a great light dawned upon "Zukie." "Oh, that's whatcha meant, hey, when you asked for a couple of whoops?" hissed "Zukie." "That's what it was, hey? Permission to yell like a soused Patagonian warrior when I'm driving! That's it, hey?"

"Yes, that's it," responded the other grinning. "I don't forget, old topper, that I've got another 'woof' due me and I can loosen it any time I wanta."

Well, "Zukie," the crack golfer lost that match, even though his foe never exercised the other "woof" privileged every time "Zukie" was about to drive, to loft or to putt, he was filled with the fear of that other whoop. It unnerved him. Several times he pleaded with his opponent to "get rid of that other yowl," but his foe smiled sweetly and remarked that "the time wasn't ripe."

So "Zukie," the peerless, went down to defeat at the hands of a "dub" whom he could "spot" 40 strokes in 18 holes and still beat in an ordinary match; "Zukie" was beaten by a yell and the fear of another yell at a critical moment.

And what happened to "Zukie" has happened to every other crack golfer since then who has strived to overcome a handicap of two "woofs."

Poughkeepsie garage owners will be held to the 500 gallon storage limit for gasoline by the city authorities. Many dealers are said to be heavily stocked as a result of buying before the recent rise, hence, some losses are feared.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—Whatever hopes Young Ahearn had of becoming middleweight champion are shattered today. Mike Gibbons stood in the way of Ahearn's aspirations. The men met last night in a scheduled ten round bout. The Minnesota law did not permit of decisions. There was no need of the law. Ahearn lasted just one minute and 28 seconds. Then he went to sleep, the result of a knockout blow on the jaw. The fight ended suddenly. The big crowd was surprised at the quickness with which Gibbons put over the sleep producing punch. Soon after the fight opened Gibbons worked his man over to one corner. Then he sent a smashing right swing to the jaw, sending Ahearn to the floor for the count. Ahearn raised himself slightly at the count of four, but his eyes closed again. His head struck the floor. Seconds carried him to his corner. It was three minutes before he regained consciousness. The crowd carried the triumphant Gibbons away on their shoulders. He was the St. Paul idol and the crowd was mostly from St. Paul.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Every once in a while Charley White, the Chicago lightweight, slips over a knockout on his opponent. Last night he did the trick again. In the first minute of fighting he put out Joe Azevedo of California, with a right to the heart and a left swing to the jaw.

Albany, Jan. 19.—Harry Pierce of New York gave Fighting Zunker of Buffalo a decisive beating in ten rounds here last night.

New York, Jan. 19.—The Yankees are still after "Home Run" Baker. The latest offer is $25,000 for Connie Mack's former third sacker.

New York, Jan. 19.—Eight fans are to see "Masked Marvel" in action. The state boxing commission has given this fighter permission to be masked. He is a man of wealth, hailing from Memphis, weighing 200 pounds and stands six feet one inch. He is willing to allow club owners to choose his opponents.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—President Ban Johnson of the American League, Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, and John Heydler, secretary of the National League, met here today to arrange the schedules for the coming season.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1492.—A Simple But Stylish Costume in Semi Princess Style.

Blue serge with satin in a darker shade are here combined. The style is new and attractive, and is becoming to slender as well as to full figures. The skirt and waist are full and joined to the panel, over a fitted body lining. Velvet, poplin, voile, gabardine, corduroy or broad cloth are very appropriate for this model. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7½ yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt portion measures about 3¼ yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1915-16 large Fall and Winter Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns, as well as the latest Embroidery Designs, also a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, Jan. 19.—The oyster supper given by the young ladies of this place last week was a decided success. Now girls, we hope that the new hall will soon be built, as we surely need it.

Mrs. Sevier of Kingston, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Mary Wolven, has returned home.

George Quick of Phenicia was a business caller in this place last Saturday.

District Superintendent R. E. Bell preached a very fine sermon in the M. E. Church in this place last Sunday morning to a large congregation; people being present from Ashokan and Glenford; it being the Fourth Quarterly Conference. The Rev. J. H. Fyfer was called back for another year.

Carolyn Saxe, Mary McAuliffe, Thomas and Daniel McAuliffe, Claudia Williams, Harvey and Howard Barnes took regents examinations in Woodstock the first of the week.

Mr. Burhans was in Kingston on Tuesday. Miss Mary McAuliffe of Spillway was visiting friends in this place the past week. There is talk of several new houses being built here this year.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Jan. 19.—A meeting of the Sunday school board of the Methodist Church will be held this evening at the home of George W. Shultis on Broadway.

Several out of town students are taking the regents examinations at Port Ewen public school district No. 13.

Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in their rooms in Hutton's Hall. The deputy, Mrs. Anna Enlist of Whiteport, will be present and install the newly elected officers.

Joshua Chambers, who has been employed by James R. Rodman, of Hasbrouck street liveryman left today for Castleton, where he was formerly employed by James G. Walradt in the coal business. Mr. Chambers was a jolly good fellow and leaves many friends in this village, who are sorry to see him go.

James Tator of Rhinebeck spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howe on Main street.

Mrs. Norman Coutant of South Treadway called on friends here Tuesday.

Miss Bessie House and Miss Harriet Robinson of Kingston were the guests of Miss Mary F. Bishop on Broadway Sunday.

David Berzee is ill at his home on Salem street. Dr. G. W. Ross is the attending physician.

At the regular business meeting of the Epworth League Society held in the Methodist Chapel last evening there was a large attendance. The following persons joined the society: Joseph Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zaek, Clyde LeFever, Ruby Henry, Mrs. Estella, Freer and George Fowler. After the business meeting a social hour was spent and refreshments were served. This society is in a prosperous condition.

Arthur Fowler of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Sr., on Broadway.

Arrows vs. Crescents Tonight.

The Crescent basketball club of this city and the Arrows. Arrow Five of Catskill will meet at Washington Hall this evening in the second game of a series arranged between the two teams. The Crescents came forth victorious in the first game of the series and the Arrows are coming to this city with the firm determination of defeating the Crescents, thereby gaining an even footing with the locals.

Should the Arrows defeat the Crescents another game will be necessary to decide the championship of the Hudson Valley, as the two mentioned teams are now the only logical contenders for the title.

The Arrows will present their strongest lineup and will have the pick of such men as Barris, Glenon, De rerna, Robinson, Penquay, Grobe and Schuffelt. This team makes a hard combination to beat and on paper they have a shade on the locals, but beforehand hope very often gets upset. The Crescents have extraordinary good men in Spalt, Murphy, Dittus, Fox, Barnhardt, Culliton and Butler, and they are as good as hard and faithful practice can make them. In the Crescent camp there is no thought of defeat and a calm confidence is prevalent. The game from the spectators' point of view should be a dandy, as both clubs are expert passers and each and every man on the two teams has a dangerous eye for the basket when they get within shooting distance of the cage. Manager Binkoff, of the Crescents, also proprietor of the hall, has made arrangements to handle the largest crowd that has ever attended a game at the hall. There has been an unusually heavy demand for tickets on the part of the local fans, and the home crowd will be augmented by a large delegation of rooters who are going to come to Kingston to back the Arrows. Following the game dancing will be enjoyed, the music being furnished by McLean's orchestra.

Prince Albert
the national joy smoke

Don't slip!
It's easy to change the shape and color of unsalable brands to imitate the Prince Albert tidied tin, but it's impossible to imitate the power of Prince Albert tobacco! The patented process protects that!

FIRST thing you do right away is to answer this fair-to-you question:—
Why is Prince Albert tobacco universally distributed and universally smoked?
And if the answer isn't on the front-end of your tongue; if you don't feel it just galloping right out of your think-division, get-going for the nearest store that sells tobacco. Invest 5c or 10c for a test-out!
You'll get the answer, all right!
And you'll know more about where you and your tongue and throat stand on the pipe and cigarette makin's question in a mighty short time! Sure as you are a foot high! The patented process fixes that—and cuts out bite and parch.

Men who have never smoked a pipe or rolled a cigarette have something mighty fine coming. For P. A. is the first-hand-pal of every man who is willing to have it proved to his satisfaction that here is tobacco that the man with the tenderest tongue and throat can smoke his fill with a relish! Will you take our word for it?

ALL WAR LANES
LEAD TO BOULOGNE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—"From Dover, Folkestone, Brighton and Portsmouth, all war lanes across the English Channel lead to Boulogne, the great port for the western entente battle line, safe behind the long rows of trenches in the north and made the principal point for import from England of vast stores of munitions and a steady stream of troops," begins a primer just prepared by the National Geographic Society, which describes the harbor to which the war has brought its most brisk import business. "Boulogne is a vitally important point in the line opposing the Germans in the west; it is the funnel through which the British Empire is pouring its contribution to the energies expended on the first of the war theaters."

"The French port, always very English and now almost as cosmopolitan as Paris, lies upon the narrowest stretch of the channel, 22 miles southwest of Calais, and only 28 miles by sea southeast of the busy English harbor of Folkestone. Paris, with which the city is connected by a brilliant express service over the tracks of the Northern Railway, lies 167 miles in the south-southwest. Portsmouth-Boulogne is the most direct line of communication between the great British arsenal and the firing line through Flanders, Artois, Picardy and Champagne. The river Liane divides the town, and the improvement at its mouth provides excellent harbors for the unusual stress of shipping that the war has brought about."

"Boulogne has always had more or less close relation with England, friendly and unfriendly. It has even been suggested that it was the Portus Itius where Julius Caesar assembled his fleet. In modern times, Boulogne has been the Englishman's favorite way into France, and before the war, the passengers from Folkestone to Boulogne totaled about 300,000 annually. The trans-Atlantic liners of the Hamburg-American and the Holland-American companies, also made Boulogne a calling point. English business interests in France were largely represented at this port, and the English colony at Boulogne of the war numbered more than 1,500. It has long been said that Boulogne is the most English city on the continent, and before the war was many months old, the English language and English ways were the accepted currency of the place."

"In 1804, Napoleon I selected Boulogne as the starting point for an invasion of England. He assembled an army of 180,000 men and a vast assortment of war stores here for this purpose. The invincible general was so certain that England was fated to fall before his genius that he had coins struck with which to pay his soldiers on the other side of the channel and inscribed them 'Napoleon in London.' He also began a column of victory here to commemorate the conquest about to be realized of his most troublesome opponent, Marshal Soult, Ney, Davoust and Victor were to lead the invaders. The harbors of Boulogne were completely hidden under the bulks of the many vessels upon which the expedition was to be transported. A flotilla of 2,413 craft of all sizes had been gathered at the port."

"Preparations for the invasion were admirably made, and the troops waited only for the coming of the protecting French fleets from Antwerp, Brest, Cadix and the harbors of the Mediterranean to convey them to the island battlefields. The units of these fleets had been in the course of construction for several years for the express purpose of aiding in the decision against England; for the little Corsican, willing to divide the world with Alexander of Russia, knew from the beginning that his interests and those of Britain could never be reconciled. The French fleets never assembled at Boulogne, and the victory at Nelson at Trafalgar in 1805 forever shattered Napoleon's hopes for the invasion. The column of victory, however, was finished in 1841, and it is crowned by a fine statue of the emperor."

"Boulogne was an important commercial harbor before the present war. It ranked fourth among the seaports of France, after Marseille, Le Havre and Bordeaux. It imported jute, wool, skins, thread, coal, timber, iron and steel for the factories of highly industrial northern France; and it exported woven goods, skins, motor cars, forage, cement and wines. It also assembled the fancy vegetables and fine table fruits for the London markets and exported. The average annual value of its exports was $50,000,000, and that of its imports $30,000,000. It was the first fishing port of France, receiving and preparing great quantities of herrings and mackerel. A large proportion of the best grades of Spanish mackerel sold in the world's markets bear the trade marks of Boulogne. The most important manufacture of this great war port during peace times, strange to say, is that of steel pens, which industry was introduced from England in 1846. It is the chief city in France for this manufacture, and, therefore, probably its greatest fame should be that of pointing the most brilliant pens in the world's most brilliant country."

ST. REMY.

St. Remy, Jan. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Deyo returned from New York last night. Mrs. Deyo has been spending two weeks in the city. Mrs. Harry Ellsworth entertained her Sunday school class of boys last Thursday night.

Those who were ill with grip last week are convalescing. The teacher of the C. E. next Sunday night will be Mrs. Kathryn Sullivan. Topic, "Announcement." "What a World We Live In." Eccl. 3:1-13. Mrs. Emma Kuhnert is staying at Kingston for some time. Mrs. David Ackerman is nursing at St. John's Sanitarium. Charles York and family were at Esopus on Sunday.

The Woman

It is only hearsay that we have to go on today, for we have no notion of who it was that pointed out the value of learning to "part with things as they go." But lest you, gentle reader, be one of those to whom the idea is new, we frankly borrow the phrase and pass it along.

Now, we all know that many a fine sermon has been preached on the text of "Taking things as they come." How diligently have we been admonished in this respect and how often. Our friendly advisers love to say to us, "Oh, do not worry; just learn to take things as they come." Exactly so, and a sane method of procedure it is since we cannot affect their coming and cannot tell what fortunes or misfortunes the morrow may hold.

But if this be wise why then must we not also learn the lesson of "parting with things as they go," as gracefully and as easily as we strive to accept their coming? For things do go in this world, often just when we want them to stay.

An excellently trained man once lost an excellent position unjustly. It was not a light matter, but when it went he parted with it and let it go, as much as to say: "So much for that; that's done with. Now, what next?" And of course eventually he found the next thing, just as we all are bound to do.

It doesn't make any difference what it is, when things go let's learn to part with them, not to hang on to them and prolong the agony of their going. "Men die and worms do eat them, but not for love," we often hear. But, alas, it is for love that women do, indeed, almost die—or, in fact, over love's going.

And over how many things do women allow grief to eat out their very hearts when the art of learning to part with things as they go would have saved the day. If it's gone, why let it go, whether it's a lost love or an heirloom, a lost position or a week's pay.

Let's learn to say, "Well, that's gone, done for, over with"—and so with a wave of the hand, "Farewell. What's next?"

Baked Apple Dumplings.

Select tart apples, pare and core them and cut in quarters. Three large apples should make six dumplings. The dough is made as follows: Two and a half cups of flour, one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Sift these ingredients together. Rub two-thirds cupful of lard into the flour and mix with enough cold water to make a dough which can be easily handled. Divide the dough in six parts and roll each part out large enough to hold the apples. When the dough is rolled put the apples in the center and fold the dough over it, pinching the ends together. Bake in a shallow buttered dish in a moderate oven and serve with cream and sugar.

Devil's Food Cake.

Toik of egg, one-quarter bar of chocolate or four teaspoonfuls of cocoa, one-half cupful of sweet milk. Cook this until smooth; cool. Add four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of sweet milk, in which dissolve one teaspoonful of soda, one and one-half or two cupfuls of flour.

Filling: One-fourth of a bar of chocolate or four teaspoonfuls of cocoa, dissolved in one cupful of boiling water; one cupful of light brown sugar, one tablespoonful of butter and one heaping tablespoonful of cornstarch. Cook this until it thickens. Let cool. Add vanilla and nut meats.

Outside of Probability.

OF THE U. S. NAVY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Upon motion of Senator Tillman, chairman of the naval affairs committee, the senate today made public the report of Admiral Fletcher, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, showing the fifteen chief weaknesses of the United States navy.

As given in Admiral Fletcher's report the weaknesses are:

- A—Shortage of officers.
- B—Shortage of men.
- C—Lack of fast armored ships and fast light cruisers.
- D—Limitation of mobility and sea going qualities of submarines.
- E—Lack of air craft.
- F—Lack of radio direction finder.
- G—Too frequent overhauling of battleships.
- H—Necessity of maintaining full complement in active ships of the fleet.
- I—Need of additional mining and sweeping vessels.
- J—Desirability of mobilizing ships in reserve annually with the active fleet.
- K—Need of naval target practice at long ranges.
- L—Necessity for increased facilities at fleet rendezvous.
- M—Provision for division commanders for mining division and auxiliary division.
- N—Provision for more speed in design of fighting craft intended to operate with the fleet.
- O—Need of anti-air craft guns.

OLD HOME SINGERS.

The Old Home Singers, who are to fill a big Lyceum season this year, make a specialty in their programs of carrying their audiences back to childhood scenes and recollections.

Of the five young artists who comprise this company each is a soloist of pleasing quality, capable of singing the heart songs. They form a mixed quartet, capable of superb ensemble work, as is evidenced by their artistic rendering of the quartet from "Rigoletto." That they meet the requirements of the program perfectly is shown in the many reports already received from committees.

At the opening of the program the five young people have just returned from a musical where a song composed by one of the young men has proved to be the hit of the season.

Following the congratulations, a discussion starts regarding the music of today. By way of illustration they sing selections from grand opera, oratorio music, sentimental ballads, ragtime, topical songs, novelty songs—the different types which are now sung.

These young artists then agree that the most beautiful and best loved of all are the heart songs, which are endeared to us through past association. They plan an evening of the old songs.

The men appear in the costume of 1870 and in a very mirth provoking fashion are trying to accustom themselves to the clothes of their grandfathers. The girls have been rummaging in the attic and enter beaming in the quaint dresses of that time, "with sixty yards of lace on the ruffles," as grandmother had said.

The costuming and staging carry us in fancy, back to the days of long ago. The serious songs, the sentimental, the humorous, the songs we nearly have forgotten, the songs mother used to sing, all come back to give us a variety of program seldom heard today.

Among those which may be named as typical are: "Sweet Genevieve," "The Old Oaken Bucket," "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," "Ten Bells," "Pop Goes the Weasel," "Cap'n Jack" and many songs sung with games, such as "Old Dan Tucker."

We were all sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. George Richard of Monticello. Death came Sunday morning, leaving a husband and three children to mourn her loss.

William Wakeman is still failing. Monday seemed to be the coldest day of this winter.

Norman Herman has another new horse.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Smith expected to return to Ellenville Monday.

Frank Furman came home Monday.

Clarence Herman caught a red fox Sunday and the Ecks boys a bear and cub.

George Leidner and sister Lucy were callers on Mr. Wageman Sunday.

Mrs. Lake is visiting in Napanoch for a few days.

Lewis Simpson was a caller at Eureka Saturday.

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, Jan. 19.—Mrs. John Zimmer, who has been sick with grip, is better.

The Rev. Mr. Hoag of Saugerties gave a very interesting sermon last Sunday. There will be services as usual next Sunday.

Raymond T. Osterhout was married to Miss Helen Van Gaasbeck of Kingston last Friday afternoon at half past six by the Rev. W. F. Stowe. The young couple, who have many friends both here and in Kingston, have their best wishes for a long and happy life.

Work is being rushed at the Jersey house to get it ready for filling. Grip, which is so prevalent in so many places, has made its appearance here.

William Kieffer has sold one hundred cords of wood to Mr. Goldrick, and has been hauling it out.

BRITISH CRUISER TAKES A GERMAN SPY OFF A SHIP AT SEA.

Remarkable photograph taken on board the Lamport and Holt steamship Vauban on November 30 when the British Cruiser Vindictive stopped the liner while enroute from Bahia, Brazil, to New York, and made a prisoner of Konrad Muehenstein, alleged to be a German Naval Officer, who broke his parole after capture by the Japanese at Raio Chow, and late after arrival in San Francisco became implicated in the conspiracy against American munition plants.

Photograph shows the prisoner, Muehenstein, waving his hand to the passengers just before he went over the side into the cruiser's boat. Lieutenant Pope, R. N. R., of the boarding party of the cruiser, with marines, passengers officers and crew of the Vauban are also shown. The cruiser Vindictive is seen in central background.

SPINOS ASK LEAVE TO EVICT FATHER

The most unusual request ever made to Recorder Lang since he assumed office was that made this morning in recorder's court by Mrs. Raphael Spino and her daughter asking the court to allow them to turn the husband and father out of the family home at No. 65 Andrew street. The request was denied by the court who informed the daughter that he was surprised to find a daughter making such a request and advised them all to go home and try and live in peace.

The mother and father were unable to speak English but the daughter told her mother's side of the story, while it was necessary to have an interpreter to obtain the father's side. From the story as brought out it seems that Mr. Spino came from Italy about ten years ago leaving his wife and family in the old country. Later he sent them money to come across to this country.

About two months ago the family came to Kingston where the children decided to purchase a house and did so. They purchased the property at No. 65 Andrew street, where they have since resided. There are five children, all of whom are working and earning from $5 to $10 a week each.

They lived together peacefully as far as the police know until the other night when three of the children hurried into police headquarters stating that their father was going to shoot their mother. Policemen Phinney and Reardon returned with the children to their home where everything was found quiet and no one killed. The children set upon the father and attempted to beat him up but were separated by the officers. This led to the appearance of the family in recorder's court this morning, the recorder being determined to hear both sides of the story.

The daughter, who accompanied her mother to court this morning said that all the twenty-six years her parents had been married her mother had had to beg bread from door to door while living in Italy as her father refused to work and when he did earn any money he spent it playing cards in a saloon. She said her mother had told her that she had never known her husband as he had come from a long distance but that he had promised to make her a good home when he married her, but he had not kept his word.

She said her father had been arrested once in Italy and had been sent to jail.

Asked how he came to be arrested, Mr. Spino replied through the interpreter that he had got in a fight with a man whom he had told to keep away from his wife and not bother her and in the mix-up the man's leg had been broken and he had been sent to jail for a month.

While the daughter was telling the story both parents interrupted speaking excitedly in Italian with many expressive gestures until the court was forced to rap for order.

"If I was a man like him," said the daughter, pointing to her father, "I'd kill myself." The girl, who grew more excited as she talked, continued "You don't know him, he is crazy."

Finally Recorder Lang said that he had heard enough of how bad Spino was and now he would like to hear how good he was and he had Spino tell his side of the story. He claimed that since his children had got big enough to work and make money they had wanted to get rid of him.

Spino said that he was willing to buy his own clothes but he thought that as he supported his family until they had grown up that they should keep him now.

Here the mother interrupted the story told by her husband, both tried to talk at the same time.

Finally after order had been restored, Spino asked the court if he could not break down the door in case his family would not let him in the house.

He was told that he could not as the house was owned by his children. After the case had been thoroughly thrashed out Recorder Lang advised them to go home and try to live quietly together. All three left the court room and spent over two hours in the city hall corridor talking the matter over with interested friends who endeavored to have them settle their family affairs amicably.

Just what will be the outcome is not known.

As the matter stands it is a family affair and outside of the jurisdiction of the recorder or the police unless the peace of the neighborhood is threatened.

Partner Has Withdrawn.

An erroneous article in last night's Freeman stated that the Modern Heating Company had filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk, with Frank Walter as one of the partners. A paper was filed by the clerk but it was to the effect that Mr. Walter had withdrawn from the firm, by mutual consent of the three partners, Edward L. Reynolds, Frank Sheridan and Frank Walter.

WAITE TO SPEAK AT C. E. MASS MEETING

An opportunity for all the young people of Kingston to hear Harold A. Waite, state field secretary of the Christian Endeavor Union of New York, will be given on Christian Endeavor Day, Tuesday, February 8, when the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor will hold a mass meeting in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

Mr. Waite who will deliver the address of the evening is well known in Kingston and is one of the best speakers now engaged in Christian Endeavor work. No cause can gain power and strength in a surer or better way than in getting new ideas, the kind which Mr. Waite presents. All who are interested in the growth of the church whether young or old are urged to bear the date in mind and attend this meeting.

The singing at the service will be in charge of Secretary George D. Beckwith of the Y. M. C. A. and another pleasing musical number will be a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith.

MULRONEY CASE ARGUED.

Blacksmith Whose Heart, it Was Ascertained, Had Been Displaced.

The case of Charles H. Mulroney against Winston & Company was argued at the appellate division at Albany Tuesday. Mulroney was the chief blacksmith of Winston & Company, the contractors for the Ashokan dam, and had charge of their blacksmith shop in which were the heavy trip hammers, one of which exerted a pressure of sixteen thousand pounds to the square inch and the other seven thousand pounds.

In 1911 the pipe used to supply compressed air and which ran along the side of the shop five feet above the floor was disconnected and left upon the brackets which sustained it. Thirty-three months afterwards the pipe fell and hit Mulroney. He claimed that his heart had been displaced, his skull fractured, his hearing affected and that he had sustained permanent injuries and sued to recover twenty-five thousand dollars damages.

The case was first tried before Judge Cochrane and a jury at the court house in this city in December, 1914, when the jury disagreed. It was again tried before Judge Cochrane and a jury in March, 1915, when Mulroney recovered $2,200. Winston & Company appealed, claiming among other things that Mulroney was grossly negligent in not taking the necessary steps to secure the pipe either with cord or wire, which could have been done in thirty seconds, or in not reporting its condition to employe of Winston & Company with the request that it be secured. Also they claimed that he grossly exaggerated the character of his injuries, and that they were not permanent.

The case attracted considerable attention when tried because of the production of X-ray photographs of Mulroney's heart made by Dr. Kemble. At the close of the case, however, Judge Cochrane charged the jury there was no proof that Mulroney's heart had been displaced, his skull fractured or that he had sustained permanent injuries. There were numerous exceptions to the admission and exclusion of testimony. The case was argued by Andrew J. Cook for Mulroney and Judge Clearwater for Winston & Company.

GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL.

Kingston Y. M. C. A. Vocalists Laying Up to Their Reputation.

The regular weekly rehearsal and business meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Glee Club was held last evening and was very well attended and although the music is very difficult the club under the able supervision of Mr. Voght, is succeeding in bringing out the best music possible. For those who have heard the Glee Club concerts in former years the club or its character of music needs no introduction. This year's concert will be the third annual concert and the club is planning to give its many friends a bigger and better concert than in either of the preceding years.

It was with regret that the resignation of the Glee Club's secretary, Randall Freer, was accepted. Mr. Freer was a very active member of the club since it organized three years ago, and for the past four months has served most faithfully as secretary. Mr. Freer is employed by the N. Y. Telephone Co. and has very recently been transferred to take up his work in Schenectady. The members of the club wish him much success in his new venture.

Award on Bluestone Co. Claim.

The commission composed of the Hon. William M. Chadbourne of New York city, Cornelius L. Lefever of Rosendale and J. Charles Snyder of this city has filed its report on the claim of the Ulster & Delaware Bluestone Company for parcel No. 865, in the county clerk's office. The parcel was situated at West Hurley, and there was a mill on the property. The commission has awarded $7,200 for the parcel. The claim of the company for business damages was dismissed by the commission. Judge John G. Van Riten represented the Bluestone Company. William McEl. Spear represented the city of New York.

Flood Danger at Phoenix.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 19.—This city was in great danger today of inundation as a result of the floods that have been pouring down the Gila river for the last 36 hours. The flood is the greatest in the history of the city.

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.— Benjamin Franklin.

It is well to remember that if you save a cent on a purchase of 5 cents or more you are saving not only a cent, but 20 per cent, which seems more worth while. When using a dozen eggs, as happens in big families often, on other occasions, try scraping out the eggshells with a spoon. This will give you the amount of one egg and is well worth saving, especially while eggs are so very high. When eggs are cheap they should be put down for the winter. Packed in water glass, they are just as good for any form of baking and will keep a year if properly done. A quart of water glass added to twelve quarts of boiled and cooled water put into large stone crocks after the eggs are placed will keep them perfectly. The eggs should of course be perfectly fresh and great care taken not to crack them. Cover the jar and keep in a cool place.

One of the common wastes in most homes is the unscrapped mixing bowl. Spatulas may now be bought at the ten cent counter, and a few turns with a spatula will scrape out a dish, often saving the amount of an individual cake or pie or biscuit. If round bottomed mixing bowls are used for the dough mixtures, the scraping process will be much shortened, as the spatula, being flexible, will take up every bit of the dough.

When apples are used if the parings are saved and boiled with a little water, then the water added to equal quantities of sugar and boiled, a glass of jelly or two, which will be fresh and inviting, will be ready for your table.

A LAUNDRY NOTE.

How to Make Starch For Thin Fabrics and Wash Children's Gingham.

One and one-half tablespoonsful of cornstarch, a quart of water, one-half teaspoonful of borax and one-half tablespoonful of household ammonia.

The starch is rubbed in a little cold water, and then into it the quart of freshly boiled water is stirred. Let it cook for two minutes, stirring all the time. When it turns slightly blue add paraffin and borax and cook a minute, stirring hard, but taking care not to scorch it. Strain through double cheesecloth, add enough boiling water to color the starch and then bottle it.

Colored materials have to be "set" before being laundered—that is, allowed to soak overnight in the proper solution before washing. After being set they are washed in warm water with a little soap, using the following alkali soap. Washing must be done quickly and the garments dried indoors.

Solutions to be used to "set" colored fabrics:

Pink, brown and black—two cupfuls of salt to one gallon of cold water.

Blue—one-half cupful of salt to a gallon of cold water.

Green, purple, lavender—a tablespoonful of sugar of lead to one gallon of water.

Mixed goods, blue, green, brown—a cupful of turpentine to a gallon of water.

How to Nip a Cold Before It Gets a Hold on You.

If you find you have caught cold in spite of precaution, nip it in the bud. The time to attack a cold in order to cure it is at the very start. At the first sniffle or the first cough begin to fight it. Drink plenty of fresh water, eat lightly and get plenty of sleep.

Before going to bed take a hot bath and drink a hot lemonade. Then cover up warmly and be sure there is no draft between the windows and the door, but have the windows open enough to get plenty of air in the room. This treatment will probably cause you to perspire freely, and you must be careful not to throw off the covers and expose your overheated body to more cold.

If this treatment is taken at the start and carefully adhered to it will probably drive the cold right out of your system. But if you do not treat it at the very beginning it will have to run its course gradually.

How to Relieve Certain Pains by Homemade Remedies.

Mustard is the nearest approach to a universal cure-all. Few pains will not give way before a mustard plaster, and a wide range of internal inflammations from colds and other causes may be stopped by its timely application. It is the first and best resort in threatened pneumonia.

Hot milk, heated to as high a temperature as it can be drunk, is a most refreshing stimulant in cases of cold or fever fatigue. Its action is very quick and grateful. It gives real strength, as well as acting as a food.

How to Fashion a Gold Braided Collar That Is So Modish.

Gold braided collars are distinctly smart with simple little turtleneck frocks of dark neutral toned pussy willow or felle classique. The collar is usually of white silk and is edged all around with flat gold gilt braid about half an inch wide. From the points of the collar, and most collars have points these days, depend tiny gold tassels.

Helpful Suggestion.

"My brain is on fire," tragically exclaimed Johnson as he threw himself down upon the sofa and held his head. "Why don't you blow it out?" absent-mindedly asked his roommate.—Lehigh Burt.

"Absent"

with "Crossing the Bar," Columbia 10-inch Double-Disc Record A1891, 75c.

If you should find yourself unusually quiet as the final notes of "Absent" die away, it will be no more than a tribute to the beauty of what we believe is unqualifiedly the most effective and artistic male quartette singing to be found in any catalog. The tone, the blending, the very breath pauses are eloquent in tenderness. The same unanimity of purpose and perfection of results is found in the singing of the Columbia Mixed Quartette in "Crossing the Bar," a companion piece to "Absent."

This One Record Alone Affords a Supremely Perfect and Artistic Example of the New

Is Life Worth Living? It Depends Upon the Liver.

Wrong living is the cause of most physical ills and generally stomach and liver are first to suffer.

Coffee drinking is a very common cause of digestive disorder, but it usually takes the user some time to fully realize it. Fact is—some people drink coffee with seeming impunity, but when disturbances of the digestive organs result in headache, biliousness, irritability and other common symptoms of caffeine poisoning it's time for the coffee drinker to look to his morning beverage for the true cause.

For any coffee drinker who finds that his health is wrong, but don't know just why, it's a good idea to quit the coffee and use

—the pure food-drink

Made of wheat and a small amount of molasses. Postum has a rich, snappy flavour much like that of mild Java coffee yet contains no caffeine (the drug in coffee) nor other harmful element.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum is soluble in boiling water and can be made in the cup at table. Both kinds are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

A change from coffee to Postum is a good move toward right living.

"There's a Reason"

Send a 3-cent stamp to Postum Cereal Co., Inc., at Battle Creek, Mich., for a 3-cup sample of Instant Postum.

HALLORAN TO REMOVE OLD ACADEMY AFTERMATH OF MINSTREL SHOW

The trustees of Kingston Academy have received bids for the removal of the old building and the contract has been awarded Peter J. Halloran, who will commence the work of raising the building immediately. Under the contract the structure must be entirely removed by April 15 after which the trustees will make plans for a city park on the property.

GOES WITH LARKIN.

Former Shoe Salesman Returns to Old Line of Work.

George J. Rafferty has accepted a position as salesman in the shoe store of John J. Larkin, 18 Broadway. Mr. Rafferty is by no means a new man in this position, having served his apprenticeship with Jacob Harris, in whose employ he served for four years and left his employ to take a responsible position with the New York board of water supply. Mr. Rafferty was about to go to Port Jervis to manage a shoe store of S. Kornish, of that city, but owing to a more flattering inducement decided to accept his present position. He is a young man of pleasing manner, courteous and polite and will be pleased to welcome his host of friends at his new place of business.

Mrs. Rose Daly of New York has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ahrens, who are taking care of her farm.

Paul Snyder, Jr., has recovered from his attack of measles and his father and mother have them. It is to be hoped they will recover as easily as their son.

Dr. Holcomb of Pakenville and a couple of Saugerties doctors are having a good deal of business here, as there is a great deal of sickness in this place.

Mrs. Sarah Bach, after spending a month with her daughters in Tannersville, has returned to her home.

Clarence Van Etten is confined to his home with pneumonia and is attended by Dr. Krom of Saugerties.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cordes were Saugerties visitors one day last week.

Matthew Haines and wife of Kingston spent the first part of last week with her sisters and attended the funeral of Edgar Minkler.

Millard Carn was not satisfied with cutting his foot, but had to cut one of his fingers for company.

John Snyder was arrested for intoxication and annoying his wife, who recently got a separation from him. He was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail.

Clarence Disbrow and family were Saugerties visitors on Monday.

Mrs. Everett Doyle and Mrs. Daniel Whalen were in Saugerties on Monday.

The funeral of Mrs. Albert Doyle was held in the Blue Mountain Church on Tuesday forenoon. Mr. Wemple of Saugerties officiated and interment was in the Blue Mountain cemetery. Mrs. Doyle has been ill for some years, and is survived by a husband, a daughter and four sons.

Also a sister, Mrs. Melissa Cole, of Saugerties, and a brother, Lester Barton of Packer Clove.

It is rumored that the young man whose horse died in Saugerties, was Clarence Becker, son of Daniel Becker, of this place.

Irene Maher is visiting her uncle, Henry Cassidy, of Brookville.

Minnie Ellwein of New York is visiting her sister, Mrs. Edward Hommel.

Mayor Cornelius F. Burns and wife and Clarence H. Gardiner, a well known manufacturer, all of Troy, came to Kingston Tuesday evening to attend the Colonial Glee Club minstrels for the benefit of the Elks' charity fund. They were particularly interested in Philip B. Fitzpatrick, who was a member of the Troy Lodge of Elks before coming to Kingston. They were delighted with the performance.

The second performance of the minstrels was played to a full house which was equally as delighted as the first night's audience. A large number of people from different parts of the county came here to attend Tuesday's performance and everyone spoke in highest terms of praise of every number on the entire program. Miss Helen Stern, who took one of the solo parts, is a niece of Dr. A. A. Stern and has been in this country but little more than a year, during which time she has entirely mastered the English language. She is a native of Germany and is the possessor of a high soprano voice of exquisite quality.

Nelson W. Snyder and Harold Braby are attending Spencer's Business School Kingston.

Mrs. Frank Snyder and family of Pine Grove attended services here Sunday.

Again we heard the A. A. DuBois last Sunday and must say he certainly did give us a fine sermon. Hope he may soon be heard from our pulpit every Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Wolven of Yonkers have been called home on account of the sudden illness of Mr. Wolven's father.

It is said that mumps are raging in the place. Look out, those who haven't had them, for they are catching.

Henry DuBois from Saugerties spent Sunday in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Bramer from Mt. Marion have moved in the house of Carl and York.

Rescued by Boy Scouts.

The work of the Boy Scouts has never shown to better advantage than in the incident related in the following dispatch from Port Jervis: "Boy Scouts after a long and difficult search in the thick forests of the Shawangunk mountains near Port Jervis rescued Harry Taylor, 12 years old from freezing to death. The boy was found in the woods with both feet frozen but is recovering under the care of a physician."

Monarch.

I am the real ruler of the universe. I cover with dust the masterpieces of the earth. Ancient forms shrink before my ever awakening presence.

And memory covers. Men bow before my scepter like slaves of the light. And women, their eyes fixed by my spell, follow where I lead.

The puny baby in the nursery and the gray bearded patriarch alike hearken to my magic voice. I paint the earth with divers colors, and the scientist, the doctor, all the rulers of man, awake to do my bidding.

I am monarch of all I survey. None disputes my eternal majesty. My name is novelty.—LIFE.

An Easy Way to Run Ribbons.

When about to send a piece of lingerie to the laundry a piece of narrow tape should be tied to the end of the ribbon and the latter drawn out of the bedding, leaving the tape in its place. The knot is then fastened, and the lingerie can be sent to the wash. The ribbon being replaced on its return in exactly the same manner.—Philadelphia North American.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Things That Are More Comforts Now Used to Be Luxuries.

No economist has put enough emphasis on the fact that if the cost of living is higher now it is to a large extent because the average man is demanding more comforts and luxuries, and these must cost more. Before the days of plumbing and bathrooms the workman missed some onerous bills, but he is not ready to throw the plumbing out of the house.

Oil is cheaper for light than electricity, but people pay more for a modern light because they want the better service even at the higher prices. Workmen by the thousands have phonographs, a form of entertainment unknown until a very few years ago.

Even street cars are rather a new thing, and the poorest families spend many dollars every year for this service, which has become indispensable. Magazines are purchased now by many people who ten years ago had never subscribed for such a publication.

Thousands of articles are for sale in every department store, of which a large percentage are purchased at some time or other by the average wage earning family.

Modern living does cost more assuredly, but it also yields more.—Milwaukee Journal.

SPEED OF A STAR.

With a Thought That Points a Moral to Impatient Humanity.

There is a star—a reddish star known as Arcturus—that is traveling at the rate of 150 miles a second, and what is interesting about it is it is coming this way and will come for many years, but it is so far away that it doesn't seem to have any motion at all. It is in exactly the same spot, so far as our vision is concerned, where it was a century ago.

There is another star known as the "runaway" whose speed is twice that of Arcturus—that is, it could sweep across Ohio in a second of time.

We refer to this fact that the gentle reader may understand how insignificant are the little concerns of life that tear his patience into tatters and turn the world into woe. Long after he has gone Arcturus will be traveling 150 miles a second and to all appearances not budging an inch. How modest and patient should this touch of near infinity make us all! And yet, as Tennyson says:

We cannot be kind to each other here for an hour.
We whisper and hint, and chuckle and grin at a brother's shame.
However, we brave it out; we men are a little breed.

Saves the Times.

He doesn't look like a very important part of a big automobile organization, this stooped, grizzled man, but the president of a great motorcar company says that "Magnet Bill" saves his salary a dozen times over every day he works. Bill is chief, summer or winter "Magnet Bill" may be seen walking slowly about the automobile plant, his eyes on the ground. "Magnet Bill" gets his nickname from the fact that his tools consist solely of one tin bucket and a big steel magnet strapped to the end of a shovel handle. It is his duty to save automobile tires by removing from the roadway every nail and bit of metal that might cause a puncture. Thousands of cars are run over the roadway to the testing place, and it is figured that without the precaution taken by "Magnet Bill" the cost for cut and punctured tires would be $20,000 every year.—Popular Science Monthly and World's Advance.

THE IDEAL HUSBAND.

Observations on the Side and a Dogmatic Conclusion.

You are probably a woman. Few men would pause to read an article headed "The Ideal Husband." Man knows his fellow men too well.

Of course it is true that nearly every married woman has at some time in her life claimed to have found the one ideal husband, but not for long. He is not a stable article; he is only a fleeting glimpse.

Shortly after a young married woman declares hers to be the ideal husband he exhibits a tendency to crumble his crackers in his soup or to place a slice of bread in his empty dinner plate and submerge it in gravy. These things "are not done."

While a man is still engaged—held under option, as it were, but not definitely contracted for—he is for a short while considered ideal. However, he just begins to enjoy his perfection when it is discovered by his general manager elect that he rests his knife and fork half on the tablecloth and half on his plate, while they should be dropped artistically across his plate midway between meat and potatoes. To save time, probably he also cuts his meat into small pieces before starting to eat it.

He has good reasons for doing as he does, but they do not excuse him. His sort of conduct and perfection simply do not wash hand in hand.

No young couple should be engaged long enough for either one to discover the other's shortcomings. So long as a man and a girl are so mutually mesmerized that the eyes of one never leave the eyes of the other he is perfect, but the moment he allows her glances to stray below his Adam's apple, the moment he loses control, he loses all perfection. She realizes that his knowledge of esthetics was gleaned from an abridged edition; that his tie is not in vogue, that his collar is too loose and too low and therefore too comfortable.

Ah me! I have strayed from my subject—the ideal husband. Let me return to it and proceed.

There is no such thing.—Paul Wing in Century.

Bits About the Enchanted City of the "Arabian Nights."

Immortalized by Haroun-al-Raschid, in the story of the "Arabian Nights," Bagdad, which has a population of about 150,000, was built on the ruins of an ancient Babylonian city dating back to 2000 B. C. Records have been found on ancient bricks establishing its early date.

Ever since the days of Haroun-al-Raschid the Jews have been the leading figures in the commercial world of Fate of a Duchess.

We have had excellent morals drawn from the substantial waist of the Venus of Milo for the admonition of the fashionable woman. But what can we say about the Duchess de Mazarin, who (G. BUYING A DIAMOND.

If Money Is No Object You Can Get an Absolutely Perfect Stone.

The properly cut diamond has fifty-eight facets, including the table and girdle, thirty-two facets above the girdle and twenty-four facets below. The surface of the table should be 40 per cent of the whole.

Perfect, colorless stones form only 5 per cent of all the diamonds produced. A diamond is considered perfect in information when no flaw or imperfection can be detected under the ordinary "loop" or magnifying glass used by jewelers. The flaws usually found are carbon spots (where the carbon has not crystallized perfectly), feathers, bubbles, hairs, flaky formation, like that in a piece of ice when struck by a hammer. The absolutely perfect stone must be free from all of these defects and cut in the right proportions. The "clean" diamond is free from any flaws or inclusions and is most difficult to find. Many of these flaws are so small as to be imperceptible to the naked eye and really do not affect the brilliancy and beauty of the stone.

Do not expect to get an absolutely perfect stone for any reasonable figure, for they are so rare as to command excessive prices. If you want a good stone see to it that it is of good color and brilliancy and is well cut.

The real requirement of a diamond is that it make a proper effect, and the minute flaws which can be found only with a strong microscope are not worthy of consideration by the ordinary purchaser who wishes to have a good stone almost exclusively for decorative purposes.

If money is no object and you are willing to pay $500 or more per carat you may hope to secure an absolutely flawless stone, but for all usual purposes you are wasting half of the money expended.—New York American.

$125,000 FOR NEW PALTZ SCHOOL

By Telegraph to The Freeman
Albany, Jan. 18.—A bill appropriating $125,000 for the construction of additional buildings to the state normal school at New Paltz was introduced to day in the senate by Senator Walton. The state commissioner of education is empowered under the provisions of the measure, either to provide for a building containing a normal assembly room with a capacity of 400 pupils and such recreation rooms as will accommodate the scholars of the school, or an auditorium with a capacity of 1,200.

KRIPPLERUSH.

Kripplerush, Jan. 18.—Supervisor George C. Roosa seems to be a very busy man these days.

Judge Christiana is assisting Asa W. Dudley in collecting the town taxes this winter. This is the fifth year the judge has held this position and it seems to be a pleasure for him to meet the different taxpayers of the town. The judge says he would like to hear all the grievances of the different taxpayers in the town, and it seems as though he will be apt to hear plenty this year.

Much credit is due J. J. Osterhout of this place who is always on the job as sexton of the M. E. Church. Mr. Osterhout is always looked upon to fill this position when no one else can be induced to fill it. It is largely through his efforts that the church is regularly opened for religious worship. Let's give Mr. Osterhout credit for his kindness in keeping the church open to those who are inclined to worship God.

The Misses May and Lizzie Christiana have been spending a few days with relatives in East Kingston.

Charles K. Delamater of this place is still hale and hearty after having passed the 75th mile stone of his life. Mr. Delamater is still a staunch Republican, following the footsteps of his distinguished father, Rudolph Delamater. The Republicans of this place are hoping for Mr. Delamater to still remain "in the ring" for another quarter of a century. A great deal of valuable information can be secured from Mr. Delamater in regard to political transactions of a number of years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Denark and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Connor and families spent Sunday at Thomas Barringer's.

Mrs. Calvin Osterhout and her daughter, Pearl, of Poughkeepsie, have been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Davis.

Miss Helen Hays left on Thursday for an extended visit with friends and relatives in Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. John F. Marsden and daughter Harriet of Far Rockaway, L. I., are guests at the Brunswick.

P. A. Barber and granddaughter Katharine spent Sunday with relatives in Tannersville.

Mrs. David Curtis is very ill at the present writing.

Pastor Snyder Quarantined.

Pastor Snyder of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer did not occupy his pulpit last Sunday because of scarlet fever in his family. He will not be in his pulpit next Sunday. The usual services will be conducted by a supply. The children are making satisfactory progress under the care of Dr. Stern.

A Real Office Boy

That is the kind of an office helper the big business men are always looking for. Quick, active, bright and intelligent office boys and they are willing to pay good salaries for such youngsters.

If you are a boy who knows he can come up to these requirements, don't wait for that office job to come to you. Run a Freeman Want Ad of your own, asking the employer to give you a trial. It will be sure to work and work quickly and there is no better time to get at this than now. January, 1916.

ALMOST A LOVE STORY

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

One day when little Miss May Fletcher was only four years old a neighbor of the family brought over a boy of about the same age. The two children had been playing together half an hour or so when the mother of the boy called out:

"Susan Fletcher, see there, will you? Your girl is trying to flirt with my boy."

That was the beginning of Miss May's career. By the time she was ten or twelve years old and going to school she was breaking the hearts of the boy pupils. She was a handsome girl, and she had cute, curly waves about her.

When she was approaching her twentieth year her solemn-faced father solemnly asked of her:

"May, do you know that this whole town of Tiptonville is talking about you?"

"No, father," was the reply. "What are they saying about me?"

"That you are a confirmed flirt and a coquette."

"Why, father, how you shock me!"

"Don't pretend such innocence," chided the father. "Let's go over your case a little. When Parson Brown came here, an unmarried man, two years ago, he seemed to take quite a shine to you."

"Yes, father."

"I have an idea that he asked you to be his wife."

"He did, father, but how was it?"

We were coming home from prayer meeting when he said that he loved me and wanted me to become his darling wife. Just as I got my mouth open to say yes a big hog, chased by a little dog, came running up on the sidewalk behind us. The hog struck Parson Brown in the legs, and he went sprawling. I uttered, I giggled, I snickered.

How could I help it? Mr. Brown went off in a huff and in six months was married to Amanda Jones."

"But there was Charles Renfrew,"

"Yes, I remember him, but it was not my fault that he quit coming here."

I was expecting to be Mrs. Renfrew some day, but he had not proposed yet.

He came one night, and just as he started in to propose he gave an awful sneeze, and the false plate in his mouth, which I never suspected was there, flew out and under the table, and he cut scrambled for it. Father, I had to snicker or blow right out of the window! Poor Charles dove under the table for his plate, gave me one awful look and went through the front door."

There was a silence for two minutes, and then the father asked:

"But what about George Fox, who has been coming here quite often of late?"

"I don't know," was the reply. "I think he will ask me to marry him."

"And you'll flatter and snicker at all?"

"Not if I can help it, father. George squirts with both eyes every two or three minutes. It is a dreadfully funny squint."

George Fox was a young bachelor of twenty-five, who lived with his widowed mother. He was a farmer. He had admired and loved Miss May and meant to make her his wife, squint or no squint.

Three or four days after Mr. Fletcher had had the talk with his daughter, he recorded above, young Mr. Fox caught sight of the girl picking raspberries in his field. The sight gave him an idea. He waited to see if she would appear again next day. She did, and at the far end of the field he let down the fence and turned in his old bull and ram and gave them a whack as they passed through the gap. They were gentle creatures, but at the whack the bull emitted a bellow, and the ram shook his head in defiance, and by a freak of fortune both trotted among the bushes.

The girl who had broken so many hearts saw them approaching and after one scream started for a tree. If she went until she was seated on a limb that she deemed was a safe roost, and it was only then that she saw Mr. Fox and called out to him to come to her rescue. Mr. Fox came along at a lazy pace, as if there was no special reason for hurry, and when he approached within thirty feet he took a seat on the fence, with his back to her and asked:

"Well, what's wanted?"

"I want to get down, of course," replied the girl up the tree.

"I am not hindering you."

"But the bull and the ram!"

"Oh, they haven't killed anybody lately!"

"George, you won't leave me here, will you? I may fall at any minute, and it will be awful the way I shall die!"

"See here, girl, I love you and want you to be my wife," said George with his back still to her.

"Are you squinting now, George?"

"Yes, by thunder! I am squinting at the old bull and ram!"

"Keep it up, George, dear, until you get the critters out of this field. This evening you can come over and we will decide whether to go to Boston or Niagara Falls on our tour. Hurry up, dear, for this limb is a cracking under me and will soon break!"

And George, in spite of his funny squint became a hero and a husband, and they put in five days at the falls, and Tiptonville said it was a good match on both sides.

MRS. CORNELIA RICE SHANNON AND HER HUSBAND, LESLIE J. SHANNON.

"HOUNDED BACK TO PRISON"—PLEADS FOR CLEMENCY.

(Mrs. Cornelia Rice Shannon and her Convict Husband, Leslie G. Shannon.)

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Convict No. 2,420, a second-terminer in Joliet prison, has made to Warden Zimmer the most fascinating plea for clemency ever placed on the penal records of this state.

Before Convict No. 2,420 entered Joliet the first time he was known to the world as Robert A. Ward, a young Chicago ne'er-do-well. During the interlude of his release and his second incarceration he was Leslie G. Shannon, noted writer, expert criminologist and fiancé of Mrs. Cornelia Rice, niece of the late vice-president James Schioler Sherman.

He has written an appeal to Warden Zimmer asking him to use his influence with the Parole Board, which meets in March, in gaining his freedom. In this he tells his life story. He does not spare himself while he relates how he first ran athwart the law and was sent to prison.

But with freedom came rehabilitation. He worked under tremendous odds, and finally found himself as a writer when he won $100 in a prize essay contest. This simple prize fung open the door of opportunity to him.

He went to New York where he won fame as a writer publishing essays and short stories in hundreds of magazines.

In New York, too, he asserts that he worked with Mrs. William R. Vanderbilt in a crusade against the drug evil. He declared his investigations are the foundation of the present drug laws of the State of New York.

In the flood tide of his success he went to Utica to become staff writer of an important periodical. Here he increased his achievements in the world of letters. He moved in the best society; he met and loved Mrs. Rice, the vice-president's niece.

Two hours before the marriage, which was to be a great social event, Mrs. Rice's father called him to his office and confronted him with his prison record and his Bertillon measurements. The wedding was indefinitely postponed.

Crushed he plunged into a wild season of debauchery. Several months later he met Mrs. Rice secretly in Rochester and married her. Then the prison spectre appeared again. Once more he was arrested for an unlawful act committed between the time his marriage was postponed and the actual event. He was tried, convicted and the marriage was annulled. And then—the prison bars again.

Fertilizers Give Protection.

Potash fertilizers seem to give protection from frost. A French market gardener has found that plants in a field strongly fertilized with saltpetre suffered little from a series of heavy frosts, those on a slightly fertilized area were more injured, and those on unfertilized land were much damaged.

Telepathy in the Theater.

Sir Herbert Tree tells how some years ago, when playing Hamlet, he found himself in that scene on the ramparts when he awaits the approach of the ghost, gasping for breath and drenched with the dew of apprehension. "What a fool I am!" he cried to himself. "My back is to the audience and they have been over ten years in hand. But I regard the book with affection, as I made it 29 years ago. By the first year's sales, having previously written and published for years without any such golden result. Since then I have improved even upon that." Trollope, of course, "improved upon that" in no uncertain fashion.—Westminster Gazette.

Anthony Trollope's First Earnings.

A literary man recalls Anthony Trollope's little ghost over the first fruits of his pen. "I send you a copy of 'The Warden,'" he wrote to Lord Houghton in 1864, "which Mr. Longman assures me is the last of the first edition. There were, I think, only 750 printed, and they have been over ten years in hand. But I regard the book with affection, as I made it 29 years ago. By the first year's sales, having previously written and published for years without any such golden result. Since then I have improved even upon that." Trollope, of course, "improved upon that" in no uncertain fashion.—Westminster Gazette.

Bullock Skin Boats.

There are few more primitive methods of transportation than those in use today by natives of northern India who make their homes in the vicinity of the swift flowing Sutlej. The boats of these aborigines are nothing more or less than bullock skins inflated by the breath of the natives themselves. Two natives may be seen hard at work filling the skins with air. Having inflated them to their satisfaction, they will leap overboard and paddle themselves across the river, great skill and strength being necessary to sustain their equilibrium during the passage. But even should the boats overturn they are easily righted, and the natives are without exception expert swimmers.

Life and Character Reading

JANUARY 19.

This horoscope shows a strong will, a determination to get ahead at any cost and exceeding nervousness.

There will seem to be at times periods of depression and discouragement.

This person needs to heed nature's warning and remember that by observing the law of balance all things are possible.

That is, there should be neither excessive elation or depression and a well balanced mind will be greatly aided by the two planets which govern this birthdate.

These planets are Saturn and Mars. Saturn, the ruler of destiny, makes havoc where discord controls, but brings harmony and success where the person tries to harmonize surroundings.

Determination, energy and a quick temper are the dominating characteristics of this birthdate.

The most fortunate period will be from May 1 to May 27. Marriage will be happiest with a Virgo person or one born the last two weeks in September.

Good business partnerships will be formed by placing an ad in The Freeman Want Ads.

ALLIED AVIATORS BOMBARD METZ

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, Jan. 19.—Metz, the great German fortress in Lorraine, has again been bombed by allied air craft.

News of the latest raid was contained in an official statement issued today by the German war office.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 19.—Nearly all the speculative interest in the stock market this morning was centered in a few specialties with United States Industrial Alcohol the most prominent feature. That stock opened 1 1/2 higher at 147 and after reacting to 146 1/2 rose to a new high record of 148 1/2. American Coal Products was also in urgent demand, advancing 3/4 to 176 1/2, a new high mark. New York Air Brake moved up 2 points to 152. Distillers Securities rose 1/2 to 48 1/2. Baldwin Locomotive opened 1/4 higher at 111, declined to 109 1/2 and then rallied to 110. Marine preferred receded a point to 82 1/2 and Crucible Steel 1 1/2 to 65 1/2. New York Central was the storiest of the railway list, rising 1/2 to 111 1/2, a fresh high mark for this movement. Bethlehem Steel jumped 13 points to 492. Steel Common was inactive and unchanged.

Trading during the late forenoon was confined to a small group of specialties and some of these issues were extremely active, a few advancing to new high marks. Cuban American Sugar rose to 133 1/2, a gain of 5 1/2 points and National Lead rose from 71 to 72 1/2. Industrial Alcohol, after selling up to 148 1/2, reacted to 146 1/2. Studebaker was in good demand, rising a point to 153 1/2. The leading railway and industrial issues appeared to be neglected. Money lending at 1 1/2 per cent.

Irregularity was shown during the late afternoon and a number of issues reacted sharply. Texas Company, after advancing 6 1/2 points to 228, reacted to 221 and Industrial Alcohol, after making a further gain of 2 points to 152, dropped to 150. There was heavy selling of steel common, which declined to 85 1/2 but later rallied to 85 1/2. Price movements in the general lists were about evenly divided between advances and declines.

The closing was irregular and unsettled. There were wide fluctuations in many issues. Texas Company after selling at 228 fell to 212, but later rallied to 219. Industrial Alcohol dropped four points with a quick recovery, but again declining. Losses of 1/2 to 1 point occurred in many other issues. Most importance was attached to heavy selling of steel common which receded half to 84 1/2 rallying in the final dealings. American Smelting was weak, selling down to 104 1/2. Government bonds unchanged; others strong.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Jan. 19.—In the wilds of Greenfield, Mass., lives a youth named William du Mont, otherwise known as "Zukie," who is the original victim of the "woof" handicap in golf.

Once upon a time, runs the story, "Zukie," who spends large portions of the year chasing hither and thither in pursuit of the elusive buyers of tool steel dies and similar bits of hardware, returned to his home town. After being patted upon his spinal column by his boss in energetic appreciation of his nice sales record, "Zukie" decided to take an afternoon drive upon his shoulder, and wandered out in the general direction of the Greenfield links.

When "Zukie" arrived at the course he found that all the good golfers were considerably absent, they were watching a circus parade or indulging in some similar Greenfield devilry. "Zukie" scanned the landscape and could see naught but a despicable "dub" putting away. "Zukie" yearned to battle with a real golfer, but even a "dub" furnishes more competition than a game of solitary golf.

"Greetings, fair one," ejaculated "Zukie," approaching the "dub." "Wouldst have a game with me?" The "dub" looked at "Zukie" in a puzzled way, and said: "I don't quite make you." "I mean," said "Zukie," "that I'd like to play a game with you. I'll give you a handicap of one stroke a hole. Two strokes a hole if you like. And we'll play for one golf ball, just to make it a bit interesting. What say you?"

"Dub" Gets "Woof" Landicap.

"I'm willing," replied the "dub," "but I'm not satisfied with the handicap. Never mind giving me any strokes. I'll allow me two 'woofs' as a handicap and I'll play you for two or three balls, just as you like."

It was "Zukie's" turn to look puzzled. "Two 'woofs'! What's them, hey?" he asked lapsing into the ungrammatical.

"Nothing at all except a couple of 'woofs,'" returned the "dub." "Just let me say 'woof' twice during our game—that's all the handicap I want and we'll play for three balls. How about it?"

"Zukie" readily agreed. This was a cinch for him. He played at least 40 strokes ahead of the "dub" in 15 holes and this looked like a sure way of gathering unto himself three, nice, new golf balls at the expense of someone else.

"Zukie" captured the first hole with ease. He mounted the tee for the drive for the second hole. He teed the ball nicely, got into position and was half way through with his swing when a yell—"Woof!" fractured the afternoon quiet.

"Woof" Unnerves Star Golfer.

The sudden yell threw "Zukie" off his balance, he topped the ball and instead of getting his average drive of 225 yards he dribbled the ball about eight feet.

"Hey, whatcha yellin' at me like that for, anyway," roared the enraged "Zukie" at his foe.

"I gotta right to do it," was the calm answer.

"Right? You gotta right to yell! Say, don't you know anything about golf etiquette. Doncha know you don't yell or talk or even move when your opponent is driving?"

"Yep, I know that," responded his foe. "But don't you remember about my handicap? I'm allowed two 'woofs'! That was one of them."

And then a great light dawned upon "Zukie."

"Oh, that's whatcha meant, hey, when you asked for a couple of 'woofs'?" hissed "Zukie." "That's what it was, hey? Permission to yell like a soused Panamanian warrior when I'm driving? That's it, hey?"

"Yes, that's it," responded the other lummox. "I don't forget, old topper, that I've got another 'woof' due me and I can loosen it any time I wanta."

Well "Zukie," the crack golfer lost that match, even though his foe never exercised the other "woof" privileged every time "Zukie" was about to drive, to loft or to putt. He was filled with the fear of that other "woof" it unnerved him. Several times he pleaded with his opponent to "get rid of that other 'woof,'" but his foe smiled sweetly and remarked that "the time wasn't ripe."

So "Zukie," the peerless, went down to defeat at the hands of a "dub" whom he could "spot" 40 strokes in 18 holes and still beat in an ordinary match. Zukie was beaten by a yell and the fear of another yell at a critical moment.

And what happened to "Zukie" has happened to every other crack golfer since then who has strived to overcome a handicap of two "woofs."

Gasoline Storage Limited.

Poughkeepsie garage owners will be held to the 500 gallon storage limit for gasoline by the city authorities. Many dealers are said to be heavily stocked as a result of having before the recent rise, hence, some losses are feared.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—Whatever hopes Young Ahearn had of becoming middleweight champion are shattered today. Mike Gibbons stood in the way of Ahearn's aspirations. The men met last night in a scheduled ten round bout. The Minnesota law did not permit of decisions. There was no need of the law. Ahearn lasted just one minute and 28 seconds. Then he went to sleep, the result of a knockout blow on the jaw. The fight ended suddenly. The big crowd was surprised at the quickness with which Gibbons put over the sleep producing punch. Soon after the fight opened Gibbons worked his man over to one corner. Then he sent a smashing right swing to the jaw, sending Ahearn to the floor for the count. Ahearn raised himself slightly at the count of four, but his eyes closed again. His head struck the floor. Seconds carried him to his corner. It was three minutes before he regained consciousness. The crowd carried the triumphant Gibbons away on their shoulders. He was the St. Paul idol and the crowd was mostly from St. Paul.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Every once in a while, Charley White, the Chicago lightweight, slips over a knockout on his opponent. Last night he did the trick, again. In the first minute of fighting he put out Joe Azevedo of California, with a right to the heart and a left swing to the jaw.

Albany, Jan. 19.—Harry Pierce of New York gave Fighting Zunker of Buffalo a decisive beating in ten rounds here last night.

New York, Jan. 19.—The Yankees are still after "Home Run" Baker. The latest offer is $25,000 for Connie Mack's former third sacker.

New York, Jan. 19.—Fight fans are to see a "Meat Market" in action. The state boxing commission has given this fighter permission to be masked. He is a man of wealth, hailing from Memphis, weighing 200 pounds and stands six feet one inch. He is willing to allow club owners to choose his opponents.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—President Ban Johnson of the American League, Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, and John Heydler, secretary of the National League, met here today to arrange the schedules for the coming season.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1492.—A Simple But Stylish Costume in Semi Princess Style.

Blue serge with satin in a darker shade are here combined. The style is new and attractive, and is becoming to slender as well as to full figures. The skirt and waist are full and joined to the panel, over a fitted body lining. Velvet, poplin, voile, gabardine, corduroy or broad cloth are very appropriate for this model. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7½ yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt portion measures about 3¼ yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.
Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1915-16 large Fall and Winter Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies' Misses' and Children's Patterns, as well as the latest Embroidery Designs, also a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, Jan. 19.—The supper given by the young ladies of this place last week was a decided success. Now girls, we hope that the new hall will soon be built, as we surely need it.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Wolven of Kingston are spending some time with their daughter, Mrs. Enos Evers.

Mrs. Snyder of Kingston, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Mary Wolven, has returned home.

George Quick of Phenicia was a business caller in this place last Saturday.

District Superintendent R. E. Bell preached a very fine sermon in the M. E. Church in this place last Sunday morning to a large congregation; people being present from Ashokan and Glenford; it being the Fourth Quarterly Conference. The Rev. J. H. Fyler was called back for another year.

Carolyn Saxe, Mary McAniff, Thomas and Daniel McAuliffe, Claudia Williams, Harvey and Howard Barnes took regents examinations in Woodstock the first of the week.

Mr. Burhans was in Kingston on Tuesday.

Miss Mary McAniff of Spillway was visiting friends in this place the past week.

There is talk of several new houses being built here this year.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Jan. 19.—A meeting of the Sunday school board of the Methodist Church will be held this evening at the home of George W. Shultis on Broadway.

Several out of town students are taking the regents examinations at Port Ewen public school district No. 13.

Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in their rooms in Hutton's Hall. The deputy, Mrs. Anna Enlist of Whiteport, will be present and install the newly elected officers.

Josiah Chambers, who has been employed by James K. Hoffman, the Hasbrouck street liverman left today for Castleton, where he was formerly employed by James G. Walradt in the coal business. Mr. Chambers was a jolly good fellow and leaves many friends in this village, who are sorry to see him go.

James Tator of Rhinebeck spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howe on Main street.

Mrs. Norman Coutant of South Broadway called on friends here Tuesday.

Miss Bessie House and Miss Harriet Robinson of Kingston were the guests of Miss Mary F. Bishop on Broadway Sunday.

David Berzee is ill at his home on Salem street. Dr. G. W. Ross is the attending physician.

At the regular business meeting of the Epworth League Society held in the Methodist Chapel last evening there was a large attendance. The following persons joined the society: Joseph Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zeek, Clyde LeFever, Ruby Henry, Mrs. Estella Freer and George Fowler. After the business meeting a social hour "was spent and refreshments were served. The society is in a prosperous condition.

Arthur Fowler of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Sr., on Broadway.

Arrows vs. Crescents Tonight.

The Crescent basketball club of this city and the Arrow Five of Catskill will meet at Washington Hall this evening in the second game of a series arranged between the two teams. The Crescents came forth victorious in a narrow margin in the first game of the series and the Arrows are coming to this city with the firm determination of defeating the Crescents, thereby gaining an even footing with the locals. Should the Arrows defeat the Crescents another game will be necessary to decide the championship of the Hudson Valley, as the two mentioned teams are now the only logical contenders for the title.

The Arrows will present their strongest lineup and will have the pick of such men as Barris, Glenlon, De Ferna, Robinson, Penquay, Grobe and Schufelt. This team makes a hard combination to beat and on paper they have a shade on the locals, but beforehand does very often gets upset. The Crescents have extraordinary good men in Spait, Murphy, Dittus, Fox, Barnard, Schuler and Baker, and they are as good as hard and faithful practice can make them. In the Crescent camp there is no thought of defeat and a calm confidence is prevalent. The game from the spectators' point of view should be a dandy, as both clubs are expert passers and each and every man on the two teams has a dangerous eye for the basket when they get within shooting distance of the cage. Manager Binkoff, of the Crescents, also proprietor of the hall, has made arrangements to handle the largest crowd that has ever attended a game at the hall. There has been an unusually heavy demand for tickets on the part of the local fans.

and the home crowd will be augmented by a large delegation of rooters who are going to come to Kingston to back the Arrows. Following the game dancing will be enjoyed, the music being furnished by McLean's orchestra.
